C. P. R. MILITARY CROSS HERO

HOW LIEUT. McARTHUR CAPTURED A TRENCH AND 45 GERMANS. DECORATED BY THE KING.

It was announced recently that Second-Lieut. William B. McArthur, of the 1st Battalion Royal Scots Fusiliers, second son of Mr. and Mrs. McArthur, of Danebury, Montem Road, New Malden, has been awarded the Military Cross for conspicuous gallantry at the Front. The deed for which he received the award is officially described as follows by the "Surrey Comet," of May 20th last:—

For conspicuous determination when in charge of a working party.

With twelve men he captured and brought back as prisoners over forty armed enemy.

The gallant officer, who is 22 years of age, returned on leave from France last week, and by Royal Command, attended at Buckingham Palace on Wednesday morning to receive his decoration at the hands of His Majesty the King, along with a number of other young officers.

The full story of the young officer's gallant deed may now be told—a deed in which he displayed a coolness and presence of mind which enabled him to extricate himself and his small party of men from a perilous position and at the same time capture as prisoners-of-war no fewer than 45 armed Germans!

In the early morning of March 27th it was decided to explode three mines in the St. Eloi salient, and Lieut. McArthur, with twenty men of the Royal Scots Fusiliers, were entrusted with some dangerous work in the vicinity of these mines. Before the Lieutenant and his men could return to safety the mines exploded and the contour of the ground was so altered by the explosions that in the darkness the party lost their way. As they were proceeding cautiously in what they thought was the direction of the British trenches, five figures suddenly appeared in front of them. Immediately on Lieut. McArthur challenging the strangers, "Who goes there?"—an illuminating shell burst and revealed the helmet of a German officer who was the leading man of the five.

"Halt!" shouted Lieut. McArthur, at the same time drawing his revolver and dropping on his knee. Two shots rang out in the darkness, and the German officer fell, mortally wounded; with the remaining three rounds an equal number of the officer's companions were accounted for. A corporal with the party then came up from behind, and Lieut. McArthur, telling the corporal to rest his rifle on his (the Lieutenant's) shoulder, the fifth man was disposed of.

While the German officer was lying on the ground he called for the "brave British officer" to come to him. Suspecting treachery, however, the officer not having been disarmed, Lieut. McArthur deemed it advisable not to comply with the request, and proceeded with his duties. As the call for the British officer was repeated, the corporal eventually went to ascertain what the German officer wanted. On reaching him the German took an iron cross off his breast, and handed it to the corporal with the request that it should be given to his officer.

Lieut. McArthur then made his way cautiously ahead, and to his surprise came upon a trench full of Germans! Maintaining his presence of mind, however, he turned to his handful of men, which now numbered six, and shouted, "Come on, my lads, give them a volley!" The click of the rifles proved sufficient for the Huns, who shouted, "No shoot, no shoot, camarade," and threw up their hands in token of surrender.

With an empty revolver in one hand and a cane in the other, the brave young officer advanced to the edge of the trench and made signs to the Germans to get out of it, which they gladly did—45 of them, all fully armed! The remainder of Lieut. McArthur's little party now came up, and the Germans were disarmed, made prisoners and marched to the British trenches.

Dawn now commencing to break, the advance of the little party with their prisoners became extremely dangerous, and on one occasion they had a narrow escape of being shot down by the men in the British trenches, being mistaken for an attacking party of the enemy. However, this danger was ultimately averted and the party arrived safely at the British trenches with their prisoners, and their appearance naturally caused no little surprise.

Lieut. McArthur was connected with the Passenger Department of the Canadian Pacific Railway in London, Eng.

The Canadian Manufacturers association adopted a resolution declaring for immediate registration.

The plan in the county of Grey is to raise $100,000 for the Canadian Patriotic Fund. It is proposed to do this by the county council making a special levy. In respect to this matter it is interesting and gratifying to know that the initiative move toward securing this large amount of money came from the town of Owen Sound which but last week subscribed nearly $50,000 and will in addition have to pay one-eighth of the $100,000 by taxation. It shows a fine spirit, a keen interest in the boys in khaki, and displays a sense of gratitude that is admirable.—Collingwood Bulletin.

If Canada goes bankrupt, and is only able to pay 10 cents on the dollar the cause will be this rural mail delivery. It is a splendid thing, this going out to the road and getting the mail. The farmer has the town man all beaten so far as comfort is concerned, and everyone is glad to see him get the good things of this life, but it is the everlasting growth of the system that is going to put Canada on the bank, and the revenue obtained from some routes in five years wouldn't pay the cost for one year. However, while the boon is being passed around it is a queer place which does not want it, and every member is anxious to secure all he can for his riding. The rural mail delivery is the greatest thing the government ever did for the farmers, but it is expensive.—Bruce Herald.

On a soldier's shoulder you notice the letters, I N F. Few people know the meaning of these initials, it being a secret of the soldiers. If you don't tell the person who borrows your paper we'll tell. They stand for "I Never Flirt," but watch him when he gets off duty providing he isn't a married man—and some of the latter think the initials represent "I Need Fondling."—Ex.

