May be The New Speaker.

It is said that Dr. Jamieson, of South Grey, may be selected as Speaker of the Legislature, to succeed Mr. Hoyle. If so the choice will, probably, be entirely approved by all the members, unless perhaps one or two who may secretly fancy that the post should have been theirs.

Dr. Jamieson, although a comparatively young man, is one of the oldest members of the Legislature, well versed in rules of procedure and by temper and natural aptitudes seems qualified to preside over the deliberations of the House with a dignity, fairness, and tact that, if we may say so, has not always been exercised.

Although long a member of the Legislature, Dr. Jamieson has never been conspicous in debates, as he has always been disposed to hold back where others desired to rush in. But he speaks well, is an active worker on committees, and is said to stand high in the good opinion of the Premier and the Cabinet. He has, in fact been mentioned more than once as probable Cabinet material.

The Horse Was Killed

A Williamsford young man is now out the price of one good, serviceable horse, which was killed as the result of an escapade last Saturday night or early Sunday morning, and killed in a manner more over which does not seem to be very plain. The man in question came into Desboro on Saturday evening and transacted some business, after which he went and hit up the stuff that gets a collar on it when it is run out into glasses. He took in quite a considerable number of decorations and when he started off for home he was not just exactly sure in what precise direction the road ran. He was found some time later in a farmer's lane, without the horse, and in fact he was not sure when he had seen the horse last, only he had a dim idea that someone had come and taken the horse and rig from him and had driven away with it. The horse was found the next morning in Desboro, with a shaft hole punched in its side. Did someone take the horse and drive it to its death and if not then what did happen to it? These are questions the owner of the horse has been puzzling over. One thing he is sure of is he is out over one hundred dollars' worth of cayuse.—Times.

Priceville Jottings

The showers of rain will help the growing crops and pastures, which were very dry.

The Methodist garden party held on the evening of July 7 was a success, financially and socially. After tea was served a fine program was commenced on the nice lawn between church and parsonage, but a light sprinkle of rain interfered and the audience went into the church, which was filled to overflowing. The Flesherton band was quite an attraction and rendered a few fine pieces on the lawn at the commencement, but were unable to take part while inside the church. However, when the people came out again on the lawn the band was quite generous with their music, and although the hour was very late, a large portion of the crowd lingered listening to the music. The proceeds amounted to $95.00.
