BEAUTIFUL HAWAII

PECULIAR CHARM IN LIFE ON TARIFE ISLANDS.

Traditions of Hawaiians—Practice of Incantation and Peculiarities of Language Show Relation With Aryan Race.

Hawaii is one of the most desirable naval stations in the world. Pearl Harbor is large enough and deep enough to afford admirable shelter to all the navies of the world. The greatest depth is sixteen fathoms, or ninety-six feet.

Honolulu, the capital, is twelve miles from Pearl Harbor. It is connected by the Oahu railway.

Honolulu is 2,100 miles from San Francisco. It is 3,290 miles from Tutulla, Samoa. From Auckland, New Zealand, it is 3,814 miles distant. Sydney is 4,480 miles off and Hong Kong is 4,893 miles away. Calleo, Peru, is 5,240 miles direct from Honolulu. Valparaiso is 3,725 miles from the capital.

Hawaiians call their chief island Hah-wwy-ee; we say Hah-wy-ee. Other proper ways of giving well known names are: O-ah-hu, Ho-no-lu-lu, Mow-ee (Maui), Kow-aye (Kauai), Nee-how (Nihau), Hee-lo (Hilo), La-hy-na (Lahaina), Ko-hah-la (Kohala). Vowels are as in Italian and deserve much care. Hawaiians pay little attention to consonants.

Of the Sandwich, or Hawaiian Islands, the largest is Hawaii, with Mauri, Oahu, Kanui, Molokini, Lanai, Nilhau, Kahoolawe, Lehua and Molokini, ranging in size in the order named. The total area of the islands is sixty-one thousand miles.

The Hawaiian Islands have been found to be rich in animal life. Of birds there are seventy-eight species, of which fifty-seven are peculiar to this group. All the land and fresh water shells are peculiar, and of one thousand species of insects, seven hundred are not found elsewhere. It thus seems that these islands have not been populated from the continent, but have been centres of independent creation.

There are no snakes nor any other venomous reptilian life on beautiful Hawaii.

Mark Twain wrote of Hawaii: "No alien land in all the world has any deep, strong charm for me, but that one; no other land could so longingly and so beseechingly haunt me, sleeping or waking, through half a lifetime as that one has done."

The little island of Niihau (Neehow) was in former years noted for the extreme fineness and beauty of its mats of native grass, which resembles the fibre of which Panama hats are made. They will bear hard usage for years, and when soiled a good scrubbing makes them look like new. Formerly a large mat could be bought for $10, but now exorbitant prices are asked.

It is an old belief of native Hawaiians that the spirits of their warrior chiefs inhabit after death the bodies of their favorite horses.

Pol, the Hawaiian national dish, is made by pounding up the cooked root of the taro plant—the arum esculentum of the botanists—with water, into a thick paste. When slightly fermented it has a pleasant, fruity, acid taste.

The Hawaiian's passion in the way of personal decoration is for flowers, which they weave into wreaths and garlands with great skill and with which they deck themselves freely on all festive occasions.

The octopus is a much-prized delicacy among the natives, and many foreign-born residents have also acquired the taste.

The chief talent possessed by the Hawaiian girl is for music. Many of the natives have composed very pretty songs.

Besides the traditions of the Hawaiians, their practice of incantation and divination, and many peculiarities of their language show a relation not only with the Hebrews, but also with the fireworshippers of Persia, the Brahmins and Buddhists of India and other branches of the Aryan race.

Originally the only fabrics known to the Hawaiian Islanders were the "tapa" cloth, made from bark, and the beautiful feather garment of royalty. The "tapa" cloth, used by rich and poor, is made by pounding mulberry bark.

The women wound long pieces of "tapa" about them for skirts, and until the missionaries came this was their only article of dress. Now they wear the "holoku," a dress made like a Mother Hubbard, and of American fabrics.

When white people first visited the islands every chief wore an "ahuula," or feather robe, and a feather helmet.

Can't control the kidney secretions.

Women worry, can't do daily work.
Men have lame and aching backs.
The cure for man, woman or child.
Is to cure the cause—the kidneys.
Booth's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys—
Cure all forms of kidney suffering.
Kingston testimony proves it.

