Wonderful Results From Two Weeks' Treatment

Mr. Burrell Suffered Untold Agony From Sciatica, Rheumatism and Lumbago—Dreco, the Only Remedy That Helped Him—Rapidly Regaining Normal Activity.

Tortured cruelly by sciatica, rheumatism and lumbago, Mr. F. Burrell, of 509 Ottawa Avenue, London, like many another workingman, was forced to hide his sufferings and carry on with his daily toil. He had a family to support. Little did anyone, except his wife, realize the effort it was costing him as he left his home each morning with only grim determination between him and a breakdown. A year and four months he carried on, without a change, though medicine after medicine was tried. Then Mrs. Burrell heard of Dreco. Let her tell you of the wonderful results it achieved in two short weeks.

"My husband suffered for the past year and four months with sciatica, lumbago and rheumatism. He had terrible pains across the back, just over the kidneys, so that at times he could hardly get around. He was constantly taking laxatives, his appetite was miserable and very seldom did he get a restful night. Nothing helped him until two weeks ago I heard of Dreco and persuaded him to try it. Now he is like a new man. The pains in his back and limbs are almost gone, his bowels are like clock work, and he sleeps like a tired child. No other remedy has ever gone to the bottom of his troubles like Dreco. It has worked wonders and gladly do we praise it."

Men and women of all ages and conditions can once again know the joy of a springy, pain-free, healthy body by allowing Dreco the natural herb and root remedy, to tone and regulate the whole system. Its gentle action gives immediate relief to the most obstinate cases of stomache, liver, kidney and intestinal disorder.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Flesherton by C. N. Richardson, and is sold by a good druggist everywhere.

The Nickawa Concert

The snow blizzard of Wednesday evening last was enough to destroy the success of any entertainment, but not so with the Nickawa concert in the Methodist church, when a splendid audience was present. Had the weather been good the church would not have held all those who wanted to hear this talented young woman. Without exaggration, Flesherton has never heard anybody that could quite equal her in expression. Her subjects were such as have been heard by most of us before, but in her hands they put on new meaning, a new spirit that made one wonder that they never before recognized the beauties of the pieces she gave.

The first half of the program was of a general nature, with extracts from Drummond, including "Little Bateese," and others, also a patriotic piece, "Canadian Boys."

In the second half of her program Miss Nickawa appeared in a native costume made of doeskin, beaded, fringed and worked in silk. In this dress she looked the ideal Indian princess, and made a charming picture. And then she gave us "The wooing of Hiawatha," Longfellow's classic, and her depiction of the Indian lover and Minnehaha, the arrow maker's daughter, was a marvellously fine piece of work, as also was the selections from Pauline Johnston, of which she gave three, including "The Song my paddle sings."

The program was interspersed with some really exellent numbers by local talent.

There was not a person present who do not hope to again hear Miss Nickawa some day—but it will probably be a long time before they do, because next year she expects to go to Australia and to remain in the antipodes for three years.

Miss Nickawa is a wonderful artist and a great credit to the lady—Miss Riley—who adopted her when only two years old, and who has given her a splendid education and developed in her a degree of art such as few can attain. The young lady is a charming conversationalist, free and friendly, accomplished in all of woman's ways, and a personage that it is pleasant to meet in a social way. She is accompanied on her tour by her "auntie," the lady who adopted her.

The ladies will be interested to know that the native costume worn was largely made by Misses Nickawa and Riley themselves and is valued at $250.

"FEELING" FOR LAYERS

This Method Is About as Certain as the Trap Nest.

Experiments With Capons — Feeding Costs—Excellent Flesh Produced Without Confinement — Handling Baby Chicks.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The writer carried on a series of experiments with poultry when connected with the Agricultural Experiment Station for Vancouver Island, Sidney, B.C., and presents the following notes as among those worthy of consideration:

DETERMINATION OF EGG-LAYING

A test was made of the feeling method, to determine its accuracy. Thirty hens that were under trapnest record were subjected to the feeling process for eight days: January 17 to 24.

The results of "feeling" were checked up and tallied perfectly with the "trapnesting," indicating that it is quite possible for any careful person to determine which hens are laying by feeling the bird for the presence of the egg in the oviduct, in the early morning before she leaves the perch. The method also has an advantage in that it eliminates the necessary confinement of the birds in a "trapnest" for a period which is frequently longer than is actually required to produce an egg.

The great disadvantage of the feeling method is that it is impracticable for pedigree breeding, inasmuch that the eggs from individual birds cannot be recorded.

CAPONS.

Thirty cockerels were operated on when twelve weeks old. These birds were a thrifty and well-grown lot, overaging 2½ pounds in weight. After caponizing, they were kept under the same conditions as the cockerels. The feed cost for a pound increase in weight was slightly less for the cockerels up to six months of age. At this time the cockerels and capons weighed the same. These birds were killed for Christmas trade when 264 days old, and weighed, plucked, 8 pounds 2 ounces. The percentage of offal was low, being but 18 per cent. of the total weight. The birds were not crate fed, but were finished on a liberal milk ration. The quality of the flesh was excellent, and the wholesale price received was 30 cents per pound. The advantages of caponizing are that an excellent quality of flesh can be produced without confining the birds in small feeding crates and the tender flesh can be retained to a greater age and weight. The cockerels made just as good gains, and when milk fed in crates for two weeks, produced the same high grade of flesh. Following is the feed cost of an eight-pound two-ounce capon:

Feed cost to rear to end of third month	21.54c.
Feed cost to rear during fourth month	16.2
Feed cost to rear during fifth month	13.17
Feed cost to rear during sixth month	21.2
Feed cost to rear during seventh month	21.3
Feed cost to rear during eighth month	23.4
Feed cost to rear during December, 20 days	14.4
Total feed cost	$1.31¾

These birds were sold for $2.43 each wholesale, leaving $1.11¼ per bird. From this we can deduct 20 cents, the price paid for the bird as a day-old chick, and have 91¼ cents per bird for labor and shelter.

HANDLING BABY CHICKS.

In another experiment a thousand one-day-old chicks were procured from two reliable local breeders. The first day they remained in the incubator, and on the second day they were transferred to the brooder, but were not fed until forty-eight hours old. The following hints on general treatment are given:

Do not chill or overheat the chickens, or disastrous results will follow. If they pant they are too hot, and if they huddle together they are not warm enough.

Do not overfeed during the first week.

Change the water daily and see that it is perfectly clean.

Give plenty of green food.

Feed sour skim milk whenever possible.

Do not forget to supply charcoal, grit, and shell.

Make all change of food and feeding gradually.

Clean and disinfect brooder often.

Do not use damp, mouldy feed or straw.

Never allow chicks to crowd in brooders or colony houses.

Place chicks on the range in colony houses, after the eighth week.

Do not let the cockerels and pullets run together on the range.—L. Stevenson, Sec., Dept. of Agriculture.

A farm needs a windbreak in summer as much as in winter. Did you ever notice the difference in the garden and fruit plantation on two farms, one sheltered from the hot southwest wind and the other, exposed to it? The windbreak pays in dollars and cents.

When a new house is built among trees, none should be cut except those where the house actually stands. After the home is occupied, one can tell better which trees to retain for shade where it is most needed.

When our great-grandmothers were girls, tomatoes were called "love apples," and one or two plants were grown in the garden or flower beds on account of their bright red fruits. No one thought of eating them, for they were considered poisonous. When after a time it was found that they were not poisonous, people began to eat them and they soon became one of the standard garden vegetables.
