CARDINAL CULLEN AT DUBLIN CASTLE.

Referring to the invitation of Cardinal Cullen to Dublin Castle, the Freeman's Journal says:—"All honour to the feeling which seems to move the noble heart of an Irish proprietor (the Marquis of Abercorn), who lives amongst his Irish tenantry, and who has learned to comprehend what is due to Irish feeling. The Roman Catholic prelate of this diocese is invited with every circumstance of honour and respect to share the viceregal hospitalities by his proper designation, 'The Cardinal Archbishop of Dublin'; is invited to meet the eldest son of the sovereign, the future king of these realms, and his illustrious consort. Amongst the distinguished personages present, to his Eminence is given his proper place, next immediately after royalty, and all that is due to his rank is fully accorded to it. Nay more, that Princess, whose winning beauty and gracious mien are making Irish hearts her subjects, indeed showed especial favour to the head in this country of the Church, which is the Church of the affections of the Irish people; to his Eminence invitations are repeated, and this respect and favour in which the Prince and Princess of Wales have learned to hold this Prince of the Holy Roman Church are openly and nobly evidenced. No act of the royal visit will be more gratefully received than this."

An English elm tree, which by vote of the town of Boston, was placed on Tremont mall in the year 1733, was dug out and removed recently, having died at the advanced age of 134 years.

The Army and Navy Gazette says.—We are glad to say that the authorities in Canada feel justified, by the state of the Dominion, in allowing two, if not three, regiments to be withdrawn. In consequence, the 2nd battalion of the 17th Regiment will shortly embark for home, and the 30th will proceed to Nova Scotia to take the place of the 2nd battalion of the 4th, also ordered home. The number of battalions embarking for abroad in the winter of 1868-69 will be thus reduced. As far as can be now foreseen, the embarkations will be as follows: 62nd, 39th, and 1st battalion 21st for India; 28th and 52nd for Malta; 48th for Gibraltar; and 71st for Malta. The 1st battalion 17th will then be the first for foreign service, and it will probably remain and form part of the Indian relief of 1869.

SIR ROBERT NAPIER.—The Spectator does not believe any General ever accomplished a greater feat in military organization than this invasion of Abyssinia, ever displayed more of the best qualities of a commander than Sir Robert Napier has done. He has no dash; Dashing on boulders is brainless work; but when Sir Robert Napier, with a handful of wearied men, flung himself across Tantia Topee's path, and turned a march which would have raised all Central India in insurrection, want of dash was not the precise foible attributed to him. There are no incidents? Incidents in a campaign like this—a campaign of explorers—mean blunders, and the expedition is eventless only because the General has committed none. He has risked nothing, forgotten nothing, hurried nothing, but has tramped on straight to his end, and will, we firmly believe, after accomplishing his object, and rescuing the prisoners, carry back his army to Bombay as perfect in discipline and organization as when he left it, ready on a telegram from Sir S. Northcote to invade Egypt, or Japan, or Thibet. It is but poor encouragement to British Generals that service like that, the exact and punctual performance of an imminent task—a task at which two British Governments craved for four years—should be received in silence, or even seem to require apologetic explanation."

CAUTION.

THE perfection and cheapness of the "American (Waltham) watch have given it such a wide-world celebrity that unscrupulous dealers years ago imitated its style and pirated its trade marks. Irresponsible dealers are occasionally found who furtively trade upon the popularity of the American watch by selling a base imitation under the name of the genuine article.

It is hardly necessary to state that such watches are worthless as time-keepers, and when bought for the genuine are calculated to injure the high reputation which our watches have attained. The several grades of the American watch (except the lowest grade marked Home Watch Co.) are guaranteed by special certificate bearing the number of the watch and the signature of the Treasurer of the Company, R. E. ROBBINS. The purchaser should in all cases require one of these certificates, which is furnished to all dealers in the genuine watches.

The following are the trade marks on the several grades of our manufacture:—

AMERICAN WATCH CO.
APPLETON, TRACY & CO.
WALTHAM WATCH CO.
P. S. BARTLETT.
WM. ELLERY.
HOME WATCH CO.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD CO.
Office of the General Superintendent,
Altoona, Pa., 15th Dec., 1866.

GENTLEMEN—The watches manufactured by you have been in use on this Railroad for several years by our engine men, to whom we furnish watches as part of our equipment. There are some THREE HUNDRED OF THEM CARRIED ON OUR LINE, and we consider them GOOD and RELIABLE TIME-KEEPERS. Indeed I have great satisfaction in saying YOUR WATCHES GIVE US LESS TROUBLE and have worn and do wear much longer without repairs than any watches we have ever had in use on this road. As you are aware we formerly trusted to those of English manufacture, of acknowledged good reputation, but as a class they never keep time as correctly, nor have they done as good service as yours.

In these statements I am sustained by my predecessor, Mr Lewis, whose experience extended over a series of years.

Respectfully,
EDWARD H. WILLIAMS,
General Superintendent.
American Watch Co., Waltham.

NEW YORK CENTRAL RAILROAD.
Locomotive Dep't Western Division,
Rochester, Dec. 24, 1866.

