The Good Old Days

Fancy in these days having to buy white sand and soft soap for scrubbing floors. Imagine buying food, such as bacon hanging exposed on a hook where flies were so thick, both alive and dead, that small boys, waiting to be served, traded in the delights of swopping off handfuls of them from the greasy counters.

The old custom was to permit a customer to test butter and cheese by digging in a dab on a knife. This she licked off, in this way cleaning the knife for the next butter or cheese lover. Across the ceiling dried apples hung from one wall to the other. If they were not theroughly dried in the beginning, they were certain to be spotted several months of their battle where the box swept the sawdust, and after being exposed to the heat from the kerosene lamps, the odor of which permeated everything in the place. The smell was augmented by the leaky oil cans, as likely as not to be standing by the cheese holding sugar. Where now controls the enormous energy of crackers, sealed to dainty freshness and by service the memory of the old barrels and crackers with the persistent call to add to any purchase again in the days of old.

SIX MORE DEATHS TO-DAY

Consumption the Cause.

Six people died every day in Ontario from tuberculosis at the rate of one person every hour from a total of 2,294 deaths every year, reported out in the spring and has been the commonest of a good sized team.

No spelling lessons for the dogs, so that this continued weather, unnecessary. They could them might be saved. Protective work in the Canadian campaign has been done by the National Sanatorium Association. The Association of Muskoka and Weston tuberculosis sanatoria, which are the only institutions of the Association work. The illustrated lecture with the coloured lantern view was delivered by Mr. T. B. Watt in the Field Service Corps of the Association.

The lecture will be given on Thursday evening, 8th inst., at Sackville in the town hall. The Mayor has kindly consented to take the chair. A collection will be taken at the door.

The amount of information which Mr. Watson will give becomes clear that short time are marvelous. He gives pictures are excellent.

"Those who heard Mr. Watson were very interested, informed and pleased. The audience came away more informed on tuberculosis in a manner more entertaining."

Where [illegible] Sackville the chairman [illegible] Mr. Watson, he has [illegible] which he [illegible] the chairman [illegible] the lecture explain more [illegible] and especially [illegible] what the [illegible] knew about the subject.

Parents especially should know how to protect themselves and their children. Every precaution should be taken against contagion. Tuberculosis is a dangerous disease, but it is not the only one. Diphtheria, typhoid, scarlet fever, measles, whooping cough, influenza, and the common cold are contagious. Prevention is better than cure. Fresh air, sunshine, good food, cleanliness, and the avoidance of crowds are the best means of avoiding the germs of disease.

Co-operative Laundries

Canadians a Mixed People.

Weekly Sun.

There are, according to the last census, 7,192,000 people in Canada.

Of these, according to the same report, 1,823,000 are of Irish numbers are of English origin, 1,050,000 of Irish, 997,000 of Scotch and 25,000 of other British origin. This makes a total of nearly 3,900,000, not of British born, but of British ancestry, living in the Dominion.

Of the remainder of our people, 2,054,000 are classed as of French origin, 393,000 as of German, 129,000 as Austro-Hungarian, 107,000 as Scandinavian, 75,000 as Jewish, 54,000 as Dutch and 13,000 as of Russian origin.

These are the main divisions as to ancestry, the minor ones not being sufficiently numerous to be worth noting for the purposes of this article.

The showing, even as it stands here, is impressive enough for those who look below the surface of things. The fact is set forth that there are in Canada, as a whole, more than half as many people of French origin as there are of British ancestry. It shows that there are of German, Austrian, Scandinavian, Jewish, Dutch and Russian ancestry combined more than one-fifth as many as of British ancestry.

When we go further into details the facts developed become still more interesting. We find that in Manitoba there are rather more than one-fourth as many people of German and Austrian origin as there are of British origin. In Alberta the proportion is 62,000 of German and Austrian origin to 187,000 of British, the proportion being one to three in that case. Only a little over half the population of Manitoba is of British ancestry; in Saskatchewan it is the same; in Alberta those of British ancestry make up just one-half of the whole.

Even Ontario is far from being solidly British, or of British ancestry. Out of a total population of 2,523,000 in this Province, one-sixth are classed as either of German, Dutch or French origin. In parts of the Province the proportion of German or of French is now greater. In South Bruce and South Grey there are almost half as many people of German origin as there are of British. In Dundas county there is classed as of Dutch ancestry just about equal the English, and those of German and French ancestry combined are nearly double those of English ancestry. In Glengarry, where Gaelic was once the universal tongue, the number of French origin is almost equal to the number of Scotch origin. In the county of Prescott the number of people of French ancestry outnumber those of British in the proportion of three to one.

