PURPOSE OF COMMUNITY CLUB

The Georgetown Community Club was organized to enable those who are unemployed to help themselves. Their first effort was to organize an Odd Jobs Bureau, through which by phoning 15 Georgetown, men might be secured for odd jobs.

The Community Club undertakes to do four things through the Odd Jobs Bureau:—

1. To secure as many odd jobs as possible.

2. To distribute them as fairly and as equitably as possible among all the unemployed men.

3. To secure reasonable pay for the work and see that it is paid.

4. To discipline its own members who are sent to these odd jobs, if they do not render satisfactory service. We hope that everybody will recognize that they are not engaging any authorised Community Club help unless it is done through the proper official channels by phoning to 15 Georgetown. Any unemployed man who secures odd jobs or contracts through his own efforts is not representing the Community Club.

This explanation has been found necessary because one of the members of the Club arranged privately to do a job for someone in Georgetown. His services have not proved satisfactory but the Community Club has no responsibility for the matter as they were never consulted in the matter.

When you have an odd job phone 15.

Every unemployed man in Georgetown should register and so strengthen the hands of the Club in its work.

"The Ottawa Spotlight"

A WEEKLY REVIEW OF NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, March 13th—Just to cap a momentous session, a couple of Liberal members would like Sir Herbert Holt, Sir Charles Gordon and other super-financiers called before a committee of the House to explain the relationship between the banks and the depression, the bank and government speculation on the Winnipeg wheat pit, the banks and the C.P.R. In other words, another Stevens inquiry, only projected towards finance instead of industry. I doubt whether they will get it. It would give Ottawa and the country lots to talk about if it came off.

The Stevens probe slackened down a bit, although we had a couple of witnesses last week who were ready to describe the big departmental mail-order and chain stores as monsters devouring the prosperity of the country and driving workers down to slavery. So far nobody seems to be ready to say who it was drove the farmer, the fisherman and the lumberman down to bankruptcy or a miserable pittance. Everybody must know that a considerable percentage of those latter classes are as badly off as the laboring and craftsman classes in Canada. Did mass buying of wheat, or fish, or lumber, bring about the collapse in these industries? However, the inquiry isn't finished yet. No doubt before it concludes it will have answered a lot more questions.

Excluding Garnet Wheat

I hear, unofficially but I think reliably, that the British miller has persuaded the Canadian government that mixing Garnet wheat in with Marquis, Red Fife and other standard varieties is hurting the Canadian export trade in the Mother country, and that in future Garnet wheat is to be excluded from No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3 Northern. The British millers are willing to buy Garnet for blending, but they want to know what they are getting. They don't want a mixture of Marquis and Garnet.

Perhaps even before this is in print, the government may have introduced its agricultural marketing legislation. I hear that it is drastic and impressive, and that wheat as well as other commodities are to be subjected to some marketing regulations above and beyond what is now in existence.

Saving on Interest

The federal government borrowed some money recently, fifteen millions or so. They only paid 3.85 to 3.12 per cent interest, which is quite a saving from the four or five they have had to pay, and from the seven or eight you and I have to pay (when we can get it at all). The interesting thing is that instead of borrowing from the banks in the usual manner, the government was able to sell treasury bills of $100,000 denomination to other interests. In other words, to get away from a bank monopoly of short-term credit. Hitherto there has been no short-term money market to speak of in Canada. This seems to be the beginning of an effort to start one.

This new bureau of translators has taken up four or five days of the time of the House. Somewhere or other opposing members have discovered a vital bi-lingual issue in the proposal to pool all departmental translators in one bureau. I'm afraid the rank and file of Canadians won't be deeply impressed by the issue. Not with such appalling conditions in the country awaiting swift and constructive action.

Senate Busy Again

The Upper Chamber has re-introduced Canada's own shipping legislation. It was made possible when the statute of Westminster freed Canada from the Colonial Laws Validity Act and other restrictive British legislation. We got started on it a year ago, but it was not properly drafted and parts had to be re-written. When enacted it will give Canada its own shipping legislation, unpowered by an imperial statute. Meantime a suspensory clause keeps us under the protection of British law. The Hospital sweepstake Bill ran into some tangles, and will probably run into a lot more before it is law.
