Currants and Gooseberries.

If a currant or gooseberry plantation is properly cared for, at least eight to ten crops may be expected before it becomes unprofitable because of its age. Productive fields over twenty years old are not uncommon in some sections. Although the number of years a plantation will continue in good bearing condition depends to some extent upon location and soil, the most important factor is the care which it receives. The period of productiveness of both currant and gooseberry plants is longer in northern regions than toward the southern limits of their culture and longer on heavy soil than on sandy soil.

In gardens where the available land is limited in extent, currants and gooseberries may well be planted among the tree fruits and left there permanently. The shade of the trees protects the fruits from sun scald, and the foliage is usually healthier in such locations than when grown where it is freely exposed to the sun.

A place with good air drainage is preferred for gooseberries. In low, damp places mildew attacks both fruit and foliage more severely than on higher sites where the air circulation is better. Currants, however, are seldom severely attacked by mildew. Therefore, when the site is a sloping one, currants may be planted on the lower parts and gooseberries above. As both fruits blossom very early in the spring, neither should be planted in low pockets where late spring frosts may kill the flowers.

Gooseberries ordinarily are propagated by mound layers. The plant from which layers are to be procured should be cut back heavily before it begins to grow in the spring. By July it will have sent out numerous vigorous shoots. It should then be mounded with earth half way to the tips of the shoots. By autumn the shoots will have rooted. Those with strong roots may then be cut off and set in the nursery, to be grown for one or two years before planting in the field. If the roots are not well developed, it will be better to leave the shoots attached to the parent plant for a second year.

Preparing for Gardening.

This month begins the active gardening work. Hot-beds should be made, and the seed of the early plants like cabbages, cauliflower, early celery, early beets, and the long season plants like tomatoes, egg plants and peppers should be started. Many of these seeds for small gardening work may be started inside which will relieve the necessity of making hot-beds until the first part of next month. Manure for top-dressing the ground may be hauled out the latter part of this month.

Put spraying machine into good condition, and test it.

Keep plant aphis in check by using some tobacco preparation.

CARMICHAEL'S RESIGNATION

The resignation of Hon. D Carmichael from the Hydro Commission last week, as a protest against the reckless saturnalia expenditure, came as a bombshell to the special friends of Sir Adam Beck and the limit men who want hydro radials and huge developments, regardless of expenditure. Mr. Carmichael evidently thinks it probable that there is a class of men who are only too willing to embarras the farmer government by cajoling them, or even forcing them, into an expenditure that will discredit them completely in the eyes of the country, and he is willing to drop a nice little salary for the sake of drawing attention to this state of affairs. All honor to him! This was a danger that was foreseen from the moment Mr. Drury came into power. He has not always been able to fend off the attack, but has fought valiantly.

In tendering his resignation Mr. Carmichael told of his assurance to the House last session that

"the first five units would be completed at a cost of $55,000,000. Up to the end of January the expenditure had grown to the sum of $61,083,215, and the engineers of the commission now estimated to complete five units by about March or April of 1923 there would be necessary a total expenditure of $68,865,603, which, with an allowance of $3,500,000 for material and equipment salvaged, would make the net expenditure $65,365,603."

A WHITE MAN IN THE FENCE

A peculiar financial puzzle exists in this village which is confusing to the minds of our village fathers to a considerable extent, and which will have to be solved at once or some of the officials will be stricken down with insomnia and nervous prostration.

The trouble appears to be that there is, according to the treasurer, nine or ten hundred dollars more on hand than the auditors can find justification for. The item has been passed along from year to year without any person being able to discover where the money came from or to whom it belongs. The time has now arrived when the treasurer wants this matter cleared up. If the money belongs to him he wants to know it; if to the town, he wishes to know from whence it came, and who is responsible for its existence as an asset to the village. There is a possibility that the matter will not be cleared up without the assistance of the Municipal Auditors. At least it is very satisfactory to know that the books have not been exchanged and a deficit chraged up instead of a surplus. If the amount is found to be due to a hydr miscalculation in the early stages of the hydro "game", as some think it will, this tidy little sum would place the village on "easy street" with our power bill, and probably have the effect of reducing our rates. It would be no "nigger in the fence"—it would be a white man.

The new Liberal leader's name is Hay. The farmer government should have looked Mr. Hay over in the first place, as his name might have been an asset to the U. F. O. ranks.

On Wednesday while walking on the road on his way up town, Mr W G Lauder met with a painful accident, in which he received a broken collar bone. Mr Lauder, quite deaf, did not hear a horse and cutter coming up behind him till it was quite close, and, hearing the bells, jumped right in the path of the oncoming horse and rig. He was knocked down and stunned and does not remember anything till he was being carried into the house. He is now doing nicely at the home of his son, Mr Cameron Lauder.—Durham Chronicle.

We Are Responsible

Business is a personal matter. You cant get away from it. Somebody has to be responsible for quality.

The deciding factor in every deal in "who's responsible?"

We are responsible for everything we sell you whether it be a car, a tractor, farm implements, tires, tubes, blow-out patches, auto repairing or what not. And the fact that you know we're responsible, and everybody else knows it, too, is the only thing that keeps our business good.

But this responsibility of ours would be an awful load—a liability rather than an asset—if we didn't buy our goods from people who are just as responsible to us as we are to you, and who always send us goods that we can stand back of.

That is why we sell you Chevrolet or McLaughlan cars, Samson Tractors, Cockshutt Farm Implements, Melotte Cream Separators, Goodyear, Dominion and Royal Oak Tires, etc.

Our responsibility is at the back of your car when you leave it with us for repairs. This also would be an awful load if we did not employ the best mechanics. Mr. Brackenbury will be in charge of the repair shop again this season and all work entrusted there will be done in a satisfactory way.
