SUPPLY AND DEMAND

There is a wild grape vine trailing around the eves of an open porch over my back door. A few years ago a pair of robins built their nest on the grape vine directly opposite the door and started house-keeping there and have returned every spring since then. They are there this spring, as usual, and when the doors are open you can sit and watch them at work without disturbing them, as the nest is on the grape vine six inches below the eaves and directly in front of the door.

Sitting in the house the other afternoon watching them, I got a bit of paper and kept tab on them. The old birds feed the young every six minutes ten times an hour and you could see the old bird giving each one its share every visit. There are at least three young ones in the nest, so tht the old bird brought three or four worms or bugs every visit, and this goes on from daylight till dark these long days—17 hours a day, 3 bugs a trip, 10 trips an hour, 17 hours a day and no kick about long hours, 500 bugs a day, and if the two old birds consume as much, which is a reasonable estimate, 1000 bugs a day, and this has been going on for the last month, 30,000 bugs a month. What an army of destruction put out of business by two small birds in a month.

If anyone doubts the truth of this, they are welcome to come and sit in my room and watch proceedings for themselves before the young ones leave the nest. In face of such facts as this, he is surely a mean man who will begrudge the robins a few berries later in the season or fail to keep prowling cats from destroying them. — JOHN MALCOM.—Fergus News Record.

Edna Trusdall, summer visitor at Alexandria Bay, was fatally burned when a sparkler with which she was playing ignited her clothing.
