A Desperado Shot

MATTAWA, Ont., Nov. 27.—On Thursday, Nov. 18, Samuel Tongue and Wm. Bell started out to go to Lake Trillon and adjoining lakes to look after two valuable dogs that had been lost some days previous. After paddling their canoe for some miles over the lake they were crossing a bay where the bush is very heavy, no settlers being on this part of the lake. They saw coming at a distance, paddling towards them, a canoe and man. Thinking they would be able to get some information as to where their dogs were, they paddled towards the approaching canoe, not thinking there was any danger in store for them. When the canoes were about two or three hundred yards from each other they saw the man let up paddling and draw out his Winchester, and, taking good aim, he fired at them. This was succeeded by two more shots in succession, which were low and did not take effect, the last shot just striking very close to the bow of the boat. They account for the three shots not taking effect to the jolting of the canoes by the strong breeze that was then blowing. Mr Tongue and Mr. Bell recognized the desperado at once, and it was a case of life or death either by drowning or shooting unless they could escape from him. The shore not being far they made all efforts to reach it and escape from the man if possible, but from all appearances he was determined to finish them if possible, and made after them. Both canoes landed very near the same time, but Mr. Tongue, being somewhat the quickest to strike land, and seeing no escape possible, turned and took good aim and fired at the desperado, the ball entering at the pit of the stomach and coming out at the back, as shown now that the body has arrived. They were excited, and seeing he did not return the fire they got into their canoe and made for Mattawa, where, on their arrival on Friday they laid an information, and the chief of police with some specials were despatched on Monday to go after the desperado, dead or alive, but Mr. Tongue, being an expert shooter, was quite positive that he would be found very badly wounded or dead. By the appearance of the body after its arrival in charge of Chief Fillion, and the way he was found, he could not have lived longer than a very few minutes after he was shot. The man's proper name was James McConnell, and no doubt this shooting will recall to memory his past career, having only a few years ago been on trial for doing away with his father on Lake Nashinsing. There were also a number of warrants for his arrest for shooting at various people, cattle, etc. He was a very large and powerful man of 48 years. There were found at his hut seven boxes of cartridges, a little flour, salt and plenty of deer meat. All the farmers and settlers in the vicinity where he roamed are very well pleased to hear of his death, as they more or less had a great fear of him.

Mr. Allan D. Bell, of the 12th concession of Nottawasaga, had his barns and out-buildings totally destroyed by fire Sunday night, which contained over one thousand bushels of grain, along with eight head of horses and twelve pigs. The loss is estimated at $2,000; insured in Sydenham Mutual for $700.

Review :—Wilson's Mill, Louise, went up in smoke Sunday last. The mill was valued at $3000 and stock destroyed about $1000. Insured for $2000 in the Perth Mutual. The engines and boiler may probably be used yet. The cause it is thought was accidental. The proprietors intend to rebuild right away we have heard.

Having successfully withstood the agitation for abolition, Sir Oliver Mowat now retires to Government House to enjoy its honors and emoluments. It would, perhaps, be unfair to say that he looked so far into the future; but he opposed all attempts at abolition with great persistency. It is probable that continued agitation for abolition will again be met with objection, made in the case of Sir George Kirkpatrick, that it is discourteous to disturb the present occupant. If this sort of politeness be kept up Government House will continue into the next generation.—Farmer's Sun.

John Coleman and John McLean wound up their partnership business in a law suit. This case which has been running on now since June 1896, was finally fought out at a special session of the County Court in the Court House in Orangeville, on Saturday last. There were a number of witnesses examined on both sides and the evidence was very conflicting. McLean claimed there was a balance of $137 coming to him from Coleman out of the partnership which existed for about two months in the hotel business, and Coleman disputed this, and claimed besides that there was $200 coming to him yet. Judgment was given against McLean on his claim and also against Coleman on his, so that the parties are where they started.

It is well for fatmers to know that they are liable to a penalty of $200 if they do not report at once to the Minister of Agriculture at Ottawa any indication of tuberculosis in their stock.

The Dominion Government has arranged for a three-cent postal rate on mail matter up to one ounce throughout the British empire, instead of as hitherto five cents for half an ounce to the United Kingdom, and a larger sum for most other parts of the Empire.

The Chesley Enterprise says :—"Mr. Jas. McEwing of Saugeen Tp. is perhaps the most honest politician in Ont. In a manifesto to the North Bruce electors claiming their suffrages he points out that he would like to get to parliament because farming doesn't pay now. Mr. McEwing thus openly acknowledges he would like to be elected for the sake of the sessional allowance. Mr. McEwing also claims support because he is over the standard age, 70 years. This candidate could not be elected. He is too honest." There is just cause for suspicion that there are candidates near home who have the same object but less candor.
