It Will or It Won't

Shiloh's Consumption Cure will either cure your cough, or it won't. One or the other—sure. Try it and see. If it cures, the druggist keeps the money you pay for it. If it don't cure the druggist gives back the money. Every bottle carries a guarantee. 25cts., 50cts. and $1.00 a bottle. Good for Consumptions, Coughs Colds, Croup, Bronchitis, and Throat Troubles generally.

Fined One Hundred Dollars.—A farmer named James Bennett, of East Oxford, was last week fined $100 by Magistrate Field, of Woodstock, for keeping a cow afflicted with "lump jaw". This is a heavy fine but the Magistrate could have made it $200. In giving judgment the Magistrate said: "I feel called upon to impose a severe penalty. This practice of having diseased meat sold on our market is dreadful. Better to kill a man outright than to kill him by a lingering disease by giving him diseased meat to eat. This practice must be stopped." Lumpy jaw is becoming a very prevalent disease amongst cattle in this section also, and during the past week a good deal has been said about some animals that were recently sold in the vicinity of Lucknow, that were supposed to be afflicted with the disease.—Sentinel.

Stop It! Stop It!

Don't imagine for a minute that a cough amounts to nothing. Thousands of people are in their graves to-day who let a cough take its course. Stop that cough at once with Shiloh's Consumption Cure, which all druggist sell at 25cts., 50cts. and $1.00 a bottle. If it fails to help you, your money will be refunded.

FEW MEN ORIGINAL

Did you ever notice how few people are original in things they say and do? For instance, one man makes a fortune out of a simple thing; immediately hundreds of others try it. This is human nature. While it is gratifying to be the "first man" to bring out an idea, the great mass must be content to follow their leaders. There is one line that is always original, however, and that is the business of Bradley-Garretson Co., Limited, of Branford, Ont., because they continually bring out publications, to suit the times and season, thus their agents are kept steadily at it and make big money. In fact, no other occupation is more honorable, healthful, lucrative, or offers half as many opportunities for promotion. It is a life school. Many men and women in Canada to day, testify to the truthfulness of his claim, in fact, it is conceded on all hands, that one year's experience with this Firm is worth more to any young man or woman, than two or three years at College, from an educational point of view, and financially, it is all that can be desired.

CRUISE OF THE RIPPLE
Ye Editor Goes Sailing in a Steam Yacht

CHAPTER II

Domed with the azure of heaven,
Floored with a pavement of pearl;
Clothed all about with a brightness,
Soft as the eyes of a girl.

Girt with a magical girdle,
Rimmed with a vapour of rest—
These are the inland waters,
These are the lakes of the west.
—Campbell

Horse Island lies off the south-east point of the Manitoulin. It is nine miles long and from one to three miles wide, and is owned by a Detroit millionaire. There is a considerable quantity of timber upon it but the thing for which it is most noted is its rattlesnakes. These are common. At one lumber camp eighteen were killed in one day. Several were killed while we were there and the writer had the pleasure of skinning one. Rattlesnake harbor is a fishing station and is mostly occupied by French fishermen. These men make good money in favorable weather. One man caught 500 lbs. in one day while we were there and for the catch received 3½c per lb. This was, however, an exceptional catch. As at other stations, an agent of the Buffalo Fish Company resides here and purchases all fish after they are cleaned. They are then placed on ice in small boxes and piled away. A steamer makes the round of all stations twice per week to collect the fish, which are shipped from Wiarton to all points. The amount of fish collected each week from the Georgian Bay stations amounts to from 60,000 to 70,000 lbs.—30 to 35 tons. This is an immense quantity and gives one a good idea of the vastness of the fishing industry. The most important stations are Killarney, Little Current, the Bustards and Ducks. Georgian Bay is divided into three sections by government, and every fisherman has to pay a license fee of fifty dollars in each section. The Buffalo Fish Company, which has a monopoy of the purchases, is only a sub-company under that huge concern, the Booth Packing Company of Chicago. Its shipping point for fish is at present Wiarton, but one of the officials informed the writer that this will very shortly be transferred to Owen Sound, as facilities there are very much superior. Fishing is done in three ways—with net, troll and set-line. The set-lines frequently contain 500 hooks baited with pieces of herring. Trolling is done with the sailing skiff. White fish and salmon are caught in the northern waters of the Georgian Bay, but salmon only are caught in those of the south. Fishing this season has been very good at all points.

Rattlesnake harbor lies at the extreme eastern point of Horse island, and is formed by a hook on the end of the island.

Friday, July 28—We sailed this morning at 7.30, in fine weather, and rounding Cape Smith, a high promontory on the eastern end of Manitoulin, ran up to Wikwemikong for dinner. This is a most interesting Indian village under the supervision of the Jesuits, who have an industrial and educational establishment here. This place is known far and near for its annual ceremony of shooting the devil. Two devils are shot here annually—one in March and the other in August.—and it is said there is not even a remote possibility of the supply running short. Where they all come from is a mystery whose solution we will leave to others. They must grow from time to time, otherwise they could all be knocked hors de combat with one fusilade. The Jesuits allow the Indians here to retain this one heathenish practice as a small compensation and a compromise for having become Christians. We saw a large number of Indians here but could not distinguish devils from angels. We are, however, of opinion that the former species predominates largely. The wonder is that the devils do not annihilate the others.

We sailed away from here early in the afternoon for one of the most exciting runs of the whole trip. A nice stiff afternoon breeze sprang up and as we rounded the point into Manitowaning bay it was blowing fresh from the south-west, white caps were chasing each other and white spray flew over our bow in a manner quite startling to some of the party. The little vessel would rise like a duck on one wave and crash like a thunder bolt into the next. As the Captain and Pilot stood at their post a big wave came dancing over the bow and took the Pilot under the chin, and from there rolled down under his sweater and brought up in his boots. A casual glance to the stern revealed the fact that the Steward had all four life preservers attached to his person in various fantastic ways, and held a tomahawk in his hand ready to cut away the painter on the dingy. The engineer was attending calmly to business—nothing could rattle him—but the rest of the party all had a wistful let-me-get-to-shore kind of look, that was very pathetic. Something less than a ton of water had found its way in and all the baggage was soaking wet. There was too much water for comfort, and too much for "Billie's" "sipher" to pump out, so discretion was made the better part of valour and a run was made for the lee of Heyward island, where a fine little harbor of shelter was found. We speak of this run now with amusement, but it really was unpleasant to say the least. The quotation at the head of this chapter would scarcely be appropriate if these "lakes of the west" were judged by the mood in which we saw them that afternoon, but fortunately it is not necessary to judge them by this small tantrum. Towards evening the wind went down and we departed from our little haven for Little Current, ten miles to the west. To our right lay Great Cloche island, reaching all along our course; to the left Strawbery island, and Strawberry lighthouse straight ahead. The sun went down over the islands to the west as we steamed swiftly along, leaving a bright track of silver ahead—a silver paved highway up which we appeared to be speeding. Somehow this beautiful stretch of water reminded one of the pictures of Jacob's ladder with angels ascending and descending. The angels on this occasion, however, were all going up. Crossing a beautiful expanse of water after leaving Strawberry light, we entered the channel known as Little Current, just as the shades of evening were falling. This is a most enchanting spot, of which we will have considerably to say in our next chapter.
