AYER'S Hair VIGOR

Restores natural color to the hair, and also prevents it falling out. Mrs. H. W. Fenwick, of Digby, N. S., says: "A little more than two years ago my hair began to turn gray and fall out. After the use of one bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor my hair was restored to its original color and ceased falling out. An occasional application has since kept the hair in good condition."—Mrs. H. F. FENWICK, Digby, N. S.

Growth of Hair.

"Eight years ago, I had the varioloid, and lost my hair, which previously was quite abundant. I tried a variety of preparations, but without beneficial result, till I began to fear I should be permanently bald. About six months ago, my husband brought home a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and I began at once to use it. In a short time, new hair began to appear, and there is now every prospect of as thick a growth of hair as before my illness."—Mrs. A. WEBER, Polymnia St., New Orleans, La.

Mock Parliament

THE TABLES TURNED UPON THE MEN—THE ALBANI CONCERT.

I venture to say the Pavilion never echoed to more frequent laughter and applause than it did on the evening of Tuesday the 18th, when the Woman Suffragists combined with the W.C.T.U. of this city to present an object lesson in how men might feel were women the legislators and men the suppliants for the rights of citizenship.

When the deputation from the "Men's Enfranchisement Association and Men's Christian Temperance Union" filed in, and in humble, tactful terms presented their case before the premier (Dr. Stowe) and her cabinet ministers, and received her very spacious but non-committal reply, promising to "take it into my most serious consideration," a la Oliver Mowat, the audience was convulsed. Indeed Mrs. Stowe's speech was almost verbatim one of Sir Oliver's with the addition of a certain ironical inflection which required to be heard to be appreciated. In spite of the satire and amusing element there was an air of unreality about the whole proceeding. There is only one occasion in man's relation to woman in which he ever is or ever will be the humble suppliant, and only one occasion wherein it is becoming in him so to be. Why! did such a state of things exist as pictured by the Woman's Parliament, do you suppose that fine animal, man, would consent to supplicate, to wait, to reason with woman? No. He would go out and smash something. He would show her that physical force counts for something in all ages; and if he didn't he would be something less than a man.

After the deputation had received their "sop" and been dismissed from the august presence of the premier, the orchestra played a selection, and the members of the Mock Parliament took their seats in readiness for the evening session. The ladies had been thoroughly coached in parliamentary procedure, and not a hitch occurred from the carrying in of the mace by the sergt-at-arms to the actions of the cute little girl pages who flitted about from member to member, or waited the behests of "Madam Speaker," as noiselessly as butterflies.

Most of the women were beautifully gowned, groomed and bejewelled, and nearly all spoke in clear, vibrating tones; this was especially true of Madam Speaker, whose voice was musical, and rang like a clarion in crisp, well articulated sentences to the remotest recesses of the galleries. This reminds me that the only part of the satire not realistically carried out was the fact that male spectators were not obliged to sit alone in the galleries and to peep through a lattice work at the "Ladies of creation" as they enacted their laws for them.

The introduction of Bills was very amusing, being satires upon the existing state of affairs.

For instance, "an act for the protection of dead voters" caused some merriment, when it was proposed that the government provide a clairvoyant, to be kept in communication with defunct voters to ascertain which way they wish to vote, and in the proposal "to amend the married woman's act,"—"the object of this bill," said she, "is to recognize the earnings of the husband and to make an equal division of property, whereby the husband may possess the power to make his own will." The point is obvious. In a series of five bills and six questions bearing mostly upon the disabilities of woman, there was not a little delicate satire and pithy point. But the real business of the evening commenced with the debate upon the "act to extend the franchise to men, etc." The dozen or so of eloquent speakers for and against the measure gave back to men every old platitude, every stale assurance and every veiled thrust at the incompetence of woman that she has received from man in her agitation for enfranchisement. In short, those of us who went to sneer remained to praise.

Madam Albani's latest appearance before a Toronto audience was not an unqualified success. True, the Massey Hall was packed, for Toronto always turns out in surging crowds to meet its favorite concert singer; true, she had good support in Madame Van der Veer Green, the English contralto, in Schelling, Prume and Boehm, pianist, violinist and flutist respectively (for Salmond the basso I cannot say much), but Madam Albani, herself, was not up to the notch. In Casta Diva, her first selection, there was a tendency to flatten, particularly noticeable upon high C, where her voice not only flattened but made a disagreeable break. But this was by no means the worst. In "Rosebuds" the final long C was taken the flattest I ever heard upon a public stage. This she partially redeemed, however, by arriving at the true pitch before relinquishing the note. Madam Van der Veer Green scored the success of the evening. Such a charming stage presence combined with natural grace is rarely seen, and sets one to dreaming of what women might become by adequate physical culture supplemented by a corresponding heart and brain power.

