The Law's Peculiarities

The Grand Valley Star says:—The only case tried at the sittings of the Division Court here yesterday was one of much interest to those owning property near a railway. It was an action brought by John A. Campbell against the Canadian Pacific Railway Company to recover $25 damages for the loss of a quantity of oats destroyed by fire from the smoke stack of a passing engine. The oats were standing in the shock in a field adjoining the railway when they were set on fire by sparks from the engine alighting on one or two of the shocks. The wind was high at the time, and before the fire could be extinguished a large number of shockes were destroyed. The court held, however, that no express negligence being shown either in the construction of the engine or the running or management of it, the company were not liable, and judgment of non suit was rendered. Mr. J. A. V. Preston of Grand Valley put up a hard fight on the plaintiff's behalf, while Mr. Dinison of Toronto represented the C. P. R. We do not suppose this decision is any new construction of the law as we are informed that the authorities lay it down clearly but it seems to us to be an instance in which law is very much at fault. As a matter of fact a man may see himself burned out of house and home before his eyes by sparks from a locomotive and unless he can prove the locomotive was defective in construction or was negligently operated he is absolutely without redress so far as any claim on the company is concerned. Negligence such as is required can in many instances only be proved by the evidence of the employees of the company who stand to lose their places if they admit any carelessness on their part. What chance is there of getting at the facts under such conditions? This may be law but it does not seem to us to be justice, and it is about time the people of this country had some say in the making of the laws which govern railway corporations.

Our Dornoch correspondent informs us that Bentinck is a leader in patriotism inasmuch as two of her brave young sons are on their way to South Africa with the Strathcona Horse contingent. Mr. Geo. W. Ledingham, who left here last week, is also accompanied by the stalwart young David Burgess, of West Bentinck. David spent the past four years in British Columbia, and couldn't resist the temptation, when the opportunity came, to take his life in his own hands and go forth to fight in the cause of righteousness and liberty. We wish them both a safe return untouched by the weapons of the enemy—Chronicle.

McClure's Magazine for April will contain an article by William Barclay Parsons, cheif engineer of the American China Development Company, giving the result of his recent commercial explorations in the most secluded parts of China and showing what an immense market China offers American farmers, manufacturers, and merchants. ### Grateful Remembrance

Phillippians 1 : 3-11

In affection's temple seated
Thou possess an honored place:
Kindly are your words repeated;
Oft we seem to see your face.

When in morning's beaming splendor,
Nature is surpassing fair,
Then with pleadings warm and tender
We remember you in prayer.

When the mid-day sun is shining
In the cloudless sky above,
Round you came his beams combining
Seem to form a wreath of love.

When the evening shadows stealing
Tell of sweet content and rest,
We before his presence kneeling
Breathe for you our hearts' request.

Then we think of those fair season,
In the years of long ago,
When we learned from many seasons
To admire and love you so.

Light and help we are obtaining
From the helpful things you say:
Precious truths you are explaining
In a most suggestive way.

While your influence is growing
And fresh honors crown your brow,
Comfort may you find in knowing
That your friends all think of you.

Colburne Ont. 1900 T. Watson.

From Our Own Correspondent

Our saw mill hasn't presented such a business aspect as it does at present for many a year, the yard is piled thick with logs some of which are the finest ever drawn into Priceville. One elm was pulled in by Mr. Sidney Blakeston last week which measured 41 inches across the small end. The tree grew on Mr. Hugh Walters' farm.

A cutter load and two sleigh loads of young folks from this burg attended a social last Friday evening at the residence of Miss Lizzie Campbell, near Hopeville. They had a good time.

Last Friday as Mr. D. Hincks and S. Blakeston were hauling an elm log through Mr. N. McKechnie's field the sleigh suddenly cut off the road and the log rolled completely over, the sleigh occupying a position along the top of the log with the runners upward.

Eugenia.

From Our Own Correspondent

The Christian Endeavor society of the Presbyterian church, Flesherton, came out on Wednesday evening last to visit the Eugenia society. The roads were badly drifted and the party had a scry time getting along, but a cordial reception awaited them when they arrived here, and a very pleasant time was spent. Unfortunately the bad roads prevented a great many of the Eugenia people from being present to welcome them.
