Everybody
Bulk beer
it give comfort.
Druggists and Sleep

Yam-B

IMPERIAL UNDRY
MANUFACTURERS OF
MPERIAL HOT W
D STEAM BOILER
Machine and Fo
Work a Specialty.
paid for Merap

EPAIRS
d to at the
NE SHOP.
TROPLATING

NHED.
Limited,

for bread trial. If you ou'll get sat-one or the bread flour.
it.

ed, Toronto
103 ion.

hibition
tember 11th
EM ALL ctures atest.
ever shown in Goods maned while you

neath the Waves — between ought and a new fireworks—
FIREWORKS

OATS
ROW men their their their ways.
naiwomen their ret the what Don't
You are in the t habit
our life are sufsuits of if your ed from and you breaking misspent before ble.

DEBILITY,
ADDER Dis-
to call, write
EDY
Mich.
essed to our
in Windsor, Institute in which are nes only.

Waterglass, large can 15 cents.
MACKENZIE'S
The People's Druggist. MILTON.

VOLUME 52. No. 9

BANK OF H

Capital Paid Up	$ [illegible]
Reserve and Undivided Profits	[illegible]
Total Assets	40,000,000

The Bank of Hamilton has made saving simple—by eliminating all unnecessary Bank formality.

An account may be opened with the deposit of one dollar—even so small an amount will act as an incentive to steady saving, and will quickly grow to a sum worth while.

H. P. WANZER, Agent, Milton. Head Office, HAMILTON.

COUNTY OF HALTON
LOCAL COURTS CALENDAR
FOR 1911

Place of Sitting	Day of Sitting	Hours of Opening	Jan.	Mar.	May	July	Sept.	Nov.	1912 Jan.	Mar.
1 Milton	Friday	10.00 a.m.	13	10	12	14	15	10	12	8
2 Oakville	Tuesday	12.30 p.m.	10	7	9	11	12	7	9	5
3 Georgetown	Wednesday	10.00 a.m.	11	8	10	12	13	8	10	6
4 Acton	Thursday	10.15 a.m.	12	9	11	13	14	9	11	7
5 Campbellville	Saturday	10.00 a.m.	14	11	13	15	16	11	13	9
6 Burlington	Monday	11.00 a.m.	9	6	8	11	11	6	8	4

NAMES AND ADDRESSES OF CLERKS—1, Wm. Paulin, Milton; 2, Arthur Hilmer, Oakville; 3, Chas. C. Roe, Georgetown; 4, R. J. McNabb, Acton; 5, Wm. Fraser, Campbellville; 6, Edward Donkin, Burlington.

General Sessions of the Peace and County Court Sittings, with or without Jury, 13th June and 12th December on opening days at 1 p.m.

County Court Sittings, without Jury, 4th April and 3rd October, and so often at other times as may be required for the despatch of business.

County Court Sittings—formerly Terms—9th January, 3rd April, 3rd July and 2nd October.

Audit of Criminal Justice Accounts, 5th January, 4th April, 4th July and 3rd October.

By order W. I. DICK, Milton,
Clerk of the Peace.

Canadian Champion

PUBLISHED
EVERY THURSDAY MORNING
At the Office of Publication,
MAIN ST., MILTON, ONT.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION—$1.50 a year. $1.00 if paid in advance.

To SUBSCRIBERS—No paper will be stopped until all arrears are paid, except at the option of the proprietor. A post-office notice to discontinue is not sufficient.

To subscribers in the United States $2.00 a year, $1.50 if paid in advance.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Space	1 Yr.	6 mo.	3 mo.	1 mo.
1 Column	$60 00	$35 00	$20 00	$7 00
1 Column	35 00	20 00	12 00	5 00
1 Column	20 00	12 00	7 00	2 50
1 Column	12 00	7 00	4 00	1 50

Business Cards of ten lines or less, $5.00 per annum. The number of lines to be reckoned by the space occupied, measured by a scale of solid nonpareil.

Advertisements without special instructions inserted until forbid, and charged accordingly.

Any special Notice, the object of which is to promote the pecuniary benefit of any individual company, institution, or fund, will be considered an advertisement, and charged accordingly.

