Meeting the Salmon.

In British Columbia the Indians ceremoniously went to meet the first salmon and in flattering voices tried to win their favor by calling them all chiefs.

Every spring the Karaks used to dance for salmon. Meanwhile one of their number secluded himself in the mountains and fasted for ten days. Upon his return he solemnly approached the river, took the first salmon of the catch, ate some of it, and with the remainder lighted a sacrificial fire. The same Indians laboriously climbed the mountain top after the poles for the spearing booth, being convinced that if they were gathered where salmon were watching no fish would be caught.

To Keep Boys on Farm.

By taking steps to inaugurate a series of debates and concerts each year in connection with its social community work, the recently organized Lambton Farmers' Co-operative Association is hopeful of keeping the boys and young men of the county on the farms to a much greater extent than obtains at present.
