Uncle Sam will hold his quadrennial election on Nov. 6, the day before Canada expresses herself, and the Newfoundland election comes off on the 8th. Thus rather exciting times will roll over this North American continent during the next two weeks.

The South African rebellion dies a hard death. Daily skirmishes are reported and a vigorous guerilla warfare is being conducted by the frenzied Boers, who evidently believe they have nothing more to lose and would rather die killing Englishmen than go back to their farms.

The political contest is now at its height and for the next two weeks the old school houses will echo and reecho with "unanswerable arguments," "convincing statements" and "powerful reasoning." The electors will listen and weigh results, but comparatively few will be influenced one way or the other as a result of the meetings. Still there is a "floating" vote and this is what the political fishermen are trying to catch, and as it is bound to come to somebody's hook the question is one of what is the most effective bait. The political newspapers are just now full to overflowing with announcements of forthcoming victory for both parties, and the average onlooker and reader finds himself in a maze if he attempts to fathom the actual condition of affairs. In our own riding of South Grey there is not much of this, both parties apparently working quietly and doing comparatively little shouting, and, so far as we can learn, neither party appearing to be any too sanguine, although both have "high hopes." In Dr. Sproule's riding there appears to be a sentiment existing that Mr. Hartman will give the worthy doctor a hot chase this time, although the Conservatives do not anticipate defeat. North Grey is putting up the hottest fight of the trio, and the Conservatives feel quite confident that riding will be redeemed. As to the Dominion as a whole, no living man can begin to form an idea of what the 7th of November will bring forth.

The Youth's Companion's Seventy-Fifth Year.

The new volume of The Youth's Companion for 1901 will mark the paper's seventy fifth year of continuous publication—seventy five years, during which it has had the approval of three generations of readers. The constant aim of The Companion is to carry into the home reading that shall be helpful as well as entertaining—reading that shall contribute to the pure happiness of all the family. Strong in the assurance that every reader gained is a friend won, the publishers offer to send The Companion free for the remaining weeks of 1900 to those who subscribe now for the new volume for 1901. There will not be an issue from now until 1902 that will not be crowded with good stories and articles of rare interest and value. Diplomatists, explorers, Sailors, Trappers, Indian Fighters, Story-writers and Self-Made Men and Women in many vocations, besides the most popular writers of fiction, will write for The Companion not only next year, but during the remaining weeks of this year. The new subscriber will also receive The Companion's new "Puritan Girl" calendar for 1901, lithographed in 12 colors. Illustrated Announcement of the volume for 1901 will be sent free to any address, with sample copies of the paper, THE YOUTH'S COMPANION Boston, Mass.

A most unfortunate accident, which resulted in the death of a well known person, John McVain, about 35 years of age, happened in the Blythe neighborhood, in the township of Normanby, on Friday last. The deceased, John McVain, was left on Friday in care of the house and its surroundings, while his brothers were engaged out of doors on the farm. Alexander indeed was ploughing not far from the house, and while so engaged in the afternoon, heard the report of a gun fired off apparently about the house. He at once left his work and hurried to the house. On opening the door of the kitchen he found his brother John lying on the floor in a pool of blood, dead. It would seem that the deceased, who by the way, prided himself on his sportsman abilities, having nothing to do, took up his gun apparently to examine it and interest himself in so doing. But unfortunately, while so engaged, the gun, which was loaded, went off, the charge passing through the skull and carrying off the calvarium, and scattered its contents on the floor. An investigation into the circumstances was made by the Corner, Dr. Gun, but an inquest was not considered necessary.—Chronicle.

Thanksgiving Day was quietly spent in town. Service was held in the Presbyterian church in the forenoon, Rev. Mr. Ward officiating. The woods was full of hunters, but chipmonks, red squirrels and snakes constituted most of the game captured.

Rev. G. Shearer, B.A., representing the Lord's Day Alliance, addressed a large mass meeting in the Presbyterian church on Sunday afternoon on the subject of the preservation of the Sabbath from secularization. Mr. Shearer is an entertaining and vigorous speaker and rivetted the attention of his audience for a full hour while he spoke from the basis of Jeremiah 17 and 27. In these days greed of gold and love of pleasure had joined forces and were endeavoring to encroach upon the sanctity of the Sabbath in various ways. The Bible admitted of two classes of work on the Sabbath—works of necessity and works of mercy but to these the two forces named desired to add works of commercial necessity and works of convenience. The speaker sarcastically unmasked the hypocrisy of the claims put forth in efforts to secularize the Sabbath, and entertainingly described the work done by the Alliance during five years past, the time it has been in existence. We might not see much of Sabbath breaking here, but that very morning he had seen young men playing golf at Markdale. The sermon was very keenly enjoyed by the large audience present.

Carter—Pye

The Meaford Monitor says: On Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 17, a very pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mrs. Pye, when Dr. Carter of Flesherton was united in marriage to Eliza, second daughter of the late Charles Pye. The ceremony was performed by C. J. Lister of Owen Sound. The bride wore a brown travelling suit with bluet waist, and was attended by her niece, Miss Fulton, of Woodstock, who performed the delicate duties assigned her in a most becoming manner. She was gowned in Tuscan silk lisse over white silk, with touches of black velvet. The drawing room in which the ceremony was performed was very tastefully decorated with evergreens and autumn leaves. Miss Pye has been closely identified with the educational interests of Meaford for several years, having been connected with the public school staff, and among the presents was an upholstered oak chair and a silver toast rack from the teachers and scholars. There was also a costly and handsome cabinet of sterling silver from Mrs. R. R. Fulton of Woodstock. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pye of Clarksburg presented the bride with a beautiful silver tea service. Conspicuous among the presents was a handsome marble clock from Mr. and Mrs. Tobias of Toronto. The presents were too numerous to mention in detail, and bore testimony to the high esteem in which the bride is held by her large circle of friends. Miss Pye will be greatly missed in Meaford, where she has for so many years devoted her talents in the educational sphere, but she carries with her to her new home many tokens of regard and esteem. After the conclusion of the ceremony a dainty dinner was served at the bride's home. The happy couple received many congratulations and expressed wishes for future happiness.

At the recent fall assizes at Stratford an interesting case was disposed of, when a jury awarded Thos. Skinner, an 18 year old Mitchell lad, $1,000 damages for the loss of his arm in the foundry of the Hardill Engine Company of Mitchell. The plaintiff obtained employment at the defendant's works, and instead of being put to work on a simple job, was set to run a planer. There was a loose bolt in the machine near the knives, which those who ran the machine were accustomed to push in with their hands every little while, and in doing this, by the order of his employer, plaintiff's hand was caught and his arm taken off nearly to the elbow. The facts were not disputed, the defence set up being that the accident was the result of carlessness on plaintiff's part, he having been instructed, it is alleged, to knock the bolt in with a board.

Mrs. Franklin, who lives near Marmora was leading a bull through the woods from a neighbor's last Wednesday. When considerable distance from home the animal turned on her, and, it is said, the ground in a twenty foot circle showed markes of the terrible pranks of the furious animal. Mrs. Franklin had one arm broken and a monstrous gash in the flesh. The other shoulder blade was broken, as was also her nose. Five ribs were also crushed, and the scalp and throat badly lacerated. She managed to crawl a mile to the house, and the doctor was summoned, who could not get there over the rough roads until six hours afterwards. Her case seemed hopeless, but so strong was her constitution that there is now hope of her recovery.—Herald.
