The weather for the past two weeks has been a most delightful relief from the arctic weather of January. It has been more like the weather of March than of February. The severe storms seem to have spent themselves in January.

There appears to be very little in the yarn that "a strong flow of gas and oil has been struck near Meaford." Some frisky liar has evidently got hold of the Associated Press correspondent and primed him with his own gas—and probably oiled him, too.

Our fellow quill of the Dundalk Herald says a white faced minorca hen owned in Dundalk layed three eggs in one day. We are inclined to doubt the bona fides of Bre'r McIntyre's information because, you see, there is no such thing in henology as a white faced minorca.

Tenders will be received for painting papering, varnishing, cleaning and repairing the Court House and surrounding buildings at Owen Sound. Specifications of work may be had from C. H. Thompson Chairman Speceial Committee, County of Grey, Box 955, Owen Sound, Ontario. Tenders will be opended Feb. 20, 1920.

Mrs. John McWhinney of the Irish Lake settlement died very suddenly on Friday afternoon last while driving along the west back line near Cairns' corner, two and a half miles from Flesherton. She, with her daughter, were driving in a cutter to Mr. Boyce's on Stone's line, and when at the railway crossing the horse became restless at a passing train, and both women got out while the daughter intended to hold the horse by the bridle. As soon as Mrs. McWhinney had alighted from the cutter she collapsed and in a few moments was dead. The coroner was notified but did not think it necessary to hold an inquest. Mrs. McWhinney was a very stout woman and death was due to the bursting of a blood vessel internally. She was a member of Chalmers' Presbyterian church, Flesherton. She leaves behind besides her husband a family of four sons and two daughters. Her age was 51 years. The funeral took place Monday afternoon to Flesherton cemetery.

Osprey and Artemesia Councils are held over until next week.

Mr. Walter Cargoe spent the week end with friends in Owen Sound.

J. W. Ford, a prominent citizen of Markdale, died on Jan. 28 at the age of 83 years.

The postponed meeting of the library board will be held on Friday evening of this week at 8 o'clock, in the library.

Rev. James Dudgeon of Tottenham spent several days of the past week in town, assisting at the evangelical meetings. He returned home on Tuesday morning.

We make a charge of 10c a line for all church announcements, concerts etc., up to 5 lines. Over that number 5c a line. No reading notices inserted under 50c. Count six words to the line.

The evangelistic meetings held here for the past three weeks by Mr. Sharpe are being brought to a close Wednesday evening of this week, and the evangelist goes to Owen Sound to commence a series of meetings there. It had been proposed to close the meetings here on Friday last, but renewed interest was manifested and with the consent of Owen Sound officials Mr. Sharpe decided to remain over here for a few days longer. The meetings have been very successful.

The Importance of Storing All Harvesting Tools and Machinery After Use.

The importance of storing all harvesting tools and machinery after use is an economic factor still to be realized by a very large percentage of farmers. Much of this apathy on the part of the farmer towards the proper care and management of his farm equipment is due in a large measure to the lack of appreciation of the fact that tools and machines cannot give maximum of efficiency when allowed to become coated with dirt and rust.

The first requisite in this direction is to properly house them. This above all is the most important. It is needless to show the rapid deterioration of steel, iron, wood, canvas, or anything that goes into the construction of farm machines, when they are out of doors and exposed to the elements. Of course, the factors conditioning their life and working efficiency are corrosion of the metals entering into their construction, due to atmospheric actions; the disintegration of the paint and varnishes from the same cause, and the decay of the wooden parts due to heat and moisture. There is, however, no reliable data available that will give us the coefficient of corrosion, but every farmer is aware that the moldboard of a plough subjected to dewy nights or damp weather conditions for a few nights will so rust the bright moldboard as to pit its surface that it requires several rounds of the field to bring it back to good working condition. Such a hard metal is undoubtedly much slower to corrode than either cast or wrought iron, hence machines and tools left out exposed to all kinds of weather, the bearings and working parts of machinery and the cutting edges of tools will become so badly affected with rust as to render new parts necessary in the machines and good grinding and honeing of the tools to put them in workable condition.

The question of good and efficient management of machinery is an important one to the farmer if he only could be made to realize the amount of hard cash he loses through his indifference and neglect of them. What farmer would not protest in vigorous terms if he were told when purchasing his binder, say for $150, that its life would be about thirty days — a competent authority estimates its average life to be twenty-four days used for six days in a year. Yet, through the same farmer's carelessness and indifference, a machine built to last at least twenty years is reduced to, say at most, five years.

At the present time there are many reasons why farmers should take good care of their equipment. One is the actual shortage of machines, and the other the saving in dollars in getting the most possible out of a machine before sending it to the junk heap.—Prof. John Evans, O. A. College, Guelph.
