IRON CLADS FOR DEFENCE—NOT ONE CENT FOR TRIBUTE.

TO the Honorable John Alexander Macdonald, Minister of Militia:

Honored Sir,—The heading of this letter will meet, I am sure, with no heartier response from any one in the country than from you. At this time, when rumors of Fenian plots and threats of revenge for the depredations of the Alabama are disturbing the public mind, "iron-clads for the defence" strikes the ear with patriotic meaning; while the antithesis, "not one cent for tribute," reminds the true lover of his country that our prosperity depends upon saving and enjoying all that we earn, unmolested by the exactions of that inexorable tax-gatherer in the employment of our respected Brother Jonathan.

It is, I am sure, a matter of some concern to this individual, to enlarge his taxable territory, and to find some peaceful habitation for the poor and despised African. The riches of "this Canada of ours" have been fully shown to him by the immense herds of cattle and sheep and horses that we have exchanged for his gold, and the cargoes of wool, grain and butter, which we have this year poured into his markets; while the enterprise of our people has been exhibited in the enormous transactions which have been effected in foreign produce. Here there is everything to tempt our respected Brother's cupidity—a flourishing agricultural country, an enterprising body of merchants who buy and sell for gold only, and above all, a land of peace and freedom, where the emancipated Children of Ham are never seen swinging from lamp-posts, starving in sight of granaries, or naked in the neighborhood of cloth factories.

But, Sir, it has startled our neighbor from his "dream of empire," to learn that the conquest of this country will be a most difficult and desperate undertaking. It has been stated from time to time by the lynx-eyed journals of New York, that in this very city, which you so nobly represent in the councils of the country, iron-clads are being turned out in great numbers; that even within a few hours sail of the American shore, these monsters, whose thundering sides ring out the sonorous booming of battle, are being constructed. Truth we are told is stranger than fiction, and though there is certainly little need to acquaint you, Sir, with what all the people are 'up and doing' for the country's defence, I think it high time to apprise our neighbors that these rumors are founded in fact.

To be well prepared is to be half armed. What confidence it would give us to learn that an Iron-Clad Instrument could be placed in every household. How many anxious forebodings would be quieted; how many fears allayed. Cheerfulness would take the place of gloom, and despondency being put to flight, happiness would shed around serenest smiles.

Shall I tell you of Orpheus, that ancient hero, who destroyed a fortification with a musical tortoise shell? Shall I quote the well-known line—

"Music hath charms to smooth the savage breast."

Is not the legend of "Jessie of Lucknow" worth a dozen Campaign histories—legend though it be? 'Tis the Slogan of the MacGregors" that I am a manufacturer of Iron-Clads.

Iron-Clads, sir, for defence—for defence from the cares of life, its jarring passions and its tumultuous strife; for defence to sustain the reputation of the country against the foreign manufacturer, daily invading us with his wares. Purchasing from him, buyers pay tribute. Buying from me, they give 'not one cent for tribute.' Moreover, they buy from me a patented 'iron-clad—an instrument of which the Great Seal of the Province proclaims me the sole inventor.

Do you see the point, Sir? I manufacture Iron-Clad Pianos. Our respected Brother Jonathan has in his noddle the idea that this garrisoned city is daily manufacturing engines of mischief for him, and so it is. Where are the "Chickerings," the "Steinways" in competition with a home manufactured article which for depth and brilliancy of tone eclipses them all?

Re-echoing the sentiment which animates me, a Kingston Manufacturer, in thus addressing you. "Iron-Clads for Defence—Not one cent for Tribute,"

I am, Sir,
Your Obedient Servant,
JOHN C. FOX.
