More than 1500 displaced persons from Germany recently arrived in Canada to start new — and happier — lives with the help of the government. On arrival, they are registered, given sheets and blankets, fed and bathed. Prospective employers must guarantee them a year's work at prevailing wages, living quarters and good working conditions. These pictures show some of the D.P.'s at St. Paul l'Ermite, near Montreal. Above Jack Frost gives them a cold reception as they wait outside the government hostel to board busses for Montreal.

Sports – And One Thing or Another

By FRANK MANN HARRIS

("A Sixbit Critic")

Many columns have been written—and there has been even more "Inside dope" passing around—regarding what ails the once-mighty Canadiens. "They're sore at Selke"; "There's dissension between the players"; "They just won't give their best for Dick Irvin any more"—these are just a few of the pieces of gossip you hear whispered around by the wise-guy element that hangs about the fringes of every sport.

* * *

Well, we haven't had a great deal of personal contact with any of the Canadiens for the past few years; and our long-standing opinion of the value of "inside information" is that the more you have, the quicker you can go broke betting on it. From our most recent look at the Montrealers in what might be laughingly called "action", we would say there is no mystery at all about the lowly position they occupy.

* * *

When we were a lot younger, there used to be a somewhat r'bald verse which was rather popular. It ran, as we recall, something as follows; "King David and King Solomon led merry, merry lives With many, many lady friends and many, many wives—But when old age came over them, with many qualms — King Solomon wrote Proverbs, and King David wrote 'The Psalms'."

* * *

And that just about sizes up what's happened to Canadiens. The way hockey is played nowadays, once a guy's legs begin to go bad on him, you can ring down the curtain. Old age seems to have caught up with several key members of the once-Flying Frenchmen all at once, and they just can't stay along with the pace any more. We may be wrong of course, but in our opinion it's as simple as that. "She was a good old waggon but she done broke down"—and unless a miracle should happen, we feel you can count Canadiens out of it until a heap of rebuilding has been done.

* * *

Here, for no good reason, we are reminded of a crack the late Will Rogers once pulled. It was during the first World War, and one evening Rogers was on the stage doing his monologue and rope-spinning act when suddenly a middle aged lady in the audience rose and shouted, "Why aren't you in the Army you big coward?"

Rogers raised his hand and quieted other members of the audience who were telling the dame to sit down and shut up, then asked her to repeat her question. "Why aren't you in uniform?" she yelled. "For the very same reason, my dear lady," Bill calmly replied, "that you aren't in the Ziegfield Follies. Physical disabilities!"

* * *

Down in Parliament somebody has come up with the bright suggestion that Canada should try to find some loophole in the amateur laws whereby Barbara Ann Scott could be provided with a University education, at public expense, and still retain her present status as a "simon pure". This strikes us as about the dizziest idea that has evolved from that direction in some time, which is saying quite a lot.

* * *

Barbara Ann Scott has already brought to Canada—and to herself—just about all the honors there are in connection with figure skating. Anything else she does, from now on, is bound to be in the nature of an anti-climax; and next time she mightn't be so lucky. For while she is undoubtedly tops in her graceful art — although some of those disgruntled rivals don't appear to think so — from all reports she didn't get any the worst of it in finding better ice conditions than some of her competition did.

* * *

Then why—just for the purpose of preserving her "amateur status" — should Canada give her free education when, just by making one motion picture, she could probably collect enough to take her through every university in the land? Why—just to provide a grand box-office draw for some snobbish Skating Clubs that wouldn't give her a tumble if she'd finished second—should Miss Scott refrain from following Sonja Henie's lead and collecting some real dough for herself?

* * *

No doubt many will recall all the anger and head-shaking there was in that same Miss Henie's native land when it was announced that she was turning pro. But, had she refused to do so, what would she be now. Just another old-timer, hanging around the various skating meets, and without enough of that youthful zing and charm left to catch the judges' fancy any longer. Barbara Ann Scott should cash in, while the cashing's good, and tell anybody who tries to persuade her otherwise to go chase himself.

* * *

For the public—especially in matters connected with sport!— has a shockingly short memory. Twenty years or so ago there was a young lady by the name of Gertrude Ederle who caused far more of a world sensation — by swimming the English Channel — than Barbara Ann Scott can ever hope to do. Wonder where Gertrude Ederle is now—and, if she ever thinks of those thronged streets of cheering thousands who once so wildly greeted her. "Three cheers are all very well, but when it comes to buying groceries they don't go nearly as far as three bucks", may be a cynical viewpoint. Still, it's not very far from being the truth, just the same.

That Extra Touch

Into a busy telegraph office a smiling matron bustled, seated herself at a writing table, and, after much pencil-chewing, produced a message. Handing it in to the clerk, she asked as an afterthought—"Will it cost me anything to underscore the words: 'Perfectly lovely'?"

"Not a cent madam," the clerk replied.

Whereupon the cheerful lady recalled the message, drew a line under the two special words, and departed happily.

Fifty-fifty

"Where have you been?"

"Having my hair cut."

"You know you can't have your hair cut in the firm's time."

"Well, it grew in the firm's time, didn't it."

"Not all of it."

"Well, I did have it all cut off."

"NERVES" She Called It

Losing interest—losing friends—she never went out any more—always tired. "Nerves," she thought—but it was her kidneys—the filters of her blood—that needed attention. She used Dodd's Kidney Pills at once. The improved action of her kidneys helped to clear away blood impurities and excess acids. Fatigue, backache, headache, lack of energy disappeared. Dodd's Kidney Pills contain essential oils and medicinal ingredients that act directly upon the kidneys and help restore their normal action. 144
