THE DUKE'S VISIT.

The Duke of York is now being fêted and feasted in Canadian cities, each metropolis vieing to outdo the other in giving a right royal welcome to our future king and his spouse. Toronto has set aside ten thousand for a display but since seeing the magnificent scale adopted by other cities, the Queen City is likely to dig down a little deeper into its pocketbook. As its turn comes at the rear end of the tour it will be obliged to do something very handsome if it wishes to "impress" his royal higness, who, by that time, will probably have been nauseated with the fuss and fume which his advent has caused. It is a wide contrast to his late visit in 1883, when the people scarcely knew who "the little Duke of York" was. At that time he was under the wing of Princes Louise, his royal aunt, and the Marquis of Lorne, who was governor-general of Canada, and the young man was totally overshadowed in the public mind by the two older personages. The writer had the pleasure of standing a few feet from the Duke when he visited Toronto, and all the cheers were given to the Marquis and Princess, while the little midshipman was practically ignored. But the whirligig of time has wrought a change in his affairs. In his recent journey around the world he has found homage and adulation of a quantity and degree which ought to satisfy any exacting prospective sovereign, and in Canada, his last port of call, the cup is apt to be charged to overflowing. We have no desire to be a prince of the blood and there are no sour grapes in this sanctum.

The Toronto World is kicking because, in the list of honors given by the Duke of York, Toronto University is not recognized. It argues that some graduate of that institute of learning should receive a title, this as a sort of a double-barreled honor—one for the university and two for the individual. The public will understand the deep significance of this protest when it is remembered that W. F. McLean, M. P., proprietor of the World, is a graduate of Toronto University. W. F. cannot be censured for possessing an overabundance of modesty.

When the late President McKinley was first elected to the White House he was looked upon with suspicion by Canadians and the opinion was held by them that he was merely a petifogging politician of a rather higher order than usual; but the time came when they learned the error of this opinion, and we believe we are within the mark in saying that no president of the United States was ever so sincerely mourned by the people of Canada as was Mr. McKinley. No such marked evidences of mourning were before vouchsafed to any deceased potentate of a foreign power as has been bestowed in this case. In other instances there have been expressions of sorrow and sympathy, but in this case the spontaneous voice of universal mourning has been something never before witnessed.

The latest news from South Africa is somewhat of a disquieting nature. The Dutch residents of Cape Colony appear to be joining the rebels in considerable force and things are looking rather serious. When we look thoroughly into the difficulties encountered by Great Britain the marvel is that she has been able to accomplish even what she has. A thousand miles of country to police and still adopt aggressive measures against the foe; a country five thousand miles away from the base of supplies; an army of thirty thousand months to feed and maintain in captivity; a climate unadapted to northern constitutions: in these we have a few of the difficulties and a few only. But Britain will surmount them! She will subdue the Boer or annihilate him, and it looks just now as though she would be called upon to do the latter.

Mr. Wm. Sperling, proprietor of the only house on wheels that has passed through these parts for some time, and family, started on their return trip to De Witt, Nebraska, yesterday. There is a charm about the novelty, no doubt, but we imagine that the residents of this unique homestead will just be the least bit weary before they reach their distant home. Mr. Sperling counts on making the trip in eight weeks.—Hanover Post.

Mr. Geo. Walter of Kimberley has recently purchased a magnificent bull of the Polled Angus variety in order to complete his herd which, we believe, he proposes exhibiting at the East Grey fair on Friday. The animal referred to tips the scales, when in good condition, at one ton.

Stayner must be a rare place to bring up a family. According to the Sun "any night after dark crowds of small boys ranging from 8 to twelve years of age can be found playing games, occupying door steps, spitting tobacco juice and making noice enough for a thousand wild animals, all along main street."

Programs have been issued for the second annual convention of the Artemesia township Sabbath school Association, which will be held in the Methodist church, Vandeleur, on Monday, October 7, when a profitable time is expected. A large number of topics dealing with Sabbath school work will be discussed by pastors of the district and others.

If you want to know the full meaning of the phrase "happy as a big sunflower" just call at this office and see the big head of that posey left with us last week by Mr. John White of the village. The specimen measured 14½ by 40 inches. It is on exhibition in the Advance window. If any person can beat this specimen let them trot along.

Mr. George Burritt, late of Kimberley, is moving to town this week, and will open a tailor shop in Clayton's block. Mr. Burritt is a quiet, industrious young man, and having learned cutting in Toronto last spring will be quite prepared to cater satisfactorily to the public. He has recently taken unto himself a most estimable young woman as helpmeet and we wish the young couple success and bespeak for them a hearty reception.

