IS IT PATRONAGE ?

It is rumored in Owen Sound that Major Thomas Rutherford will be appointed Clerk of the County Court. Major Rutherford was the defeated candidate in last election, and as such is apparently being appointed to the Clerkship, which the Law Association of the county has petitioned should be filled by a lawyer, as justified by the duties of the office.

Apparently the U.F.O. Government is weakening on the eve of election and is either preparing to reward its servants before it goes off the scene, or else to buy the renewed support of its previous supporters.

In any case, if the rumor is correct, it looks like our old friend, Patronage, back again, despite the pre-election talk of 1919.

AVOID JEALOUSY

The Owen Sound Sun-Times is making good as a county daily, and the management are to be congratulated. Still, there are one or two things that might be suggested by way of improvement. The most important of these is along the line of its already fine correspondent department. It has clever correspondents at Flesherton, Meaford, Hepworth and Lions Head, but the smaller places, such as Durham and Hanover, are unrepresented. Little towns like these should not be overlooked, while Flesherton hogs the pages. No doubt Bre'r Fleming will rectify this matter as soon as his attention is drawn to it, otherwise Durham and Hanover might develop a jealous streak.

BUSINESS SENSE MAY WIN

A Kincardine paper advocates church union in the winter months in order to save fuel. This is a practical reason for the change, but it is by no means the only practical reason, which includes the saving in salaries, consolidation of funds and clerical work. But so far the sentimental side of the question appears to outweigh the practical. When the burden becomes too great for upkeep and funds fail to meet the required end, perhaps the hard headed business sense of the church membership will come to the rescue and church union will become an established fact.

THE FIGHT IS ON

The irascibility developed in the Ontario Legislature last week is another evidence that an election is not far away. There are about six men in the House who make all the noise and who snap and snarl like a pack of huskies, but as for oratory or argument the less said about it the better. Still, the viciousness is mostly on the surface—just a sparring exhibition to tickle the sporting instincts of either side. "You're a liar," may not be argument or oratory, but it is said to be a fighting word, and that is why our ears are offended with it. The fight appears to be on.

Profanity

Did you ever make a darn fool of yourself? We might have used stronger language, but stronger language would make a weaker question. The man who uses profanity and offensive superlatives in saying mean things of an opponent, or setting forth a real or imaginary grievance, is weakening his own case and losing the sympathy of his audience. The Good Book was right when it said: "Let your communication be yea, yea, and nay, nay, for whatsoever is more than this cometh of evil." Put a bridle on your tongue and hold it with a tight rein. Many a person gets into trouble by talking too much. If this hits you it means you. Think about it. It may do you good.—Durham Chronicle.

Frank B Gregory, a resident of Collingwood for fifty years, lumber dealer, died there last week.

Joseph Goetz of Hepworth, who was sentenced to six months' imprisonment for an infraction of the Temperance Act, was released from custody after putting in three months at the Walkerton jail.

There passed away last week at the residence of her daughter, Mrs A Smith, Collingwood, one of the oldest residents of Collingwood in the person of Mrs Conrad Hawman who had reached the extraordinary age of 98 years.

The Shelburne Creamery, which was in the hands of the sheriff, has been sold. The building, together with machinery and utensils, went to J. A. Hughes of Laurel Creamery, for the sum of $10,050. The chopping mill is still unsold.

Sealing the Silo.

Several methods of sealing the silo after it has been filled have justified their use. What is wanted is a heavy blanket of material on top as near air tight as possible. A Minnesota writer says:

Some times weeds or heavy green grass are run through the cutter as a finishing layer. Some prefer to jerk the ears from the last two or three loads of corn used so no grain is lost, and allow the corn itself to make the air-tight layer needed to preserve the silage below. At any rate, it is a good practice to tramp the silage around the edges at intervals of three or four days for about two weeks. This helps to prevent the settling away from the wall, which often occurs.

Spoiling at the surface may be prevented entirely by covering the top of the silage when filling is completed with a layer of tar paper cut to fit snugly around the walls and overlapping between the strips. If this is used, it is advisable to weight it with some green material of some kind or with boards. Most farmers, however, think the use of corn itself with the ears removed and with proper tramping is more economical than the use of paper.

In filling the silo the usual recommendation is to keep the surface higher at the sides than in the center and to do most of the tramping near the wall. The last two feet had best be kept about level with the same amount of tramping in all parts of the silo.

MAKE A COMPOST HEAP.

Save the Garden Rubbish and Make Cheap and Valuable Manure.

Garden waste, decayed vegetables, dead vines, weeds, and the organic rubbish that collects about the place during a busy summer may be cleaned up and put to work again through the agency of a compost heap. Start the heap by laying down a bed of stable manure which has not been burned or heated. The size of the plot will vary with the amount of refuse to be used; for ordinary uses, if the bed is made 8 feet long by 6 feet wide and 2 feet deep it will serve the purpose. Over the manure spread a two-foot layer of refuse and cover with another layer of manure. This last layer need be only a foot in thickness. Repeat the layers until all the waste has been disposed of and then cover the whole with a layer of earth.

If it is desired to add to the heap from time to time the top layer may be opened and the new material emptied into the hole thus made. This is convenient for the suburban home where there is no animal to consume the kitchen waste. In the spring the heap is well mixed with a fork and the compost is ready to be spread on the garden plot. The heating manure will effectively destroy any weed seed present and will also break down the structure of most of the materials that have been thrown upon the pile. The process may be continued indefinitely by simply adding enough manure to insure heating. Compost is especially valuable for use in hotbeds and cold frames.