Mrs. James Griffin, of 200 Montreal street, Kingston, Ont., says: "My daughter had suffered for some time with a severe pain across the small of her back. She was unable to stoop at times and could straighten up only with much suffering. She had become languid and weak and her appetite was very poor. Headaches and spells of dizziness had kept her in constant suffering. We could find nothing that would give her the least relief until Booth's Kidney Pills were advertised at Mr. Mahood's. She used them and they cured her. She became strong and well, her appetite is good and she had gained over five pounds. Booth's Kidney Pills are certainly an exceptional remedy and I could not hesitate to recommend them."

He Wasted Politeness.

Washington Post.

Prof. Simon Newcomb, of Washington, was known as a man whose scientific studies tended to exaggerate a natural disposition to mental abstraction. The professor's friends understood his peculiarity, and overlooked in him what might not be excused in an ordinary person. A Washington lady is very fond of telling this incident: She was at a reception given at Prof. Newcomb's house. The occasion had been made delightful by the professor's wife and daughters, and everything was very enjoyable. Toward the close of the evening the lady, who had enjoyed the affair greatly approached the host and asked him with much enthusiasm, "How often do you have these delightful reunions, professor?" "But once a year, madam—thank goodness!—but once a year." There was no polite prevarication in that reply.

The Deacon's Dilemma.

Representative Dudley M. Hughes, of the Third Georgia District, is a farmer in addition to being a statesman. Recently, when he was at home Mr. Hughes received an urgent call to go to the police station in Macon. When he arrived Mr. Hughes found that one of his negro laborers had temporary quarters there.

The negro was very penitent and very anxious to get out.

"Marse Dud," he said, "youse er deekin in de White Baptis' Church, ain't yer?"

"Yes, Sam."

"An' yer knows I's er deekin in de Cullud Baptis' Church, don't yer, Marse Dud?"

"Yes, Sam; but what has this to do with your present trouble?"

"Well, I jis' wanter say dis, Marse Dud, dat hit's time for us deekins t' stick together!"

Chicago Tribune.

"George," said the customer, "you make a pretty good thing of it in tips in the course of a year, don't you?"

"Yes, sir," answered the barber, "I do fairly well, Mr. Parker, fairly well."

"How do you manage it?"

"Oh, I just jolly the swells along, you know, I hand 'em out a little taffy now an' then."

"I see. By the way, George, now that I think of it, haven't you something that will make the hair grow on that bald spot of mine?"

"Bless you, Mr. Parker, that ain't no bald spot. The hair is just a little thin there, sir; that's all . . . Thank you, Mr. Parker."

Shower of Coppers.

A strange incident was witnessed in a Dublin street one day recently. A cab was turning out of Parliament street, when the bottom fell out and with it a small sack of money, all pennies or halfpennies. The coins scattered all over the roadway, and sharp-eyed street arabs were soon helping themselves, amid the confusion, two handfuls of money, which was the proceeds of collections at a church. It was being conveyed to a bank by a clergyman. With the aid of the police the bulk of the money was soon picked up and handed over to the clergyman, who stepped into another cab and drove away.

They Rival Bread in Economy and are equally nourishing

Try this experiment, madam.

Thin-slice a 20-ounce loaf of bread. Place in oven until thoroughly dry. Now weigh slices. 12 ounces—perhaps less. The missing eight ounces was moisture—mostly water which costs nothing.

You actually pay baker 5c. for 12 ounces of dry weight.

Now, McCormick's Jersey Cream Sodas have all the moisture baked out of them. Consequently cost only a trifle more than bread. But there is whole milk and more shortening in Jersey Cream Sodas—otherwise ingredients are the same. And you would never think of eating a loaf of bread without spreading on at least 2c. worth of butter—while Jersey Cream Sodas are usually eaten without.

You see, there is very little difference in cost of using McCormick's Jersey Cream Sodas in place of bread—so serve them at meal times.

Enjoy their delightful crispness and superfine flavor—equal to bread in nourishing properties. Purity assured by our chemist's analysis of all ingredients. See that "Little Lord Fauntleroy" trade-mark is on package.