Fireman McAulay, who was on the engine in the Proton wreck, is still in a critical conditon. He is suffering yet from severe scalds on the side and hips, and at times is delirious.

There was a nice audience at the social evening given by the Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian church on Friday last. Refreshments were served and a pleasing program rendered, prominent in which was the singing of the old favorites, Mr. Sheppard and the Misses Joy. Rev. Buchanan of Dundalk was also present together with the local clergy. The evening was a most enjoyable one.

Special anniversary services will be held in the Methodist church on Sunday next, morning and evening, for which a specially prepared program has been completed. At the morning service the pastor will preach on "Inspired philanthropy," and give a five-minute talk to the boys and girls. The evening service will be largely of a musical nature, with a sermon by Rev. L. W. Thom of the Presbyterian church. See printed programs. At both services special thankoffering contributions are asked for.

The weather gives a fair promise of being favorable on Friday next for the East Grey Exhibition, which, it is expected, will be better than ever this year if present indications are any criterion. Entries are coming in freely and the membership is much larger this year than ever before, the number being 55 better than last year. Everything is in perfect order for a prime day of sport on Friday and our readers should not fail to attend.

Word was received in town last week of the death of Mrs. A. R. Fawcett of Toronto Junction, which sad event took place at the residence of her parents near Streetsville. We understand that Mrs. Fawcett suffered from typhoid fever some time, which settled upon the lungs and developed into a quick consumption Mrs. Fawcett was highly esteemed among those who knew her. She left Flesherton with her husband thirteen years ago. She leaves a little family who will sadly mourn the loss of a kind and gentle mother.

At the last Division Court held here a case of more than ordinary interest was heard, during the course of which hearing some twenty-one witnesses gave evidence. Mr. Mathew Scutt of Osprey sued Mr. Lewis Moore for the price of some trees cut on highway opposite his premises and damages for their removal. Owing to the fact that Mr. Moore is a pathmaster of the township of Osprey the public were under the impression that by virtue of his office he had power vested in him to remove these trees if he desired to do so, but this opinion has been negatived by the judgment handed out by Judge Morrison on the 16th inst. The judge decides that as there was no bylaw or order of Council to remove the trees Mr. Moore had no right to do so, and places the damage in favor of plaintiff for $25 and costs.

Personals

Mrs. J. W. Armstrong left last week for Ottawa for a month's visit with her daughter, Mrs. J. D. Clark.

Mr. Ern. Armstrong returned to his studies at the Toronto dental college on Wednesday.

Mr. Ben Hislop of Thornbury called on friends in town one day last week.

Mr. Ed. Strain returned to Ann Arbor, Michigan, the fore part of this week. Mr. and Mrs. Strain expect to leave for the same place to spend the winter either to day or to-morrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Clinton are visiting the latter's father at Maynooth, Hastings county.

It Would Pay, Too

The Hanover Post says: "Mr. Barlow of Toronto, with two companions, was in Hanover this week representing a company of capitalists who have some idea of acquiring the charter of the electric railway project, formed some years ago by Mr. Paw, and to the funds of which some of Hanover's citizens contributed. The new company has some idea of building a line from Flesherton westward to some point on Lake Huron."

Got Lame Back

No need of that now. That sort of pain can be knocked out in short order, for Polson's Nerviline, which is five times stronger than any other, penetrates at once through the tissues, reaches the source of suffering, drives it out and thus gives relief almost instantly. Not magic but strength that gives Polson's Nerviline this power, you will think it magic however if you try it, pain goes so quickly. Sold by dealers everywhere, in large 25 cent bottles.

Accounts of disasters on the lakes during the recent great storm are coming in all the time. The loss of life has been very great, and many vessels went under. A newspaper correspondent interviewed a commercial traveller who came down on the Athabasca on her recent perilous trip from Fort William to Owen Sound. The vessel left Fort William just as the big storm was gathering strength. Capt. McDougall, wrapped in furs, stood at his post day and night. The cables that support the main mast broke and its collapse was expected every moment. The lake was tossed into great pyramids that washed over the docks all day Monday. No food could be cooked, even the waters were prostrated. The captain turned tail to the storm, and ran fifty miles for shelter. One sailor ascended the main mast to adjust the halyards when the decks were rolling at an angle of 45 degrees, and the mast was in danger of falling.