In Quebec of course, the population is solidly of French origin, there being 1,927,000 of these to 193,000 of British, the balance of the population being made up of various other elements including 20,000 Jews.

Taking the Dominion as a whole we find those of British ancestry making up little over half the total population while in one important Province they are classed as British an [illegible] minority, and in three others by [illegible] a little of about half and half.

The facts brought out become more important still when the system followed in recording the census is called to mind. People whose parents and grandparents were born in this country are still classed as of English, Irish or Scotch origin in their great-grandfathers came from the British Isles. Do we do so in the U. E. Loyalist [illegible] Canada, whose [illegible] in the old Thirteen generations before the [illegible] classified according to [illegible] country. The three [illegible] Americans who [illegible] in the last [illegible] are not classed in the [illegible] according to [illegible] ancestry. Some of [illegible] Americans may have some [illegible] Mayflower, help to swell the number of people classed as of British origin now living in Canada. How the week of classification was managed in a case wherein a man whose mother was English and father Scotch married a daughter of mixed German, Irish, Dutch, and French parentage, and had children, goodness knows what, Possibly the progeny in question would be considered in the mulligan.

When the manner of classification is kept in mind it will be seen, therefore, that fully half our population is of mixed British origin, that [illegible] in many cases so remote [illegible] its sentimental effect [illegible] political action. More [illegible] portion of people in this [illegible] than British sources [illegible] bound to be increased [illegible] by immigration in the [illegible] way. All of which emphasizes the fact that our people are a mixed people. They may be made [illegible] citizens of this country but [illegible] need to be made into citizens of [illegible] country 3,000 miles away. [illegible] be moulded into Canadians, [illegible] be moulded into Britons.

ONTARIO'S WORK IN PRISON REFORM

Men Are Found to be Quite Securely Held Without Bolts, Bars, Cells or Guards

One thing Ontario is doing that bids fair to make her famous, and that is the working out the Prison Farm idea. There are about 440 prisoners employed in the open air, unconfined, and practically unguarded. They are under well defined discipline, it is true, and must respect rules and regulations but they work in the open air unshackled and free from the inspection of rifle-carrying guards.

Sixty or seventy men worked a whole summer in the open near Whitby preparing the ground for a new Provincial asylum. These prisoners worked just as an equal number of ordinary laborers would have done, although the discipline of the camp was, perhaps, somewhat more definite. No attempts at escape were made and no trouble of any kind occurred. Near Fort William sixty or seventy prisoners were put to work clearing a thousand acres of land with only four paid men in charge of the party, one of them being the cook. There are no handcuffs, rifles, bolts, nor bars in this prison system. The men are handled by rules and regulations they are under the control of law and assent to it. If they tried to escape nobody could stop them. Yet each man knows that if he did run away he would be recaptured, and could not be expected to be trusted a second time, but must count upon being locked up behind stone walls. They do not run away. They are not incorrigible. In the open air they work hard, eat well and sleep well.

This method of prison reform is based not on kindness but on horse sense. The object is not to impress upon the men how good, kind, and charitable the State is in treating them so, but they are permitted to discover that it is like a sensible the State is in handling them this way and how powerful organized society is as against any individual who all looks bars, stone walls and armed guards done away with. To the man who sets himself unconfined unwatched, not beyond all question as much a prisoner as if he were walled in, a well there must come a realization of the futility of fighting against an organized society so powerful, and so confident.

Whisky for Monkeys

Monkeys kept into captivity in the Zoo at Richmond, Indiana are supplied with a drink of whisky every other day during the winter months, and their drink bill amounts to a considerable sum. The Zoo authorities say that the monkeys look for the whisky, which helps to keep them warm and in good health. It is now proposed to save money to the city by giving the monkeys all the whisky seized in raids on "shebeens."

Natural Blankets

Nature is kind in Ecuador. When a native wants a blanket he goes to a demajagua tree and cuts from it a strip of peculiarly soft, thick bark, five or six feet long. This is dampened and beaten until the flexibility of the sheet is much increased. The rough, gray exterior is next peeled off, and the sheet dried in the sun. The result is a blanket, soft, light, and fairly warm, of an attractive cream color. It may be rolled into a compact bundle without hurt, and with ordinary usage will last for several years.

VARIOUS HOLY LANDS

Christians call Palestine the Holy Land because it was the birthplace of the Christian religion on earth as well as that of the Saviour whose birth, ministry, and death are inseparably associated with the history of Jerusalem and vicinity. To the Mohammedans Mecca, in Arabia, is the Holy Land, it being the birthplace of Mohammed, the saviour of the followers of that faith.

