

On The Main Street

with FORD
MOYNES

A former Lindsay resident, and for many years a prominent business man, passed away in Toronto a couple of weeks ago.

The late Robert J. Fitzpatrick was born on a farm near Lindsay, attending the boys' separate school in Lindsay, and after graduating from high school, moved to Toronto where he was for several years a member of the pioneer and successful firm of Fitzpatrick and O'Connell operating a modern clothing and haberdashery store on Yonge Street. The late Joseph Cain of Lindsay was a member of the firm for several years.

The late Mr. Fitzpatrick was a charter member of the Toronto Downtown Kiwanis Club and for years was a prominent member of the Granite Club. His curling activities included a yearly trip to Lindsay when members of the Granite Club and the Lindsay Curling Club exchanged visits.

The late Dennis Fitzpatrick, a well known Lindsay farmer, was a brother of the deceased gentleman.

The late Bob Fitzpatrick was a keen business man and the firm name was recognized for its handling of the best and latest in clothing. He was popular because of his fine personality.

* * *

Many young Lindsay boys received their initial training in the journalistic field in the Daily Post Editorial Department. One was R. J. (Rollie)

O'Leary who visited Lindsay a few days ago.

His mother, Mrs. Ethel O'Leary, was at one time much better known than her offspring, as she was very much community minded, as a member of the Presbyterian Church and a member and an officer of the Women's Institute.

Rollie, after training in the editorial staff of the Lindsay Daily Post, and after a turn as editor, took a position with the Canadian Pacific Railway in Montreal, and was associated with the Company as a public relations man and press representative.

For several years he has been identified with the CPR in Winnipeg, but now has returned to Montreal. His many friends are pleased to learn that he is still held in high regard by the Canadian Pacific officials with whom he has rendered long and valuable service.