Just because one small constituency was thrown open—Centre Thronto—all Canada has been obliged to listen for the past two weeks to the bellowing of the party press from day to day, and read pages o politics in their daily papers or read, nothing. Why don't the city dailies get out city editions containing the political hash pie which is only suited to city palates, and not choke the mass into stomachs where its digestion is attended with serious results In the words of Josh Billings, We kno whut we're eating, cuz its hash, but we could get along with very much less of it.

We thought the day of martyry was past, but it evidently is not. His Grace the Archbishop of Kingston at least does not consider that it is, as he is loudly announcing himself as a martyr. He has on more than one occasion justly been called to task by the press for his rabid utterances and bigoted hatred of Protestant institutions, both civil and moral. He considers a protestant marriage unhallowed and no better than a heathen rite, and forbids his parishioners to attend any protestant religious ceremony under pain of his dire vengeance, and calls it a heinous crime from which only himself can absolve. These startling anathemas were the cause of much comment throughout the press of Ontario some time ago, but the incident was supposed to have been forgotten, when last week His Grace recalls it to mind by another outbreak of invective against the Ontario press, describing the newspapers as "agents of satan," and announcing that "among those two dozen or more anti-Christian scribes it is safe to say there is not one who could pretend to be a gentleman. Taking them all in all they are the vilest gang of outlaws on this western continent—the shame of Ontario." These be strong words for an archbishop and a man who pretends to be God's vicar on earth, and can only be explained on the hypothesis that the user of them is anxious for martyrdom. He says as much when informing us that of himself "more lies and slanders have been published than had ever been flung againt any prelate at any previous time in any country in the world," and he gloried in it. This preposterous statement may be believed by some, but His Grace ought to think twice before he becomes guilty of the very thing of which he complains. Could the ashes of John of Antioch or of a hundred others, but rise in evidence, what a pigmy showing His Grace's little persecution would make. As for the press of Ontario, it adopts to the best of its belief the moral code as revealed in the Bible, and above everything else, charity. It even throws this mantle over the irate archbishop, trusting he will soon find it possible to live at peace with his fellow-protestants without insulting them.

A Barnardo boy engaged by Chas. Watson of York township cut the tongue out of a horse he was driving because the animal had a habit of putting the tongue out. The horse was shot, but nothing was done to the boy—who deserved a fate nearly as bad.

A cruel rumor, emanating from the Tory camp, says that Mr. Neil McColman is an ardent supporter of Mr. Gamey's candidature on the Independent ticket. They accuse Mr. McColman of acting in revenge for being so mercilessly turned down at the Tory convention. Surely it is not so.—Thornbury Standard.

Patrick O'Brien, living about a mile and a quarter south of Chepstowe, arose the other morning, eat a hearty breakfast and went out to feed the cattle and do the chores around the barn. While doing this he was siezed with heart disease and dropped dead where he stood.

A juvenile elopement, the result of romantic literature, occured last week at Braeside. The principals were only eleven years old. They took with them a horse and buggy belonging to the father of the little boy. The irate parents are hot on their trail. When captured the romance should be spanked out o them.—Ex.

Economist :—Mr. Frank Durkin of Bowling Green, has not as high an opinion of Hallowe'en tricks as he once had. On Hallowe'en this year, as a joke he removed the gate from Mr. Isaac Sanderson's lane, and a couple of colts got out. One of the colts returned, but no trace of the other can be had. Mr. Durkin is doing the right thing, and is sparing no expense or trouble in his search for the animal. If the colt is not found he intends to recompense Mr. Sanderson for his loss.

The famous Dufferin county perjury cases will not come up at the Assizes this week, and the fact is causing a great deal of comment. The five accused are: John Hamilton, Reeve of Shelburne; John Coleman of Shelburne, and James Small, Adam Loudon, and James Sammons of Melancthon. They were arraigned before County Judge McCarthy on Friday, pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried by the county judge. The date of the trial has not yet been fixed.

The Globe (Toronto) is making a strong and deserving bid for circulation. Finding that the reduction in the price of paper and the introduction of typesetting machinery have made it possible to publish the paper at a less cost, the price has been reduced from $6 per annum to $4 per annum for the early morning edition, and the second edition has been discontinued. This should give their circulation list a great increase, as it brings within the reach of every person a daily paper that is generally recognized as the leading paper in Canada. As there is no reduction in the size of the paper and every department including the Saturday illustrated edition, kept up to its present high standard and considering the enormous expense that it goes to in order to give all the news every day, $6 was not too much for it. At $4 per annum its subscription list should soon reach the 50,000 mark.