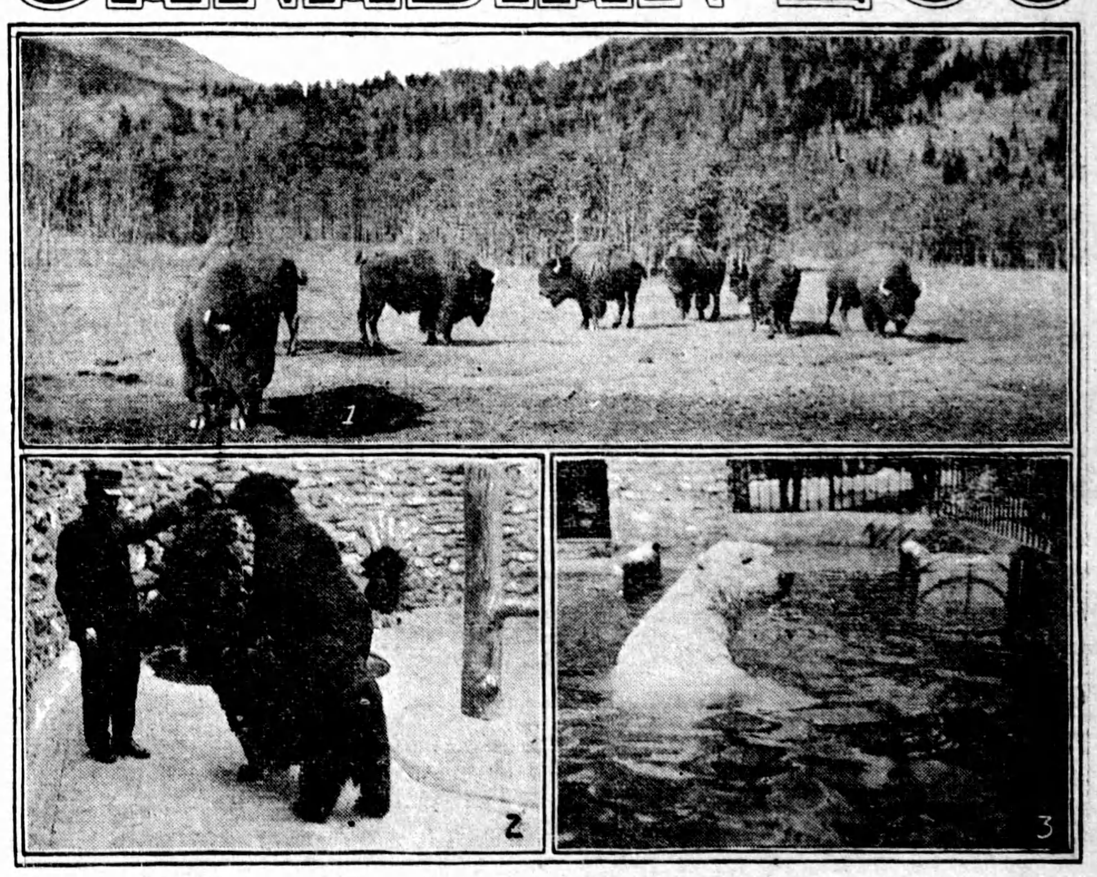
CANADIAN ZOO



(1) Specimens of Banff Buffalo. (2) Three Good Fellows. (3) A Banff Polar Bear.

In the Canadian Zoo at Banff, Alberta, within the Rocky Mountains Park and along the C.P.R., both at the zoo adjoining the museum and out at the animal paddock about two miles east of the town, there are fine specimens of buffalo, moose, elk, deer, Persian sheep, Angora goats, bear, wolves, coyotes, lynx, badgers, martens, and a number of the smaller animals.

Six yak, originally presented to the Dominion Government by the Duke of Bedford, were tendered by the former to the Rocky Mountains Park. They were brought to Banff from the experimental farm at Brandon, and are now in a healthy and flourishing condition. Their quaint appearance, causing them to be objects of much interest. The park commissioner suggests that it would be an interesting experiment to attempt to cross one of the buffalo bulls with one of the yak cows.

In the Zoo, adjacent to the museum, may be seen the following animals of the Rocky Mountains:

Black bears, Cinnamon bears, grizzly bears, red foxes, kit foxes, timber wolves, coyotes, lynx, American panther (or mountain lion), badgers, pine martens, porcupines, mountain gopher, albino gophers, marmots, fox squirrels, black squirrels, Canada geese, hawks, golden eagles, black-headed eagles, owls, pelican.

The following animals, from distant parts of the world, may be seen in the Zoo:

Ringtail monkey, rheses monkeys, polar bear, raccoons, orange squirrel, silver pheasants, golden pheasants, Amherst pheasants, reeves pheasants, common pheasants, pea fowls.
