Prof. Huxley says that the time is not far distant when Sunday schools for teaching science will be established in every parish in England.

Napoleon III. has determined to complete the Arc de Triomphe in Paris by placing on the summit the colossal bronze group which the first Emperor intended for the crowning of the edifice.

Sleighing in Bethel, Maine, last week, was lively. The people there have had five months and sixteen days sleighing, and the winter is not over yet.

The water in Lakes Champlain and Memphremagog was never known to be higher than at the present time.

In Edmund Yates's last play a gross caricature of Swinburne is introduced among the characters.

Phrenologist Fowler is lecturing in Missouri on free schools, and a paper in Detroit says that he is thus doubly a free-knowledgist.

Algeria being menaced by locusts, the Government has offered $100 for every 200 pounds of their eggs. The eggs will be crushed and buried with quicklime.

A leading member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, in a recent conversation on the subject of the Alabama claims and the probabilities of a war with England, scouted the latter proposition as utterly absurd and preposterous. Among the reasons advanced by him against a war with England were:—First, it would necessarily be a naval war, for the invasion and conquest of Canada would be only the work of a week. Being a naval war, the destruction of the commerce and shipping of both countries would be almost the only result. England has three times the number of steam vessels that we have, all her passenger and mail steamships being available at twenty-four hours' notice as a war flotilla. Second, a war with England would cost the United States at least $2,990,000, which would eventually end in repudiation. Meanwhile the incidental loss and suffering to both countries would be incalculable. Third, the United States cannot afford to hold the British North American possessions as conquered provinces. Four millions of discontented people on the north, and as many millions more on the south, would produce a state of affairs anything but pleasant. These in brief are few a of the reasons which render war with England improbable, if not impossible.

Miss Van Heusen of Albany recently returned home from Oil City, and on her way had a singular experience. Soon after entering a sleeping car her pocketbook, containing her ticket and some $50, was stolen. Her loss was made known to the conductor. Very soon afterward a person, so concealed with a shawl that it could not be discovered whether it was a man or a woman, appeared at the entrance to the state-room, threw the missing pocketbook in, and instantly disappeared. Upon opening the pocketbook, the lady found that it contained her ticket and all the money, with the exception of one $10 bill. If there be such a thing as a conscientious thief, this case furnishes an illustration of one who, having abstracted what was needed to supply some pressing want, returned the bulk of the stolen property to the rightful owner.

A member of Parliament has actually been found to assert deliberately that a man ought to pay his debts. This is Mr Jessel, who argued on Monday in favour of the principle universal everywhere except in England, that if a man acquired property after bankruptcy he should be ordered to pay his creditors. The common argument against this course is that a bankrupt would not work; but that is not found to be the case in other countries, where the surrender of property does not entitle the bankrupt to a full discharge. In England emigration is so easy, and the subject is so complicated by our system of making partners indefinitely liable forfor each other's acts, that the total abolition of relief in bankruptcy would probably be intolerable; but imprisonment for debt being once abolished, the nearer we approach to that idea the sounder our credit will be. At present anybody can play a game of "Heads I win, tails you lose," buying more than he can pay for in the hope of a rise. If it comes, he profits; if it does not come, his creditors pay the damage, and he begins again.—English paper.

THE FUNNY THINGS.

WHY, MORRISON, said a friend to-day, I am proud to hear that you received an order from His Excellency the Governor General for some of your XXX PASTRY FLOUR and SUGAR-CURED HAMS; but I supposed he could have got them at Ottawa. Well, said I, if that's not the funniest thing of all the funny things. Were you aware that my Flour and Hams and Kiln-Dried Oatmeal are constantly used in many of the best families at Ottawa? Did you suppose but the Governor General knew where to get good things as well as humbler folks? 100 barrels Thistle Mill Flour expected Monday. 200 bags best Family Flour do. 25 barrels Kiln-Dried Oatmeal on hand. Everybody deals at MORRISON'S, and Morrison thanks everybody.
