RAILWAY MATTERS.

From the Durham Chronicle.

At the request of a number of ratepayers the Mayor called a public meeting in the town hall, on Monday evening, to discuss the railway situation. About forty ratepayers assembled. The Mayor was called to the chair, and Mr. J. F. Mowat appointed Secretary. The chairman briefly explained the objects of the meeting, as he understood it, and called upon Mr. J. H. Hunter, M.P.P., as one of the instigators of the meeting to make some remarks.

Mr. Hunter said the object of the meeting was to learn the true state of the railway. The ratepayers were entitled to explanations as to the cause of the delay in completing the road, and expressed surprise that none of the directors were present. The delays were inexplicable to the general public. Before proceeding, however, he desired to correct any misapprehension in reference to the object of the meeting, it was not, he said, for the purpose of expressing indignation, but simply for the purpose of devising some means to assist the directors, and get some information, if possible, as to when we were likely to get regular trains. Some of the directors approved of the meeting. The meeting was certainly not for the purpose of censuring the directors, but simply as he said before to get information. The ballasting was to have been completed on the 1st September, then on the 15th and now people in Mount Forest state that the road will not be opened this winter. If he thought this was true he would close his storehouse at once. If the road was not going to be opened the people should know it. A deputation should be appointed to wait on the directors and urge upon them the necessity of getting the station grounds and approaches put in decent shape. The directors would no doubt pay attention to the requests of this meeting. Mr. Jackson had stated to him that evening that railway matters were in a very unsatisfactory state, this being the case we should know the nature of the trouble. It would be a serious matter indeed for the town if the road was not speedily opened, people were getting very anxious about the matter and were desirous of assisting the directors in every possible way. He then read an interesting paragraph from the Hanover post in which sympathy was extended and assistance proffered. Nobody appears to know, he said, how much ballasting yet remains to be done, some say half a mile, others a mile and a mile, and so on.

Mr. T. A. Harris stated there were three miles yet to be done, passed over the road on Friday last. He had got his information from train hands. He would, however, suggest that a couple of gentlemen be appointed by this meeting to go over the line to-morrow and learn the true state of affair and report to a meeting to-morrow evening.

Mr. Hunter said the company had an engineer and if he was not doing his duty he could be compelled to do so. In conclusion he would repeat that the meeting was not for the purpose of censuring but to help. He hoped the directors would lose no time in improving the station grounds. It would be impossible for hotel busses and other vehicles to march the station. The reports that the road would not be opened this winter originally emanated from Mount Forest, and it must be remembered that the contractor, solicitor, engineer and some of the most active directors lived there, which gave color to these reports.

Mr. Joshua Woodland, sr., thought the people of Durham were entitled to a plain answer in reference to matters in connection with the railway, as they had dealt liberally with the company. The store houses in town were empty, all fell up and it was no wonder people were getting impatient.

Mr. Parker, the only director present, explained that the contract was to have been completed by 1st September, a year after work was commenced, but it was extended to 15th Sept. As regards Mount Forest and Hanover towns, they should be treated with contempt. He was satisfied the Mount Forest directors were anxious to have the road completed. The delay was no doubt annoying, but he did not think there was any help for it. The directors had nothing to hide.

Mr. McDougall asked why the job at the station had not been let at the time it was advertised.

Mr. Parker replied that the tenders had all exceeded the estimate, and the matter was deferred as it was thought probably the Grand Trunk would attend to the matter.

Mr. N. McIntyre said that Mr. Dennison and himself had now the contract and were about to proceed with the work.

Mr. Hunter said our position was certainly a very humiliating one it just amounted to him as if Mr. Newman was allowed to do as he liked and the directors were afraid to tell him, here, finish your work or we will relieve you of the job. Mr. N. was not allowed to trifle with his other contracts, but he could do as he liked with this road The contractor was master of the situation. The company were now paying the various watchmen at the crossings and the job at the station would cost a considerable more now than if it had been let in good weather. The only reason he had heard for the delay in the ballasting was that Newman's men had all got drunk at the Mount Forest Fair. Probably they had not got sober yet. The contracter had broken his contract and should be looked after. He understood also, that the Government subsidy granted to the road between Durham and Mt. Forest had not yet been got, he did not know how this was but would see into the matter if the directors wished him to do so. The subsidy on the other line had been received right up to Chesly.

Mr. Burnet said he had told people that day that he could not buy more grain as he could not get it removed. and he felt very much humiliated at being compelled to tell them so. It was in the interest of the town that the road should be completed at once.

Mr. Woodland said they were very busy now fixing the farm crossings but in the summer when they were needed the farmers could not get them attended to.

Mr. Parker said it was very easy to find fault. The directors had worked hard, and if they had failed in getting the road completed earlier it was not their fault.

