BUYING FAT PIGS.

Mr. R. D. Carruthers of Kimberley a few weeks ago went down to North York to assist in the election of Mr. Davis. He was engaged by Duncan Marshall of Thornbury for this purpose, but Rob gave out when he went down into York that he was looking for fat hogs! Just what connection fat hogs had with Mr. Davis' election we cannot say, but they are evidently figuring in some way. It is said that in North Grey a recent election hinged largely upon fat lambs. This matter of connecting live stock with elections appears to be on the increase, but The Advance does not pretend to say where the advantage lies. But to return to the subject: One J. J. Macdonald accused friend Carruthers with having offered him five dollars to vote for Davis. R. D. then swore out a warrant charging Macdonald with perjury, and Macdonald got back by swearing out another warrant against Carruthers for perjury. The case against Carruthers was tried and dismissed while that against Macdonald is adjourned until next week. North York seems to be a difficult riding in which to buy fat pigs and Robert should come home without further delay.

It does not necessarily follow that the man who "overlooks" getting himself nominated for the Legislature would also "overlook" drawing his salary if elected.

Mt. Forest has added a sixth hotel license in the town and reduced the fee from $250 to $200. This is scarcely in accord with Mr. Whitney's idea of reduction and high license.

Mr. Davis "overlooked" the hour of nomination. What about his mover and seconder? Did they also forget the hour? This is one of the many inquisitive queries that the public will persist in springing.

The Globe says editorially that Mr. Davis arrived at the place of nomination just ten minutes too late to get himself nominated. As a matter of fact it was a full half hour after the returning officer had left the hall before Mr. Davis showed up. If the Globe's other election matter is all as veracious as this statement we pity the morals of the old Globe, that's all

A subscriber points out the fact that we have had a Conservative government in Ontario for a week past, at all events. According to the daily press I B. Lucas of East Grey was the only member elected by acclamation, and as a consequence the government, so far as it goes, was certainly conservative. It is certainly quite a distinction for I. B. to say that he has been the whole government of Ontario for a week!

A Lesson in Butter Making

AND ENGLISH MARKETS.

The process of pasteurizing consists of heating the cream to a temperature of 158 to 160 degrees Fah., and cooling it rapidly to the ripening temperature by the use of some special cooling apparatus. Wherever this has been carried out properly in Canadian creameries the results have given better qualities to the butter, and have remedied faults in flavor in cases where taints of various sorts had previously been troublesome.

When only the quality of the butter has to be considered it is sufficient to pasteurize the cream after separation; but when it is also desired to lessen the danger of spreading disease by means of the skim-milk it is necessary to heat the milk before separation, and cool the skim-milk and cream afterwards. A temperature of 185 degrees Fah. is sufficient to destroy disease germs likely to be found in milk; and whole milk may be heated to that temperature, with proper appliances and handling, without giving any objectionable flavor to the butter made from it.

In making butter from pasteurized cream the preparation and use of the "fermentation starter" are important parts in the operation. About two quarts of skim-milk are heated to 205 degrees Fah, and held at that point for ten minutes, after which the milk is cooled to 80 degrees Fah. by pouring from one vessel to another, exposed to the atmosphere of the butter-making room. It is then left in a tightly closed jar at ordinary atmospheric temperature, in summer from 60 to 75 degrees, until it is coagulated and has a mild lactic acid flavor. This method can only be successful when the atmosphere to which it is exposed is free from germs which cause undesirable odors and flavors. When the culture as this is called, has been prepared, a quantity of skim milk, which is pure, sweet and free from taint, should be heated to 150 degrees fahr., and left at that temperature for ten minutes. It may then be cooled to a temperature of from 60 to 70 degrees fahr., when a portion of the culture, as already described at the rate of from 5 to 10 per cent. should be added to it, and well mixed with it. That is the fermentation starter. It should be left to ripen at a temperature not exceeding 70 degrees fahr. When it has become distinctly sour and is nearing the point of coagulation, further developement should be checked by lowering the temperature. The starter may be added to the cream at the rate of from 3 to 6 per cent. of the quantity of cream to be ripened. In every case where the cream has become tainted, if the taint be of the fermentation origin a larger quantity than usual of the fermentation starter should be added. This will check the taint and leave the particular fermentation of the starter to be the prevailing one in cream and butter. To be most effective the starter should be added to the cream very soon after it has coagulated. After that point has been reached it deteriorates in activity as a starter and undesirable flavors are apt to develop in it.

Dundalk.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Victoria Day was observed as a holiday in town, all places of business being closed. Quite a number took in the sports at Markdale while others went fishing.

Dick McAuley, a young man whose occupation was framing, complained of not feeling well on Thursday evening last and his employer, Mr. Dean, brought him to the Queen's Hotel, where a doctor was summoned but despite all medical skill his spirit took its flight on Sabbath morning at eleven o'clock. His remains were interred in Melancthon cemetery to-day (Monday) We extend sympathy to the sorrowing friends in their sudden bereavement.

Mr. John Arnold, who moved into town recently, is, we regret to say, seriously ill.

Benson Bros. have sold their mercantile business here to Mr. Parks of Holland Centre. We extend to Mr. Parks the right hand of citizenship.

The Dufferins of Orangeville and the Thistles of this town crossed sticks here this (Monday) afternoon, which ended in a draw, each team scoring four goals. The game was fast and clean and the best of feeling prevailed throughout. Our boys bid fair to land the pennant here this season.