India is the Holy Land of the Chinese and other Oriental Buddhists, it being the native land of Sakya-Nuni, the supreme Buddha. Elis, one of the several divisions of the ancient Peloponnesus, was the Mecca and the Jerusalem of the ancient Greeks. The temple of Olympus Zeus was situated at Elis, and the sacred festivals were held there each year. With Achaia it is at present a part of Greece.

The believers in the Shinto religion make annual pilgrimages to Sitea-Kara, the immense stone pillar where their supreme ruler last stood while talking to men.

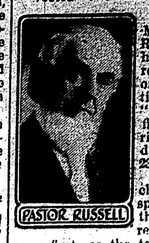
THE VERY FIRST RESURRECTION

Distinction Between Jesus' Resurrection and All Others.

Pastor Russell Shows Scripturally the Difference Between Awakening the Dead and Resurrecting the Dead—Several Were Awakened Before Jesus, But He Was the First Resurrected—The Church's Resurrection.



PASTOR RUSSELL

St. Louis, Mo., March 23.—Pastor Russell spoke twice here to-day. We report his address on the Resurrection from the text, "He should be the first that should rise from the dead." (Acts 26:23.)

With startling clearness the speaker pointed out that Jesus' resurrection was the very first, as the text declared. He led his hearers back to Eden, and let them hear the Divine penalty for sin—"Dying, thou shalt die." He showed that this dying process operated in Adam for nine hundred thirty years before its action was complete. Adam's children, humanity, never had Adam's original perfection; for they were fallen at the time of birth. On this subject both Old and New Testaments agree.

Next the Pastor showed that the Greek word anastasis, translated resurrection, means a raising up again—the word again implying a former standard. That standard is the image and likeness of God, which none of Adam's children have fully possessed, because he lost it.

"Not Possible to Be Holden."

St. Peter declares that it was not possible for death to hold Jesus. (Acts 2:24.) He was perfect. It was the Father's will that Jesus should demonstrate His obedience even unto death. Hence it was not possible for Jesus to remain under the power of death, and God raised Him on the third day.

Jesus was perfect on the spirit plane, before He exchanged the spirit nature for the human, to become man's Redeemer. He never forfeited His right to life. He merely laid it down in proof of His loyalty to the Father's will. Hence His resurrection meant His resuscitation in perfection. But it was not God's will that He should return to perfection of human nature; for He had used that nature for the purpose intended. He was raised from the power of death to the very highest plane of spirit being; namely, the Divine nature.

The Pastor asked his audience to contrast Jesus' resurrection with the awakening of Jairus' daughter; the widow of Nain's son; Lazarus, the brother of Mary and Martha; or any of the awakenings recorded in the Old Testament. These were nothing more than mere awakenings from the sleep of death. They were not, therefore, resurrections.

The resurrection of any of these sleeping ones would have meant much more than was accomplished in them. It would have meant their restoration to the full image and likeness of God, lost in Eden. As it was, the awakening ones merely had the advantage of a few more years in the present life, and then fell asleep again, to await the glorious rising to the full perfection from which the race fell.

The First (Chief) Resurrection.

The Pastor made it clear that the Church of Christ consists of the truly consecrated in all denominations and some outside of denominational fences, which are barriers not authorized by Scriptures. He quotes Philippians 3:10 and other Scriptures which show that the True Church are to have a share with Jesus in His Resurrection. The inherited blemishes of these are covered through the merit of Jesus, justifying them. This justification permits their being accepted of God as His children.

The Pastor seemed to give the thought that in the Divine Purpose a foreordained number of the Church Class must suffer with Christ before the Millennium begins. Their sufferings are not vicarious, as were Jesus', nor necessary for the redemption of the world, as were our Lord's. The sufferings are necessary to prove their loyalty to God, and to demonstrate their worthiness of joint-heirship with Jesus. The Church's suffering is their dying to earthly conditions and ambitions, as did Jesus. His faithful followers will experience a similarly glorious resurrection to a higher nature—the Divine. See Jesus' words in Revelation 25:6.

Easter and the Passover.

Pastor Russell says that the word Easter occurs only once in our Version Bible, and is a mistranslation. It should be rendered Passover. Easter was a heathen festival honoring the goddess of Spring. The name was transferred to the Passover celebration of the early Church, in honor of our Lord's resurrection.

Whatever the word originally meant, it stands now as a synonym for the glorious resurrection of the world's Redeemer from death and from human nature to glory, honor and immortality—the Divine nature. The resurrection of Jesus is the guarantee for the resurrection of "the Church, which is His Body." It also assures us of the world's resurrection—that an opportunity for everlasting life will be given to all mankind through Messiah's Kingdom.