Notices of births, deaths and marriages, 25c. each.

Transient advertisements, 10 cents per line, except those of lost, strayed, stolen, and wants, which will be inserted at 50 cents for the first insertion, and 25 cents for each subsequent insertion.

WM. PANTON,
Editor and Proprietor.

LEGAL.

C. E. HOLLINRAKE, B.A.,
Barrister, Solicitor, Notary Public. Money to Loan. Office: Over Bank of Hamilton, Milton.

WILLIAM I. DICK,
(County Crown Attorney)
Barrister, Solicitor and Conveyancer. Money to loan. Office: Court House, Milton, Ont.

VICTOR CHISHOLM,
Barrister, Solicitor, &c., Notary Public. Money to loan at lowest rates. Office—next door to Bank of Hamilton, Milton.

J. W. ELLIOTT, B.A.,
Barrister, &c., Notary Public. Money to loan. Office: First door east of Messrs. Winn & Co's shoe factory, Main-st., Milton.

E. W. BOYD,
Barrister, Solicitor, Notary, Conveyancer, &c., 25 Toronto St., Toronto. Money to loan.

DENTAL.

B. GOLLOP, L.D.S., D.D.S.
DENTIST. Honor graduate Toronto University. Office: Dewar's Block, upstairs.

T. T. HARRIS, L.D.S.,
DENTIST, Oakville, will visit Milton on the last Wednesday of each month. Office: Bennett House.

MEDICAL.

H. A. McCOLL, M.B.,
Physician, and Surgeon, Coroner. Office hours, to 9 a.m., 12 to 2 p.m., and 6 to 8 p.m. Office, two doors east of Bank of Hamilton, Milton.

MARSHALL E. GOWLAND, M.A., M.B.
M.C.P. & S.O.
Honor Graduate and Silver Medalist of Toronto University.
OFFICE and residence, Corner of Main and Chisholm sts., Milton.

Private Funds to loan on good farm security at 5 per cent. Interest payable yearly or half-yearly.
WILLIAM I. DICK,
Barrister, Milton.

Church Directory.

METHODIST CHURCH
REV. D. S. HOUCK, Pastor.
Sunday Services: 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.
Sunday School and Bible Class: 2.30 p.m.
Epworth League: Monday, at 8 p.m.
Prayer Meeting: Wednesday, at 8 p.m.
Pastor's Class: Friday, at 7.30 p.m.
W. M. S.: First Monday of the month at 3 p.m.
Ladies' Aid: Last Monday of the month at 3 p.m.

KNOX CHURCH
REV. W. M. MCKAY, Minister.
Sunday Services: 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.
Sunday School: 2.30 p.m. Judge Gorham's Bible Class in Church at 2.45 p.m.
Prayer Meeting: Wednesday, at 7.30 p.m.
W.F.M.S. meets on the second Wednesday of every month at 3 p.m.
The Mission Band meets on the second Wednesday of every month at 4.30 p.m.

GRACE CHURCH
REV. G. MCQUILLIN, Rector.
Sunday Services: 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.
Sunday School: 4.30 p.m.
Holy Communion: 1st Sunday of each month at mid-day and 3rd Sunday at 8 a.m.

ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH
REV. FATHER SAVAGE.
MILTON AND TRAFALGAR—2nd Sunday, 8.30 and 11.00 alternately; commencing 2nd Sunday of January with Mass in Milton at 8.30.

Travellers' Guide.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY
GOING EAST.
6.57 a.m. (flag). 7.25 a.m. 10.23 a.m.
*2.55 p.m. 5.30 p.m. 8.15 p.m.
GOING WEST.
8.43 a.m. 9.04 a.m. 3.33 p.m. 7.07 p.m.
8.25 p.m.
—SUNDAY—
West 9.04 a.m., 8.25 p.m. East 6.57 a.m., 8.15 p.m.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY
(H. & N. W. Division.)
GOING NORTH. GOING SOUTH.
7.45 a.m. 4.45 p.m. 10.25 a.m. 8.35 p.m.