Mr. Edmund Sheppard, who, with voice and pen has unremittingly combatted the Remedial Legislation bill, was the means of a very large and enthusiastic meeting being held in Massey Hall Saturday night. Those who were there will not soon forget the fiery speeches and the unanimity of the audience in their distaste for the measure.

The meeting was not closed till after twelve and a huge petition, signed by ladies and gentlemen, to be sent to Ottawa was one of the least of the results of that meeting.

The son of a dead and gone senator said to me lately: "It is my opinion there will at least three or four governments go down before this measure is settled." This, however, was before the Globe defined the policy of the Liberal party, as it did the other day, more clearly than hitherto, and it is just possible we may see that party emerge from the shades of opposition to bask in the sunshine of power yet.

Now is their chance. DOT.

From our own Correspondent.

We have been almost snowed under however we succeeded in finding our way out once more.

What might have been a sad accident occurred the other day. While Mr T McCauly's little daughter, Maggie, was running across a scaffold in the barn she fell, injuring one of her limbs badly, but we believe there are no bones broken and we are glad to learn she is slowly recovering.

Mrs. James Fettis of Michigan is the guest of her sister, Mrs R. Heard.

A sleigh load of jolly people from Glenelg paid a visit to friends in this vicinity lately.

Mrs. John Rae and family have come to reside in the Park. We extend them a hearty welcome.

WEDDING BELLS.—On Tuesday, Feb. 18, Miss Lama Riddell and Mr. R. A. Watson, both of Proton, were united in the bonds of matrimony by the Rev. F. A. Harrison of Dundalk. We wish the young couple a pleasant journey through life.

Eugenia.

From our own Correspondent.

Mr. Editor, I merely send in these few items to let you and your numerous Advance readers see that Eugenia has not been buried under the snow, for there is not much news of interest at present.

Railroad matters are the most important subjects discussed at present.

We have had quite a few visitors at Eugenia the past week.

Mrs. Walkem of Tottenham and Mr. Jos. Fenwick of Toronto have been visiting at Mr. Henry Fenwick's.

Miss Ella Stewart of Flesherton and Miss Bella Stewart of Flesherton Station were visiting at Mr. Jake Williams'.

Mr. Archie Cairns of Flesherton paid a short visit to friends here.

Miss Wells of Flesherton was the guest of Mrs. J. R. Hogg.

Messrs. William and George Rutherford of Allliston were visiting at Mr. Hogg's for a few days.

Times are rather dull at present, but I suppose they are no worse here than in other places. The sawmills are laying in a good supply of logs.

Special revival services are being held in the Methodist church, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Balfour. Considering the state of the roads and the weather the attendance is good and great interest is taken in the meetings.

Bailiff George Brown, Meaford, was in town Tuesday, consulting with Coroner Cameron and Crown Attorney MacKay regarding the death of Edward Cuthbertson, who died at the house of Jas. Hunter in the township of St. Vincent, on the 31st day of January last. Coroner Cameron had held an inquest as to the death, and Crown Attorney MacKay, after fully going into the facts, came to the conclusion that it was a mere case of suspicion, and that the death was a result of natural causes. Cuthbertson was found by his wife in the barn with a rope around his neck; hence the suspicion. In her evidence at the inquest Mrs. Cuthbertson swore that her husband had been low-spirited for the last three years.—O. S. Advertiser.

Prof. Robertson gave important information before the House Committee of Agriculture regarding the export of food products to Britain. He says beef is more profitable to export than live cattle.

A Common Affliction

Permanently Cured by Taking

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

A CAB-DRIVER'S STORY.

"I was afflicted for eight years with Salt Rheum. During that time, I tried a great many medicines which were highly recommended, but none gave me relief. I was at last advised to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by a friend who told me that I must purchase six bottles, and use them according to directions. I yielded to his persuasion, bought the six bottles, and took the contents of three of these bottles without noticing any direct benefit. Before I had finished the fourth bottle, my hands were as as ever they were. My business, which is that of a cab-driver, requires me to be out in cold and wet weather, often without gloves, and the trouble has never returned."—THOMAS A. JOHNS, Stratford, Ont.
