Farmers' Institute
We were again favored with a meeting of Centre Grey Farmers' Institute on the 3rd inst. The deputation consisted of Major Sheppard, Queenston, and John Echlin, Carleton Place. In the absence of the President, J. M. Davis, Vice President, presided. The first speaker called was John Echlin, who spoke on co-operative Dairying. He urged the importance of attending to all the little details so essential to success in all occupations. The British market requires our cheese to be not so firm and a little richer. The average curing room should be made better so as to govern the temperature to a certain extent. The care of stock was then touched upon and absolute cleanliness advocated in the care of the raw material to produce a good article and to hold a first place in the market.

M. Richardson, Esq., was then asked to take the platform. He spoke briefly on the subject of Good Roads, and from the figures he gave of the money and statute labor expended in our county it was evident there had not been the wisest management.

Major Sheppard was then introduced. He touched on the varied knowledge required by the farmer. He agreed with the previous speaker that better roads could be had for the same money, and by utilizing the great amount of grand material lying on our roads and fields in the shape of stones. Coming to his subject, "Export Bacon Trade," the increase in the last 7 years had been from $75,000 to seven and a half millions. He admitted our coarse grains had been high and the hog product low, but that the high price of coarse grain was in a measure due to the amount used to produce the bacon. In speaking of the type of hogs, he went back some 500 years to the razor back and coming down to the recent improvements, the thick, fat hog and the return again to the longer and leaner breeds to suit the American and British markets Canadian Bacon brought from $3 to $5 higher than the American. It was this poor quality of some of the Canadian bacon that brought down the average price. There did not appear to be so much in breeds from the block tests at the fat stock show, and one peculiar fact was the men who required that ideal bacon hog shall weigh between 160 to 200 lbs. when acting as judges gave the prize to hogs weighing 220 lbs. He maintained that corn did not make soft bacon. One reason for pork being lower in the fall was the large amount of poultry that was used at that season of the year. Hogs weighing from 160 to 200 lbs. were made into Wiltshire bacon. These made sides weighing from 47 to 50 lbs. with back bone and shoulder bone out. Cumberland cut was made from those over 200 lbs, with the ham off, and brought the same price.

W. G. Pickell, Esq., then spoke on the hog and his price and the advantage of home manufacture to improve the same.

John Boland, Esq., spoke for a short time on roads and gave his experience in raising hogs.

The first speaker of the evening was John Echlin, who took up Creamery work in connection with Cheese Factory work. This subject has been frequently dealt with and often better.

After music by Mrs. Blackburn and Mr. Barnhouse, Major Sheppard was called, his subject being, "Four reasons why we till the Soil." The first was a good bed. Success largely depended on this. There was much room for the study of the conditions of each individual farm. The 2nd reason was to kill the weeds and to be on the watch for new weed seeds. The 3rd was to retain moisture and increase heat. The 4th reason was not so well understood even by the best authorities. The soil is full of small plants, minute organisms or micrococcus. For their action to be at all effective warmth in the soil is required and this is more active in the summer and with good tilling.

Mr. Sheppard and Miss Joy gave a duet.

The Rev. Mr. Jos. Ward gave an interesting discourse on our Dominion, which was followed by a song by Mr. Barnhouse.

Major Sheppard was asked again to make a few remarks. He said he would not attempt to take up his evening subject, "Three Historical Days on the Niagara River," but would briefly describe one, the battle of Lundys Lane. He told the plan of the British in sending a mere handful of men to engage the American army and check their advance while the main army was preparing for the attack, which began near night and at three different times before the battle was won both armies had to cease from battle from sheer exhaustion, when nothing but the moans of the wounded and dying could be heard. When the third call of the bugle to arms was given near morning it was found that the Americans had retreated and the battle was won.

The meeting was brought to a close by singing God Save the Queen.

Thomas J. Rorke, postmaster of Heathcote, is dead at the age of 72 years. Deceased was born in Prince Edward County, Ont., on the 12th of May, 1827, where he resided for 20 years, moving from there to the Township of Colling wood in 1847, at a time when only eight settlers were in the township. He has held the office of postmaster of Heathcote for about 50 years, to which he was appointed by the Postmaster General of England. He was also Clerk of the Fourth Division Court in Grey County for 40 years.
