Ordination Service

On Sunday morning, July 5, the Rt. Rev. David Williams, D.D., the Lord Bishop of Huron, made Mr. Abbot, Deacon, St. Georges church, Clarksburg, and ordained Rev. T.H.L. Young Priest. As this was the first time such a service had been held in Grey county, needless to say the large congregation followed every feature with reverent attention.

The charge to the candidates and to the congregation was delivered by the Rev. James Ardill, rector of St. George's church, Owen Sound, who based his remarks on John 20 chap., 21 v. In his address to the people the eloquent preacher warned the laity that they must assume their share of the responsibility in the work of the christian church, which is "a congregation of faithful men, in which the true word of God is preached and the sacraments duly ministered according to Christ's ordinance, in those things that of necessity are requisite to the same."

In the second place he addressed the candidates. He reminded them of the solemn vows which they were about to asume and exhorted them as preachers not to be too profound, and as leaders to direct one and all, even those who oppose themselves, into the way of salvation.

The Litany was said by Rev. Rural Dean Reilly, of Chatsworth, after which the Lord Bishop began the communion service. Rev. T. H. L. Young read the Epistle and immediately after Mr. Abbot was made Deacon. Then the Rev. Abbot read the Gospel, after which Rev. T. H. Young was ordained Priest.

An impressive featurs of the seavice was the laying on of hands, not only by the Bishop but by all the Priests present and the delivery of the Bible to the newly ordained, with the solemn admonition "take thou authority to preach the word of God and to minister the holy sacraments in the congregation, where thou shalt be lawfully appointed thereunto."

The choir, under the able leadership of Mrs. Ulbrecht, readily lead the responses and also rendered the musical portion in keeping with the deep solemnity of this service.

Many visitors were present from outside points, among them being some one hundred persons from the parishes of Heathcote, Fairmount and Duncan.

The Rev. Abbot is licensed to the parish of Dundalk and Maxwell, while Rev. T H. L. Young will remain in charge of Heathcote.

In the evening Bishop Williams preached to a second large congregation and confirmed seventeen church members. Thus the congregation, as the Bishop reminded them, witnessed that day the two-fold ordination of the christian church first, the ordination of the clergy by the laying on of hands, and secondly the ordination of the laity, also by the laying on of hands.

Steer Estray

—D. ROBERTS, Lady Bank.

Then He Subsided.

"I never saw such a woman in all my life," said Bass. "You are never satisfied with anything."
"People who know the man I took for a husband," replied Mrs. B., "think, on the contrary, that I am easily satisfied."—Liverpool Mercury.

First Explorer of Yukon.

Mr. Thomas Martindale in his recent book, "Hunting in the Upper Yukon," just published, remarks:
"It will surprise most people to know that the first prospector to cross from the coast to the headwaters of the Yukon river was one George Holt—according to the report of George M. Dawson, C.M.G., LL.D., F.R.S.—by all odds the most famous surveyor, geologist, and naturalist among Canadian scientists.
"Holt's journey was made in 1878, so that at the present time the short space of thirty-five years only divids this now well known territory from the oblivion in which it was involved prior to that year.
"The intrepid George Holt was afterwards murdered by Indians at Cook's Inlet, Alaska, in 1885, seven years after his successful journey from ocean to river."

Ontario Playground.

This year seven additional townships have been added by the Ontario Government to the area of Algonquin National Park, making the total acreage of this great pleasure resort over two and a half million acres.

Walkerton

Mr. Leo Buhlman, a Mildmay hotel keeper, appeared before Magistrate Rob. Richardson at Walkerton and was fined $50 and costs for selling liquor during prohibited hours. This was the fifti liquor conviction handed out in Walkerton last week, thus showing that License Inspector White is successfully prosecuting the infringements of the liquor law in this district.

A strange lady who came into Walkerton on Tuesday had a rather embarrasing experience on the main street here that day. A concert company which was playing "Peg of my Heart," in the opera house, Tuesday night, had offered $5 to the first one who discovered "Peggy" of the Peg of My Heart on the street. Seeing a strange and attractive lady promenading the pavement many concluded that she was the blossom they were looking for, and rushing up to her loudly shouted "You are Peggy of the Peg of My heart." The fact that she blushed a deep red made some conclude that they had captured the cash. Their hopes grew as her embarassment increased and she soon was surrounded by a regular mob all vociferously shouting that she was "The Peg of Their Heart." She was finally rescued by several men who saw that a mistake had been made, but it was not until the matter had been fully explained to her that she could be convinced that there wasn't a whole lot of batty people running around loose in Walkerton.—Bruce Herald and Times.

