THE PEA WEEVIL.

In some parts of Ontario the pea weevil has become such a serious pest that many farmers have ceased growing peas So far this part has been entire'y free from the bug, but at Feversham fair last fall we noticed that some of the prize peas were full of them. The grain was said to have been grown at Thornbury and was exhibited at East Grey fair where it also passed the judges. If this grain was actually grown at Thornbury it is getting pretty near home. Farmers should be extremely careful where they get their seed. The Guelph experimental farm, we believe, is sending out for testing a seed pea which is said to be bug proof.

There is a rank combine among the paper manufacturers of Canada and publishers are being inordinately squeezed. The condition of affairs has been brought to the attention of the government and an investigation set on foot. We heartily concur with the Collingwood Bulletin when it says that "it would be in the interest of the public and treat the manufacturers as they deserve, were the government to remove the duty and declare for out and out free trade in this one line." It is one thing to foster a struggling enterprise but another to protect it to such an extent that it becomes an oppressor and a tyrant. Let government drop the duty by all means and allow the dusiness to stand on its own strength.

Talk about protection! Some of our professions are protected right up to the handle. The public at present are getting a little insight into this through the recent action of the Ontario Medical Council in suspending some seven hundred physicians from practice for non-payment of the annual fee of two dollars, which the government has empowered the Council to collect. These physicians under existing circumstances could be fined for practicing medicine, although they have a certificate for so doing. This Medical Council is something mysterious. It has abnormal powers and appears to be responsible to nobody. It was built to protect the physicians themselves and maintain the interests of the profession, but there are at least seven hundred of them who think its day of usefulness is past and refuse to maintain it with their donations any longer.

Enough attention is not paid to the black knot on plum trees and it is no wonder that it is increasing at such an alarming rate. It should be dealt with promptly. There is a heavy fine for those who neglect to do so.

A Few towns can boast of having a centenarian, and Durham is one of the few. Mrs. Lawrence is over a hundred years old, and was seen last week tripping off to see one of her great grandchildren. The old lady is still in possession of her faculties, has a good memory and for a person of her age is well stored with physical vigor.—Chronicle.

Two young men named Grant and Robbins were standing in the porch of the Presbyterian church at Bond Head when the lightning that accompanied the the severe windstorm Sunday afternoon passed through the belfry into the porch Grant was killed instantly and Robbins badly stunned. Grant was 21 years of age and a son of Hector Grant, farmer, of West Gwillimbury. The spire of the English church was thrown down and the building otherwise damaged.

The Aberdeens III. will also try their mettle with the Dundalk Thistles. A football match between teams from Holland Centre, Chatsworth, Bognor and Walters Falls will be played. A three mile bicycle race and a bronco race are also on the bill. The bronco race will be an amusing affair and will be hotly contested. Foot races, jumping, etc., are also included.
