The London Spectator takes a pessimistic view of the situation between the United States and Spain, and expresses the opinion that the chances are in favor of war.

The Grand Trunk is building a new iron bridge over the Beaver at Thornbury, but the Standard says that compared with the speed at which it is being built "molasses in winter time is is ball-bearing greased lightning geared to a thousand." A very expressive smiel.

Willie, the 16-year-old son of David White, Oakville, Ont., met with a horrible death at that place yesterday. He had jumped in a bin, when the chute was opened, and he was carried down, being buried in the grain.

An Indian war whoop has not been heard in Shelburne for many moons until last Sunday evening. About a month ago a party of Indians erected their tent in the edge of the woods east of the village and have lived there very quietly since. They are well behaved and civil, and conducted themselves properly unil Sunday, when some miscreant, whose name we cannot learn, supplied them with a couple of bottles of whisky. The red man came up town in the evening and made everything ring with his war whoops —Free Press

Mr. R. Fawcett lost a valuable fox terrier this week. He borrowed a crack dog from Mr. G. Robinson and struck for the bush. While there the dogs, as some of their human brothers occasionally do, became involved in a row and when Mr. Fawcet reached the battle field he found Robinson's big fellow shaking a dead terrier. There is general mourning among our dog fanciers as Bob's was a general favorite.—Dundalk Herald.

Men who have thought seriously about the matter know that advertisments, be it great or small, pays a premium on the money invested. It may not bring direct results, but it is more often like "casting bread upon the waters." The object of advertising is not so much to sell an article that everybody wants as it is to make everybody want an article that the advertiser sells. The merchant must keep his name and wares before the people all the time to catch new customers, who are ever changing.

Mount Forest, Oct. 30.—Saturday afternoon the wife of John Armstrong, a farmer residing in Egremont, about seven miles from Mt. Forest, having had occasion to leave the house for a few minutes, was horrified on returning to find her baby very ill. Everything possible was done for the child, but it died in a short time. It appears that during Mrs. Armstrong's absence her four-year old daughter, by means of a chair which she had placed on a table, had taken down a small bottle containing carbolic acid, which she gave the baby to drink, with the result stated.