1911
NEW
WALL PAPERS
Canadian and American
The Finest Shown in Milton, from 5c. to $3.00 per roll.
Leathers, Burlaps (dyed or oil coated), also fine samples of Mouldings—in fact, all kinds of fancy decorations.
LET ME CALL AND SHOW YOU MY SAMPLES.
FRANK PEAREN,
Art Decorator

60 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
Trade Marks
Designs
Copyrights &c.
Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Oldest agency for securing patents.
Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.
A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Clubbing Offer
With Champion—
Daily Globe $4.25
Mail and Empire 4.00
Weekly Globe 2.25

The Cableman
AN EXCITING PRESENT-DAY ROMANCE
—BY—
WEATHERBY CHESNEY

Supplied Exclusively in Canada by The British & Colonial Press Service, Limited.

"You are a strange child, Elsa," she said. "I have not the slightest claim on your affection, or even on your services now; and I warn you that I don't propose, by any sudden repentance or reformation, to try to establish that claim. Still, I admit that I shall be glad to have you. My head is buzzing badly, and I think I am feverish. At my years a woman can't finish an exciting day by tumbling into a lake and being left unconscious on the shore to drain, without suffering for it. Perhaps it is nothing worse than a chill, but if I hadn't felt really ill, you wouldn't have found me here. I should have been off in pursuit of my vanished seventy per cent.! You will let her stay, Mr. Scarborough?"

"Yes," said Scarborough. "And meanwhile I will try to recover the seventy per cent., and the thirty per cent. with it!"

"Quite so. But not for me. You needn't smile, young man; I fully recognize that for the present I am defeated. Elsa, if you will help me, I will go to bed in the store-room of yams and maize, which is the best guest-chamber which this inn affords. What a handicap it is to be old, and a woman! Good-night, gentlemen. It may surprise you to learn that I wish you success. I grieve for the loss of my seventy per cent., but I should grieve more if I thought that Gillies had got away safe with his thirty!"

Two hours later Scarborough and Scott were standing on the sea-shore with Varney, looking out over the water towards the Ring-Rock. Darkness had fallen, but a bright moon sent long quivering flashes from the swell of the waters, and shone upon a curious white cloud which lay upon the sea about half a mile out.

"It is the new inlet which Davis spoke of," said Varney. "That cloud of steam has been rising continuously from it all the time that I have been here, and if you put your hand in the water, you will feel how warm it is."

"There is something black out there beyond," said Scott.

"Yes, it's a schooner. She has been there or thereabouts for the last three hours, but she doesn't show any lights. Gillies' boat is lying at the back of the headland there."

"No, it isn't!" exclaimed Scarborough suddenly. "It has just put out to sea, and is making for the schooner! Come on!"

They ran Elsa's boat into the water and jumped aboard. Scarborough and Varney took the oars, and Scott steered. There was no wind for sailing, and Gillies' boat had only a single occupant. With two oars against his two sculls they should be able to catch him before he reached the orange schooner.

Presently Scott shouted:—

"He is making straight for the cloud of steam, and the steamer is standing in towards him!"

"Then follow him! He hopes to dodge us in the mist."

A minute later Scott stood up with a yell.

"Hold her hard! For heaven's sake, stop her! He's done for!"

There was a dull roar from the sea ahead. A cloud of steam shot hissing into the air, and a heavy wave rolled towards them. They held the nose of the boat to meet it as it came, and rode over it in safety. But the water which came overboard from the wave's crest was hot—hot enough to scald where it splashed upon them!

Their boat rocked in the heavy broken swell, which followed, and a warm steam closed around them and shut out the stars.

"A submarine eruption!" said Scott, in an awed voice. "It rose right under him. He's gone!"

CHAPTER XXVII.
Bumpers to the Brides!

"It was a horrible night, sir," said Val B. Montague, with a shudder. "You may be thankful you were not there to see. The mess had been mashed—absolutely and literally boiled! And his flesh—ugh!"

"It was an awful death," said Scott. "I witnessed it, you know. Horace had promised that I should be in at the death, but we did not think that the words would be interpreted in so literal a sense."

"I understand that your own escape was a narrow one."

