Mr. John McMillan

MR. J. McMILLAN, who has initiated many notable improvements since he became General Manager of the C.P.R. Telegraphs eighteen months ago, has just decided to inaugurate an important service entirely new to Canada over the hundred and ten thousand miles of wire under his immediate control, namely, the day letter which may now be sent between points in Canada on the Canadian Pacific system at a rate very much reduced as compared with the usual commercial rush telegram. Mr. McMillan is convinced that many of those who send telegrams would be quite satisfied if these arrived on the same day, whereas a proportion of the cost of the rush telegram is due to the cost of speedy delivery. The day letter of fifty words will be rated at one and a half times the cost of a regular rush message of ten words and can still bring an answer the same day, which is as quick as many people desire. There are sixteen hundred C.P.R. telegraph offices throughout Canada, at each of which the new service will be in force, so that this will be a Dominion-wide service stretching from Louisburg, Nova Scotia, to Victoria, B.C. Messages will be taken in either French or English, code words not being permissible.

Mr. John McMillan owes his success to a genial and tactful disposition which made him one of the most popular C.P.R. officials in the West, where his work centred until he was called to the head office in Montreal last year. Although less than fifty years of age, he joined the C.P.R. at its inception, working on construction in 1883. After acting for a number of years as operator at Donald, B.C., he became Inspector of Telegraphs at Winnipeg in 1902. Assistant Superintendent in 1906. Superintendent at Calgary in 1907. General Superintendent at Winnipeg in 1913, and finally manager of the whole telegraph system in March, 1915.

The Popular Laurentians

(1) Lac Marois, Shawbridge. (2) Mixed Bathing (3) Quiet Fishing Pool Near Val Morin.

LOVERS of beautiful mountain and valley scenery towering rocks, thick forests, pleasant glades, flower-clad vales and plains, rushing and placid rivers, roaring waterfalls and babbling streams could not do better than to select the Laurentian Mountains reached by the Canadian Pacific, as their holiday resort. So prettily situated are all the spots where the holiday-makers make their headquarters that it is embarassing to choose the one that might be best suited to the taste of the individual. But all are enchanting, from Shawbridge—the first of them—to Mount Laurier—the last. Within easy reach of any of the resorts there is excellent trout and bass fishing to be had. The rivers and lakes are clear and sand-bottomed generally, and are well suited to the requirements of the swimmer and bather. Row boating, motor boating, and canoeing are favorite pastimes, and on a fine calm evening it is exhilarating to sit by the waters and listen to the laughter and merry chat of the parties who are on the waters. Golfing can be had at Ste Agathe, Ste Margaret and Val Morin. Tennis courts are attached to some of the better class hotels. Those who love mountain climbing can have a variety of spheres for this form of activity, to select from and the expense of a holiday in the Laurentians is comparatively small.

Last week, Malcom McCormick, Glenroaden, was using his binder near the road when a car in charge of Mr. John Derstein, Elmwood, was passing. The horses took fright and ran away throwing Mr. McCormick off. His brother, Angus, near by, made an attempt to stop them by getting in front of them, and in so doing got into a position that might have cost him his life. He was dragged on the tongue and would soon have had to give up had not one of the horses fallen, and he got free. He received cuts on the head and other parts of the body requiring fifteen stitches, but no bones broken. He is getting along nicely, but wants no more such rides.—Review.

THE THREE MUSKETEERS

THESE three Pals of the C.P.R. staff in London, England (reading from left to right: R. J. Harden, Passenger Department; E. G. Moore, Advertising Department; and P. T. Roberts, Management Department), at the Outbreak of War lost no time in offering their services for their King and Country, and within eight days of the Declaration of War they had all been posted to the 24th County of London Regiment (The Queen's).

They trained together, and early in 1915 they crossed together to France. They shared together the privations of trench warfare in the early months of that year, and in the great battles in which their Regiment took part; but in May all three were wounded, Harden and Roberts only slightly, but Moore, in the Givenchy fight, was so seriously injured that he was invalided to England and since his recovery has, to his great regret, been fit for Home service only. Harden and Roberts had rejoined their Regiment by June and a month later Harden, who had been promoted to Lance-Corporal, was again hit, this time very seriously and since then remained in Wharncliffe Hospital, Sheffield, where he has undergone so many operations that he is looked upon as a wonder by his doctors and a darling by his nurses and lady visitors. Though no longer able to take his part in the strenuous work at the front, he has yet had plenty of opportunity of showing his possession of one of the most soldierly virtues—patient endurance. It is hoped that after fifteen months in hospital he will soon be able to return to the service of the Company.

Roberts, the only remaining member of the trio, was promoted Corporal at the end of 1915, and news now comes of his promotion to the rank of Sergeant and the award to him of the Military Medal "for bravery in the field," in an action on May 23rd last. In decorating him General Sir Henry Wilson—the Corps Commander—stated the award was given "For gallantly leading an attack on a flank under very heavy fire, and directing his men in operations for four hours after being wounded." During these operations he was wounded, but has again rejoined his Regiment, and seems to be under the impression that he has not yet done all his bit.

DUKE AS INDIAN CHIEF

(1) At the Investiture. (2) The Duke in Full Indian Regalia. (3) The Duke Speaking to Princess Patricia.

DURING the five years of his Governor-Generalship, nothing has given His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, more pleasure than the ceremony which made him Chief of the Stony Indians. This ceremony took place at Banff, where the Duke and Duchess, together with Princess Patricia, spent a delightful holiday this Summer.

The Stony Indians, who were once a distinctly warlike tribe, and some of whose exploits form the background to Ralph Connor's "Sun Dance Patrol," are now good citizens and hold an Annual Sports Day at the great tourist resort in July. The picturesque garb of a Stony Indian Chief admirably suits the fine figure and strong profile of the Duke.

Princess Patricia found particular pleasure this Summer in riding her Mounted Police pony "Dandy" along the mountain trails which radiate from Banff through the passes and over the precipitous sides of the surrounding mountains. The Duke himself spent much of his time in fishing for mountain, cutthroat and devil trout, but the largest fish of the season was caught by Miss Yorke, lady in waiting to the Duchess of Connaught, who landed a monster of no less than nine pounds. The sulphur water swimming pool attached to the C.P.R. hotel was a source of great delight to the Royal party, and many amusing snapshots not for publication, are being taken back to England. The many visits of the Connaughts to Banff have resulted in this becoming the chief social centre of the West during the summer months. The Americans who have the money to travel have deserted their own National Parks so that they could be nearer to a real Duke.
