ON THE MAIN STREET

Main street, the north side, is undergoing a face lifting job. Stedman's store front added to the modern appearance of the street, as did the new Discount store. This week another modern store front has dawned on the horizon of the north side with the removal of the barricade in front of the former Walker Jewelry store soon to be opened by the Agnew Surpass.

It is worthy of note that a new front is to be installed at Brownies' Mens Wear store in the same block, a modern front which will be in keeping with modern merchandizing. It is also reported that the present Agnew Surpass store will be transformed into a modern store front for the Walkers Jewelry Store.

Glancing down the south side of the main street it is regrettable that there are two vacant Stores, and one fire-destroyed building, but it also of interest that very recently, outside contractors and architect have been noticed on Kent street, making a survey of the vacant premises, and it is understood that the owner of the vacant properties was in conference with the visiting business delegation.

It is also reported that the same group of business men are sizing up the possibility of transforming the Horn Woolen Mills into a modern apartment block. Lindsay is definitely on the march, and at the present time more new homes are required for prospective newcomers in the business and industrial field.