"A matter of a hundred yards, or less," said Scott. "As it was, the hot steam nearly finished us. Where was the body found?"

"In the harbor of Ponta Delgada. The tide brought it to within a cable's length of the Sea-Horse. Sambo and I went out with a boat and secured it. If you remember that seven days have elapsed, and that the flesh had been literally cooked by that eruption of boiling water—faugh! I can't describe it! You will understand. The diamonds were found in a tin case in his pocket."

"So I heard. What is going to be done with them?"

"I believe they are going to be sent home."

"To be made up? For whom?"

"For nobody, sir. They will be sold, and the proceeds will be used to relieve, as far as is possible, the distress and unmerited suffering which the failure of the firm of Carrington and Varney caused in countless homes in England. That this should be done is the wish of every person, except one, who has any concern in the matter at all. Scarborough says he would sooner see the things cast into the water from which the dead body of Gillies brought them. I honor him for that decision, sir, and I should unhesitatingly say the same thing myself."

"Who is the one person who objects?"

"Who do you imagine it is? There can only be one person."

"Miss de la Mar," said Scott. "After all, she has every right to object, since the things were bought with her money in the first instance. Scarborough is a good chap, and I've promised to be his best man when the time comes, but it seems to me he's talking nonsense when he spouts about throwing the diamonds into the sea rather than let his bride wear them. They're not his to throw, or his bride's either. They are Mona's, and I shall take the liberty of pointing that out to him."

Montague laughed.

"Your indignation is generous," he said, "and in Miss de la Marr's name I thank you for it. But it is not she who objects; it is Mrs. Carrington."

"Oh," said Scott, "that doesn't matter. I don't care a rap about her. But I don't see why that poor girl should be defrauded of her inheritance just because you and Scarborough think it is a fine thing to do the noble generosity business with someone else's diamonds. It's rot, you know, Montague!"

Val B. Montague laughed again, but did not answer. Then he looked up with a curious, half-bashful, half-exultant expression on his face, and said:

"I didn't mean anyone to know yet, but I'll tell you. I said just now that Scarborough would object to his bride wearing those stones, and that I sympathized with his feeling. I sympathize with it so much that if my bride wanted to wear them, I should forbid her."

"What a that got to do with it? You haven't got a bride."

"Exactly what I mean. I admired a pretty girl the moment I set eyes on her, and she's engaged to be married, and so I'm bound to be miserable! I had been absolutely duped by Mr. Scott, swindled in fact, and I think that I am at this moment the happiest dupe in the island of San Miguel. I don't except the two younger lovers, Varney and Scarborough!"

"Then the fraud was not serious," asked Scott laughing.

Montague became very grave.

"It was, sir! I was led to believe that I was offering marriage to a lady who, if not absolutely penniless, was at any rate not rich. She is preposterously rich, and she has been aware of the fact for three months. She had not the slightest need of my assistance."

"But it seems that she had need of you."

"She is good enough to tell me that she has; and on the evidence she offers I am inclined to be vain enough to believe the statement. As I told you just now, I am the happiest unfeathered animal in the island. But of course it is on false pretences."

"Well, I shouldn't let that worry you," said Scott laughing.

Montague sighed profoundly.

"I don't," he admitted dolefully. "That is what I find somewhat distressing. I am marrying a rich woman, and if I were ashamed of myself on that account, I should think better of my own character. But Jehoshaphat, sir! there is no room for any emotion but joy in this contract! I can't feel sorry. I could jump up now and kiss that waiter! Jehoshaphat! Wouldn't he stare!"

"Do it," said Scott.

"No, sir! I should make myself ridiculous, and Mona dislikes my doing that more than is necessary. Have I told you that the repairs to the Sea-Horse are finished, and that she will be ready for sailing the day after to-morrow?"

"What are you going to do with her? Sell?"

"No, sail."

"But you won't stick to that kind of life now!"

"Why not, sir, if I like it and my wife likes it? We are going to finish the tour as advertised, and be married at the end of it. After that we shall probably go into the same line of business on a larger scale. I think of having a fleet. I don't consider because my wife happens, fortunately or unfortunately, to be rich, that there is any reason why I should be idle for the rest of my life. Besides, for the present tour I am under contract to my troupe."