TRAP FISHING.

Point Pelee Has an Unusual Piscatorial Industry.

Fishing, as generally understood, means sitting on a muddy creek bank on a warm summer day, with a pole, some bait in a tin can and a lunch basket. The fish themselves are mere incidentals, as one rarely has expectations of actually landing anything larger than a sucker. To most people, in short, fishing is rather more of a recreation than a remunerative occupation.

Pole-fishing and tolling are practically the only methods of capturing fish with which the average angler is familiar. He may have heard of net, lake and deep-sea fishing, but they are pretty much of a mystery and too far removed from one's sphere of life to be of importance, anyway. Right here in Ontario, however, there is a method of fishing that ought to be of interest to every Canadian, and it is doubtful if very many people have ever heard of it. It might almost be called land-fishing, for there are no poles or hooks or nets or boats, or any of the paraphernalia usually associated with fish and fishing.

The method is what is known as the trap system, and the trap is a marsh, of several thousand acres extent, on Pelee Point, that long piece of land that runs out into Lake Erie down at the western end, near the Essex and Kent border. Years ago the whole of Pelee Point was one huge marsh, but about twelve years ago the Government drained a part of it and left only the deeper parts for the ducks, muskrats and carp which had taken possession of it as a natural haven.

The trap is built around the idea that fish will fight a current. In the spring of the year large schools of carp roam the lake coast in search of a stream or marsh in which to lay their eggs. They find these streams by coming in contact with the current of fresh water rushing out into the lake, and by nature they turn and rush up the stream as far as they can go, which is not very far sometimes, on account of the many dams man has built on nearly every stream of any size in the whole of older Canada.

The principle just desribed is utilized in this huge fish trap. In constructing the trap several years ago the first operation was to run a line of poles across the natural inlet to the marsh on which to string a wire net each spring, in order that the fish enticed in could not escape. The next was to dig a ditch four feet wide from the marsh to the lake.

A water-wheel is situated in the concrete main which leads from the lake to the marsh, and is used to create the current of water which leads the fish to think they have come to another stream. It is operated by a steam engine in a house next to the wheel, and when it looks like a good day to pump a few thousand fish into the marsh the steam is turned on, and the wheel begins to send a current of water, four feet wide by three deep, out into the lake. In a short time the fish find it and rush up the current, under the wheel and on into the marsh. Oftentimes the ditch will become full of fish, and many will flop out on the ground. When the day's work is done the water gate at the marsh end of the ditch is closed, the wheel stopped and operations are over until the morrow, when the wheel is started again and a few thousand more pumped in. Carp are the principal fish caught, as they are the only breed that do well in the semi-stagnant water, so catching operations are stopped at the end of the carp run, and the owners leave their catch for a month or two, until the price of fish rises, and then they are caught again as easily and under the same principle as they were caught from the lake.—J. C. Inman in The Toronto Globe.

Lightning Drew Picture.

The ability of lightning to draw pictures was demonstrated recently at the home of Mr. J. J. Armstrong, of Toronto.

The housemaid was busy cleaning the exterior of the front lower window when a storm commenced to gather and hurried with her work to complete it before seeking shelter indoors. Presently she came into Mrs. Armstrong and stated that there was a mark of her hand on the window and that she could not clean it off. An examination showed that the entire hand from the finger prints to the wrist had been impressed on the glass, and heavy rubbing, both from inside and outside failed to remove it. Seen in a dim ligh the picture is very plain, but loses some of its brilliancy in strong sunlight.

Edvina Among the Greatest.

Since her remarkable performance of the heroine's role in "L'Armore du Tre Re," Montemezzi's masterpiece, in Paris a few weeks ago, Paris music critics are now hailing a Canadian woman as one of the greatest of operatic singers.

Known to the operatic stage as Mme. Louise Edvina, a native of Vancouver, she was Miss Marie Louise Lucienne Juliette Martin before marriage. She first married James Buxton and now in private life is Hon. Mrs. Cecil Edwardes, sister-in-law of Lord Kensington. She has two daughters—Marie Bride Edwardes, who is 11 years old, and Lucienne Sibyl Grace Edwardes, 10 years.

Edmonton Grows.

Edmonton population is now over 72,315, according to the official census. The first count gives the total number of persons in the city who have registered as 72,315, but there are a few coming every day.

Last year the official result was given out as 67,243 and this year's census will show approximately from 5,000 to 5,100 of an increase over that of last year. The largest percentage of increase has been found on the southside of the river although there has been a decided increase on the north side.