Mr. N. McKechnie said that as Mr. Hunter had tendered his best service he would suggest that Mr. H. and Mr. Woodland should go over the road and report

Mr. Hunter said he was going to Toronto in the morning and would make it a point to ascertain how much work there was yet to be done

It was then moved by Joshua Woodland, sr., seconded by Jos. F. Mowat: —That the interests of this town are seriously prejudiced by the railway remaining incomplete and it is the opinion of this meeting that no longer time should be allowed the contractor to complete the work than the 10th of Nov., and that the Board of Directors should be requested to notify the contractor that the work will be re-let unless completed by that time, and that a committee consiting of Messrs. Middaugh, D. Jackson and James Burnet be appointed to present this resolution to the President to-morrow and urge upon him the necessity of giving this resolution effect."—Carried.

At this juncture of the proceedings one of the railway conductors informed the meeting that it was expected the ballasting would be completed this week. The meeting then broke up.

ALMOST YOUNG AGAIN.

My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy inactive condition of the whole system; headache nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old. We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family." A lady in Providence, R. I.—Journal.

TRUST THE LITTLE ONES.

I call to mind to families that have grown up within my knowledge—two homes presided over by parents who were anxious to do right, and to rear their children to do right. In one of those homes the lock and key were put upon every door behind which cake, tart and sweetmeats were stored, and upon every drawer containing curiosities or trinckets. The good mother and sternly just father meant well—they meant to remove temptation from the path of their children—but what was the result? As the children came to the age of reflection, they were forcibly reminded of the fact that they were not trusted. If they were not trusted by their own parents who knew them well, of course they were not worthy of trust. They naturally accepted the situation; but just as naturally, their wits found work in circumventing the keepers of the hiden treasures. Fruit or pastry, accidently left exposed, was sure to disappear. If the culprit was found, he was punished. By and by the eldest of the children found false keys to fit the locks of the closet doors; and so it came to pass that systematic theiving became the order of the day.

In the other home, with the same number of children, nothing that could possibly excite the normal desire of a child was ever locked up or hidden.—From cellar to garret, all storing places of fruit, pastry and sweetmeats, were open and free. One of the very first ideas impressed upon the minds of the children was, that they were worthy of trust. And they were trusted. No false desires or appetites were created by concealing from them good and pleasant things. And so, being trusted, they grew up trustworthy; and the good mother of that household would as soon of thought of finding her child cutting its own fingers off as finding it using those fingers in stealing.

And who shall say how much of this early education is carried into the after-life, for weal or woe? Far more I believe than is generally considered.

There is a vast difference between needlessly setting temptation before the little ones, and a generous hearty trusting of them. And, again, there are exceptions to nearly all rules. I know a child with eyes so weak, and lungs so painfully sensitive, that he cannot bear the sunlight or the fresh air. Yet we believe sunlight and fresh air to be generally good for children — Kleptomania is not the normal condition of our little ones. If, perchance an unluck urchin is discovered to be absolutely afflicted with that pilfering disease, let the remedy of restraint be applied; but, in the name of love and mercy, do not administer the medicine to the dear child that is healthful,—it may be as dangerous as it is unjust. The first duty of a parent is to give and accept perfect truthfulness on the part of the children. It establishes self respect, and begets that proper sense of responsibility which carries with it perfect honesty in life. Trust is like faith; it awakens sincerity, and produces inward promptings which are but the reflections of an upright conscience.

HOW TO PRESERVE FAILING EYESIGHT.

The Magazine of Pharmacy gives the following rules for the treatment of the eyes for those who find their eyesight beginning to fail:

Sit in such a position as will allow the light to fall obliquely over the shoulder upon the page or sewing. Do not use the eyes for such purposes by any artificial light. Avoid the special use of the eyes in the morning before breakfast. Rest them while reading or sewing, or looking at small objects, and by looking at things at a distance or up to the sky; relief is immediately felt by so doing.

Never pick any collected matter from the eye lashes or corner of the eyes with the finger nails; rather moisten it with saliva and rub it away withe ball of the finger over the closed eye lids towards the nose; this carries off any excess of water into the nose itself by means of the little canal which leads into the nostril from each inner corner of the eye

Keep the feet always dry and warm, so as to draw any excess of blood from the other end of the body. Use eye glasses at first carried in the vest pocket attached to a guard, for they are instantly adjusted to the eye with very little trouble whereas, if common spectacles are used, such a process is required to get them ready that to save trouble the eyes are often strained to answer a purpose.

Wash the eyes abundantly every morning. If cold water is used, let it be flapped against the closed eyes with the fingers. not striking hard against the balls of the eyes. The moment the eyes feel tired, the very moment you feel conscious of an effort to read or sew, lay aside the book or needle, and take a walk for an hour, or employ yourself in some active exercise not requiring the close use of the eyes.

DESERVING OF PRAISE.

Too much cannot be expressed in favor of that unsurpassed remedy for coughs, colds, asthma, croup, sore throat, and all lung complaints. If you suffer from neglected colds, try Haggyard's Pectoral Balsam. The cost is trifling, only 25 cents.