"You are losing one of them, aren't you? Varney's wedding is to-morrow."

"Quite so, and a very charming bride he is to have. But you are wrong in thinking that I shall lose him. The honeymoon is going to be spent on board the Sea-Horse; Varney will perform as usual; his wife will be usefully employed in learning the duties of a chaperon; and at the end of the tour they will return to San Miguel, and Phil will grow pine-apples in partnership with his father-in-law. The idea is quaint, perhaps. I am given to understand that it was the lady's."

"Muriel Davis proposed to go on tour with a circus company, and on her honeymoon, too!" cried Scott. "Impossible! And as for chaperoning you and Mona, why, she doesn't consider you respectable!"

Val B. Montague smiled.

"I am told that she was somewhat prejudiced against us," he said. "She has chosen this method of testing the truth of her theories, and her father agrees with me that it is a very sensible method, too. She is a very charming girl, but between ourselves, I believe her father thinks she will make a better wife to my excellent [illegible] What d'you mean?"

"Exactly what I say. I admired a pretty girl the moment I set eyes on her, and she's engaged to be married, and so I'm bound to be miserable! I had been absolutely duped by Mr. Scott, swindled in fact, and I think that I am at this moment the happiest dupe in the island of San Miguel. I don't except the two younger lovers, Varney and Scarborough!"

"Then the fraud was not serious," asked Scott laughing.

Montague became very grave.

"It was, sir! I was led to believe that I was offering marriage to a lady who, if not absolutely penniless, was at any rate not rich. She is preposterously rich, and she has been aware of the fact for three months. She had not the slightest need of my assistance."

"But it seems that she had need of you."

"She is good enough to tell me that she has; and on the evidence she offers I am inclined to be vain enough to believe the statement. As I told you just now, I am the happiest unfeathered animal in the island. But of course it is on false pretences."

"Well, I shouldn't let that worry you," said Scott laughing.

Montague sighed profoundly.

"I don't," he admitted dolefully. "That is what I find somewhat distressing. I am marrying a rich woman, and if I were ashamed of myself on that account, I should think better of my own character. But Jehoshaphat, sir! there is no room for any emotion but joy in this contract! I can't feel sorry. I could jump up now and kiss that waiter! Jehoshaphat! Wouldn't he stare!"

"Do it," said Scott.

"No, sir! I should make myself ridiculous, and Mona dislikes my doing that more than is necessary. Have I told you that the repairs to the Sea-Horse are finished, and that she will be ready for sailing the day after to-morrow?"

"What are you going to do with her? Sell?"

"No, sail."

"But you won't stick to that kind of life now!"

"Why not, sir, if I like it and my wife likes it? We are going to finish the tour as advertised, and be married at the end of it. After that we shall probably go into the same line of business on a larger scale. I think of having a fleet. I don't consider because my wife happens, fortunately or unfortunately, to be rich, that there is any reason why I should be idle for the rest of my life. Besides, for the present tour I am under contract to my troupe."

"You are losing one of them, aren't you? Varney's wedding is to-morrow."

"Quite so, and a very charming bride he is to have. But you are wrong in thinking that I shall lose him. The honeymoon is going to be spent on board the Sea-Horse; Varney will perform as usual; his wife will be usefully employed in learning the duties of a chaperon; and at the end of the tour they will return to San Miguel, and Phil will grow pine-apples in partnership with his father-in-law. The idea is quaint, perhaps. I am given to understand that it was the lady's."

"Muriel Davis proposed to go on tour with a circus company, and on her honeymoon, too!" cried Scott. "Impossible! And as for chaperoning you and Mona, why, she doesn't consider you respectable!"

Val B. Montague smiled.

"I am told that she was somewhat prejudiced against us," he said. "She has chosen this method of testing the truth of her theories, and her father agrees with me that it is a very sensible method, too. She is a very charming girl, but between ourselves, I believe her father thinks she will make a better wife to my excellent [illegible] you? Varney's wedding is to-morrow."