GENTLEMEN—I have no hesitation in saying that I believe the great majority of locomotive engineers have found by experience that WALTHAM WATCHES ARE THE MOST SATISFACTORY of any for their uses. They RUN WITH THE GREATEST ACCURACY AND STEADINESS, notwithstanding the rough riding of an engine; and as I have NEVER KNOWN ONE TO WEAR OUT, they must be durable. I hope to see the time when railway companies will generally adopt your watches, and furnish them to all engineers and conductors. In my opinion it would greatly tend to promote regularity and safety.

Yours respectfully,
CHARLES WILSON,
Chief Engineer.

THE LATE LORD BROUGHAM.

Henry Brougham, Baron Brougham and Vaux was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, on the 19th day of September, 1779. This is the date as set down by all writers who have published biographies of him, but, strange enough, he does not appear to have been certain of his own age. It is related in this connection that in 1859 he replied to the author of a book of peerage, "I perceive that you have put me down as having been born in 1779." His secretary inquired if that was not the date. "I really cannot inform you," replied; "I am myself ignorant of the time. You should have ascertained from my sister, who knew all about it. Poor soul, she died a short time ago, and I forgot to ask her before she went." However truth there may be in this statement it seems to be tolerably certain that whether he knew the precise date of his birth or not, he accepted the time set down by his biographers, for we find him in December, 1867, in a letter addressed to Berryer, of France, referring to his having attained his eighty-ninth year.

He deceased was descended from an ancient and highly respectable Westmoreland family, and was through his mother, grand nephew of the well known historian William Robertson. At an early age he was sent to the High School and University of Edinburgh, where he pursued his studies with distinguished success, and, like the majority of youths, he was an active and laborious student of the more and more profound branches of education, and was noted for his attention to mathematics and physical science. On leaving the University, Mr Brougham travelled on the Continent, chiefly in Germany and Holland, and on his return to his native city was admitted to the bar in 1803. In 1803 he took an active part in the founding of the celebrated Edinburgh Review, to which periodical he became a valued contributor. His value to the Review was admitted by the editor, who wrote:—"After the third number he was admitted to our staff, and more for us than any body." The Review was established more as a political than for its profits as a commercial work, but after its success was assured the publisher volunteered to pay liberally for all contributions, instead of receiving them gratuitously as was at first intended. At this time Mr Brougham's circumstances were somewhat limited, and his pay for the Review added considerably to his income.

In 1807 Mr Brougham had already attained an enviable reputation as an advocate. In 1810 he was counsel before the House of Lords for a body of English merchants who conceived themselves injured in their business by the orders of council issued in retaliation of the Napoleon's Berlin and Milan decrees. On this occasion he spoke for seven hours at a time for two days, and his speech was remarkable for its eloquence, and overwhelming argument. In 1812 he contested Liverpool with Mr Canning at a memorable election, but failed to obtain a seat, and was consequently absent from Parliament for four years. In 1816 he was elected member for Winchelsea, and signalized his entrance by his opposition to the passage of the measures known as the Six Acts. In the great speech in Mr Brougham's life he had yet to come. Although the circumstances have become of the most distinguished men of the age and have left a brilliant name behind, it is doubtful if his fame would ever have been so great had not the trial of Queen Caroline, wife of George the Fourth, gave him, as it were, the cynosure of all eyes. He was Attorney General for the Queen at the time of the proceedings, and in defending her had the management of the case. In assuming the duties of his office he delivered two speeches. One before the House of Lords on the trial of divorce, and the other before the Privy Council in the argument for the coronation. The sympathies of the English people were unanimously with the most wronged and persecuted Queen, it is equally true that the influence produced by these two speeches was as lasting as it was electric. Mr Brougham's masterly defence was so far from the most formidable prosecution ever known in English law, although it broke down and was abandoned! After a brief but memorable popular idol, and at the Reform crisis of 1830 was the popular leader of the House of Commons. There he distinguished himself as a debater, and as the constant advocate of legal and constitutional reform. His position as Attorney General for the Queen gave him for the time precedence at the bar, which precedence he lost by Her Majesty's death; but in 1830 he was permanently invested with the silk gown. Early in the year 1830 Mr Brougham resigned the seat he had held in Parliament (for Winchelsea) in consequence of disagreeing with the Wellington ministry on the question of reform, but he was soon after returned for Yorkshire, which he continued to represent until the dissolution of Parliament consequent upon the death of George IV. and the accession of William IV. Brougham, representing Knaresborough, he took a leading part in the struggle for emancipation. He at the same time followed his profession as a barrister, having large practice, and leading numerous cases against James Scarlett in London and on the Northern Circuit, although at that time, through the influence of George IV. he had not the profit of the silk gown. After the dissolution of Parliament, Mr Brougham sought the suffrages of the electors of York and was elected by a decided majority. This was a great and decided triumph for him, as it was thought that the great constituency was incapable of rewarding a candidate who could not boast of high birth and noble connexions. At last, however, it was deemed advisable to give Mr Brougham the Great Seal and peerage. He was sworn in as Lord Chancellor, signalizing himself by his energy and ability in the passing of the Reform Bill, the Poor Law Bill, and by his great effort at law reform. It was the Lord Chancellor that he made the celebrated speech in the House of Lords in favour of reform. On the opening of the debate he spoke for five hours, and his speech has since taken its
