ABOUT VETERINARIANS

How to Become Skilled in Doctoring Animals.

A Profession That Should Appeal to Farm Lads — What the Ontario Veterinary College Can Do for Ambitious Student — Does the Collar Fit the Horse?

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

To every young man of worthy ambition there arises sooner or later a desire which tends to lure him into some occupation or profession congenial to his inclinations and offering an opportunity for advancement. In this regard the Veterinary profession is worthy of consideration as a suitable occupation and field of endeavor for the young man desirous of improving his own status in life and rendering useful service to the community at large. In recognition of this, the Ontario Department of Agriculture maintains the Ontario Veterinary College at Toronto for the purpose of training young men for the veterinary profession. It is affiliated with the University of Toronto, and is one of the oldest and best known colleges on the American continent. It has received students from all parts of the English-speaking world, and its graduates are favorably regarded, many of whom have attained considerable prominence. The College building is new and modern throughout and well equipped. The course is comprehensive, and covers a period of four years of seven months each term. The tuition fees are exceedingly moderate, averaging $85 for each College term. The purpose of the College is essentially that of a teaching institution for the proper training of men as Veterinarians. The prescribed course of study and instruction in Veterinary Science has much to commend it, and is particularly attractive and interesting. It trains the student to acquire a true knowledge of animal diseases, their treatment and prevention, thus fitting him for general practice as a veterinary surgeon. It trains the student for scientific pursuits, to conduct research work, and to solve many of the live stock problems occasioned by diseases with consequent national economic losses. It trains the student for sanitary service work in preventing the transmission of animal diseases to mankind through unwholesome milk or from meats and meat food products of doubtful origin. On graduation the opportunities are equal to that of any of the other learned professions, both monetary and in the wider sense of community service. There is an ever-increasing field for veterinary surgeons throughout the Dominion, in private practice and to establish a business career with good financial returns. There are constantly increasing demands for trained veterinarians in the Health of Animals Branch of the Dominion Government, as executive officers, investigators and veterinary inspectors. These positions are obtained by qualifying examinations held yearly and appointments are made on merit without influence. The initial salary is $1,800 per annum, with steady yearly increases until a salary of at least $2,400 per year is reached. There are increasing demands for veterinarians in the various departments of agriculture as veterinary inspector and for other branches of live stock work and instruction. Many cities and towns are in need of properly trained veterinarians to inspect dairies and abattoirs and to supervise the production of milk, meat and other food products. The field of veterinary science has only just touched the fringe of its possibilities, and offers many opportunities for the young man of worthy ambitions. The class of student desired is the young man with a high school education to meet entrance requirements and enable him to acquire a true grasp of the deeper principles of advanced thought and study.—C. D. McGilvray, V.S., President O. V. College, Toronto.

Meaford Justice Mill Busy

Meaford had quite a grist of offenders against the O.T.A. up before Magistrate Creasor one day last week. J. Ciglen was fined $300 for selling. Another charge of using false labels was dropped. Angus Tuohy of the Queens hotel was fined $200 for having wine in his possession testing out 28 per cent. alcohol content.

Two motor cases from Walters Falls were also tried. Wm. Rennie was fined $5 and costs for not having a 1922 marker on his car. His sister, Miss M. Rennie, was fined $5 and costs for sbeeding.

The defence was that the car was driven fast in order to reach a sister who was ill. "What would you do if your sister was ill and you were hastening to see her?" asked Miss Rsnnie, addressing the Magistrate.

"I would drive fast and pay the fine the same as you are going to do," replied Mr. Creasor, and the court

Bruce county jurors who did not present themselves at the Fall Assizes must pay a fine of $20.

Hanover Converters, Limited, is the name of a new company which has opened up for business in Hanover in the plant formerly occupied by the Hanover Cotton and Woollen Mills.

Fergus Doctor Fined

On information laid by Chief Officer Charles Jones, of the dispensing department of the Ontario License Board, Toronto, Dr. A. D. Barnett, a Fergus physician, was arraigned in the police court before Magistrate Hellyer, charged with giving liquor prescriptions in evasion of the Act.

Defendant entered a plea of guilty and was fined $100 and costs, or two months in default of payment. The penalty, which amounted to $125, was paid. Evidence submitted by County Crown Attorney J. M. Kearns of Guelph who conducted the prosecution, showed that Dr. Barnett had issued 600 prescriptions during the months of August and September, and 640 in October on two Fergus drug stores, in addition to those which he had given on the dispensaries at Toronto and Hamilton.

Mr. T. C. Glassford's fine bank barn on the 2nd line east, Caledon, was destroyed by fire. The year's crop and most of the farm implements were in the building and were consumed. Mr. Glassford was doing the morning chores and set the lantern on the floor, while he went to another part of the barn. We understand that the lantern either upset or exploded. Building and contents were insured in the Peel Mutual.