"Quite so, and a very charming bride he is to have. But you are wrong in thinking that I shall lose him. The honeymoon is going to be spent on board the Sea-Horse; Varney will perform as usual; his wife will be usefully employed in learning the duties of a chaperon; and at the end of the tour they will return to San Miguel, and Phil will grow pine-apples in partnership with his father-in-law. The idea is quaint, perhaps. I am given to understand that it was the lady's."

"Muriel Davis proposed to go on tour with a circus company, and on her honeymoon, too!" cried Scott. "Impossible! And as for chaperoning you and Mona, why, she doesn't consider you respectable!"

Val B. Montague smiled.

"I am told that she was somewhat prejudiced against us," he said. "She has chosen this method of testing the truth of her theories, and her father agrees with me that it is a very sensible method, too. She is a very charming girl, but between ourselves, I believe her father thinks she will make a better wife to my excellent [illegible] [illegible] Mr. Davis hopes that under [illegible] will learn to appreciate the brilliant talents of the bridegroom."

"What is Phil—black or white?" asked Scott, with amusement.

"He started black, and then became suddenly white, I believe," said Montague gravely. "The honeymoon will probably teach her that he is a very serviceable shade of pearl grey."

"You'll be a funny ship load," said Scott, with amusement.

"What a pity Scarborough has to go to London to arrange about that flotskaltp. You could have found room for another honeymoon couple, couldn't you?"

"Hardly. As it is, Miss Carrington is coming with us."

"What!"

"She will be Mona's guest for the remainder of the tour. The girls have become great friends. I am happy to say. When we have some through ports, we shall run up to London, to be present at Horace Scarborough's marriage. I hope to arrange to have my own celebrated on the same day."

Scott regarded the Yankee circus man with a look of amused admiration.

"You've a rare head for detail, Montague," he said. "Of course all this is your arrangement. But you've forgotten one person, haven't you?"

"I think not, sir. Who?"

"Mrs. Carrington."

"I did not forget her. When I heard that she had recovered from her chill, I went to Sete Cidades and offered her the post of wardrobe mistress on board my schooner, and cashier in the circus. I have an immense admiration for that woman's strength of mind and business capacity. However, she refused. I learned subsequently that some of the ladies who will be with me on the Sea-Horse would not have been pleased if she had accepted."

"Miss De la Mor, for instance!" queried Scott.

"I naturally consulted Miss De la Mar before going to Sete Cidades at all. I had her full permission. She considered herself entirely capable of managing the widow."

"What is the widow going to do for a living?"

"I am not in her confidence, sir, so I cannot tell you. But I don't think we need worry. Before she came to this island she managed very well on an income which was officially returned, I believe, as nothing a year. Have you observed her dresses? They are not those of a woman who dines off a crust habitually. I don't know where she means to raise funds for the future, but I have no doubt at all that she will raise them. I have an immense respect for that woman's abilities, sir. However," Montague added, rising, "we will leave the question of her future livelihood for the widow herself to settle. I want you to come with me to the circus now. We are giving our last performance in Ponta Delgada to-night, and I have advertised that it is for the benefit of Pampas Joe, the Revolver King, who is to be married to-morrow."

"A bottle of fizz first!" cried Scott. "Bumpers to the three pairs who are going into double harness!"

"I am with you, sir. A health to Pampas Joe and Muriel Davis!"

"To Miss Elsa Carrington and the lady!"

"To Miss Elsa Carrington and the Cableman!"

The End.

Rich and Poor Alike

Having been in vogue for centuries, the custom of ringing two bells, one to summon the rich, and the other the poor, to vestry meetings, has now been discontinued at Northleach, Gloucestershire, on the ground that it is out of keeping with modern feeling.

Tree 1,000 Years Old

In the churchyard at Plymtree, Devon, is a yew-tree whose age is calculated at 1,000 years, and which is doubtless the oldest in the country.

Note the Color of your flour—
And the Bread it makes for you.
Delicately creamy is FIVE ROSES flour.
Because it is not bleached, don't you see.
Clear—Immaculate—Desirable.
A pure Manitoba wheat flour—FIVE ROSES.
And the healthy sun-ripened spring wheat berries are naturally of a golden glow.
And the meaty heart of the polished kernels is creamy.
Milled from this cream, FIVE ROSES is delicately "creamy."
The only natural flour from Manitoba's prime wheat.
Which gets whiter and whiter as you knead it.
And your bread is most appetizing, unusually attractive in appearance.
Looks good.
And is good.
Bake this purest unbleached flour.

Five Roses Flour
Not Bleached Not Blended

LITTLE PANSIENNE

[illegible] Mr. Davis hopes that under [illegible] will learn to appreciate the brilliant talents of the bridegroom."

"What is Phil—black or white?" asked Scott, with amusement.

"He started black, and then became suddenly white, I believe," said Montague gravely. "The honeymoon will probably teach her that he is a very serviceable shade of pearl grey."

"You'll be a funny ship load," said Scott, with amusement.

"What a pity Scarborough has to go to London to arrange about that flotskaltp. You could have found room for another honeymoon couple, couldn't you?"

"Hardly. As it is, Miss Carrington is coming with us."

"What!"

"She will be Mona's guest for the remainder of the tour. The girls have become great friends. I am happy to say. When we have some through ports, we shall run up to London, to be present at Horace Scarborough's marriage. I hope to arrange to have my own celebrated on the same day."

Scott regarded the Yankee circus man with a look of amused admiration.

"You've a rare head for detail, Montague," he said. "Of course all this is your arrangement. But you've forgotten one person, haven't you?"

"I think not, sir. Who?"

"Mrs. Carrington."

"I did not forget her. When I heard that she had recovered from her chill, I went to Sete Cidades and offered her the post of wardrobe mistress on board my schooner, and cashier in the circus. I have an immense admiration for that woman's strength of mind and business capacity. However, she refused. I learned subsequently that some of the ladies who will be with me on the Sea-Horse would not have been pleased if she had accepted."

"Miss De la Mor, for instance!" queried Scott.

"I naturally consulted Miss De la Mar before going to Sete Cidades at all. I had her full permission. She considered herself entirely capable of managing the widow."

"What is the widow going to do for a living?"

"I am not in her confidence, sir, so I cannot tell you. But I don't think we need worry. Before she came to this island she managed very well on an income which was officially returned, I believe, as nothing a year. Have you observed her dresses? They are not those of a woman who dines off a crust habitually. I don't know where she means to raise funds for the future, but I have no doubt at all that she will raise them. I have an immense respect for that woman's abilities, sir. However," Montague added, rising, "we will leave the question of her future livelihood for the widow herself to settle. I want you to come with me to the circus now. We are giving our last performance in Ponta Delgada to-night, and I have advertised that it is for the benefit of Pampas Joe, the Revolver King, who is to be married to-morrow."

"A bottle of fizz first!" cried Scott. "Bumpers to the three pairs who are going into double harness!"

"I am with you, sir. A health to Pampas Joe and Muriel Davis!"

"To Miss Elsa Carrington and the lady!"

"To Miss Elsa Carrington and the Cableman!"

The End.

Rich and Poor Alike

Having been in vogue for centuries, the custom of ringing two bells, one to summon the rich, and the other the poor, to vestry meetings, has now been discontinued at Northleach, Gloucestershire, on the ground that it is out of keeping with modern feeling.

Tree 1,000 Years Old

In the churchyard at Plymtree, Devon, is a yew-tree whose age is calculated at 1,000 years, and which is doubtless the oldest in the country.

STRANGERS

Day Constable (relieving night man):—"How's the missus?"

Night Constable:—"I don't know. I haven't seen her this seven years."

Day Constable:—"But you and she live together, don't you?"

Night Constable:—"Yes; but she's a charwoman and is out all day, and I'm out on duty all night, so we haven't met since we settled after our honeymoon."

MUST BE CLEVER

"She will be a clever woman that I marry" declared a confirmed bachelor, who was being chaffed on the subject.

"Thought you didn't like these clever women," said a friend.

"I don't," rejoined the bachelor. "But if ever I marry, it'll be a clever woman who does it."

POLICY TO OPTICIANS

The latest insurance novelty is a policy issued to opticians, covering them for a small premium against actions-at-law, damages, and costs consequent with errors or asserted errors in the adjustment of spectacles.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

FACTS ABOUT PEOPLE

Famous People in Brief Paragraphs, Which Serve as Mirrors

The King of Norway is a capital oarsman.

The Duke of Buccleuch owns 460,000 acres of land.

Lord Morley is a great lover of music, his favorite composers being Wagner and Chopin.

Lord Kinnaird is the only peer who has played in the winning team of an international football match.

The King of Spain's full name is Alfonso Leon Fernanda Maria Santiago Isadore Paschal Marcian.

The Mikado of Japan is a hunter and angler of no mean ability, as well as a good exponent of lawn tennis.

The Duke of Sutherland is a skilled locomotive engineer, and could earn a living at the work did he so desire.

Sir Edward Elgar, the famous composer, is an ardent naturalist, and at one time made a hobby of making and flying kites.

The Sultan of Turkey is one of the most enthusiastic chess-players in Europe. He will play the game for hours without intermission.

Lord Lonsdale is a magnificent shot, a rider to hounds without a superior, and has been termed the best driver of a four-in-hand in the world.

Lord Rosebery is a collector of small articles and knick-knacks in silver and china, the relics of great men appealing specially to his fancy.

The Emperor of Austria scarcely ever shakes hands, even with the most exalted visitors or privileged persons. His usual form of greeting is a courtly bow.

Queen Alexandra possesses a tea service of sixty pieces, each piece being decorated with a different photograph which she herself took in Scotland.

Lady Derby is a keen poultry fancier and noted for her black Orpingtons. It was not so very long ago that she sold a couple of birds for $500 apiece.

King George makes a hobby of collecting photographs of babies. It is said that the more comical are the faces of the babies the better he likes their photographs.

General Booth gives the following as his rules for long life: eat little, drink water, take exercise, have a system, take pleasures wisely, avoid excess of all kinds, aim high.

Amongst the most treasured possessions of Harry Lauder are a cheap watch which he won in a singing competition as a boy, and the old pick which he used as a "collier laddie."

Mr. Joseph Chamberlain first wore an eyeglass many years ago while acting in some theatricals in Birmingham. He found it suited his appearance and has continued to wear one ever since.

Mr. J. D. Rockefeller is forbidden by his physician to eat anything which has been cooked, not even bread or cakes. His diet is confined to uncooked meat, with eggs and vegetables.

No European ruler uses the telegraph so much as the Czar of Russia. He has a secret code both for his private and his official messages, and spends $25,000 a year on this kind of correspondence.

Lord Charles Beresford is so frequently asked for his autograph that he now demands the sum of half a crown from each autograph hunter. The money goes to naval charities in which he is interested.

Signor Caruso has a double in the manager of a West-end restaurant, and the resemblance is well-known to the singer. The manager is als oa singer, and recently delighted a Monte Carlo audience with his rendering of one of Signor Caruso's favorite songs.

His Big Salary

Mr. John Hays Hammond, America's special representative for the Coronation, was at one time the highest-salaried man in the world. He was paid $500,000 a year for acting as chief consulting engineer to a big American railway.

Fat Pension This

Sir Edward Clarke, K.C., who still practises at the age of seventy, refused a judgeship in 1897, an appointment which would now entitle him to a pension of $20,000 a year.

To be continued.

SUMMER MONTHS FATAL TO SMALL CHILDREN.

The summer months are the hardest of the year on small children. Cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentry and stomach troubles are all common at this time and many a precious life is snuffed out after only a few hours illness. As a safeguard mothers should keep Baby's Own Tablets in the house. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent stomach and bowel troubles, or if the trouble comes on suddenly will bring the little one through safely. Mrs. Larry DeGrace, Mizonette, N.B., writes: "Last summer my baby suffered greatly from her stomach and bowels and nothing helped her till I began giving her Baby's Own Tablets. They regulated her bowels, sweetened her stomach, and now she is a big, healthy, happy child. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.