DECEIVING THE WORKINGMEN.

The government has appointed A. A. Wright, of Toronto, to report upon the sweating system. An election is close at hand, and the idea is to deceive the laboring classes into the belief that the government is concerned about their welfare. What about the report of the labor commission, which cost thousands of dollars, and which embraced the evidence on which remedial legislation was to be based? That was a valuable document, and dealt incidentally with the sweating system? What more did the government want? What does it want now? This periodical solicitude for the welfare of the workingmen is becoming monotonous. If the government desired to do something in their interest it would cut away the mouldering branches of the N.P., as the late Sir John Thompson promised. It would in some way remove the reproach that protection protects capital and not labor.

IT IS A FAIRY TALE.

A Toronto paper, the versatile and lively Star, professes to have it from one who knows, that in the liberal cabinet to be formed immediately after the general election—and it's generally conceded that the conservative government goes into oblivion—Messrs. Ross, Gibson and Dryden, of the Ontario cabinet, will be members. It is further announced that there is to be a reduction in the number of ministers, and that the old time federal liberals are kicking because the Ontario ministers are to get the plums in the federal government. All of which is really silly, so very silly as to be utterly unworthy of a moment's consideration. There is evidently going to be a sort of landslide, and in favor of the liberals, when parliament is dissolved and the people are asked to elect a new house, but until it occurs Mr. Laurier is not going to select his colleagues, and it is safe to say that he has not been indulging in such nonsense. Some fellow has presumed to pose as a mind reader, and to reflect the thoughts that are passing through Mr. Laurier's head, and he has succeeded in making a fool of himself. The Star dignifies the nonsense unduly by referring to it as a fairy tale.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

The Mail and Empire made great fun of the proposition of the London Advertiser, to the effect that Canada was not a free country, and never would be, until it had the power to create at will lords and dukes and earls and barons, and establish all the orders prevalent in Great Britain and other countries.

"Coming, as it does, from a liberal newspaper," says the Mail and Empire, "it is quite within the bounds of possibility that Mr. Laurier will make the scheme a plank in his trade policy. He has, to be sure, an objection to titles, but if the prosperity of her country could be advanced thereby he would, no doubt, change his opinion." He certainly would, and with good reason, but there is no evidence that Mr. Laurier will favor knighthood for personal reasons. Mr. Laurier shines best in his plainness of manner and speech. As Sir Winfred he would not be so great a man, nor stand so high in the public estimation. The right to travel in the same company with Sir Adolphe Caron, whose political record parliament has had occasion to look into, is a doubtful honor.

Moreover the conservatives have no notion of letting the distribution of a few cheap titles go over to the liberals when they come into power, as they surely will after the next election. Hon. Mr. Dickey, one of the newest members of the government, an up-to-date young man, has started in to make a few honorary captains and majors and colonels of the militia, and when he gets through there may be a new face on nature, and especially on the longings of the human heart for the empty baubles called titles. Already a feeling of disgust is setting in, and Mr. Dickey's scheme is sneered at by the men who have the titles they are entitled to as a result of worthy service.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mr. White, ex-M.P., is to be made the collector of customs after all. The chamber of commerce is hastening things by its demand that the government respect the interests of the metropolis to the best public service it can get. But will Mr. White now accept office? It's a question.

Bob Ingersoll advises the capture of Canada by the United States. He talks as if this country were a mere spec of land which one of the American cruisers could cover with its guns. He knows as much about it as the place to which he and his followers are sure to go unless they mend their ways.

The Toronto Telegram pictures, in a cartoon, a hand with fingers tipped by the heads of five cabinet ministers. It is reaching for a large ripe apple, and the sketch is labelled, "Is it a winning hand?" We should say not. A hand so horribly indented and mutilated is enough to cool the demand of the average man for "hand picked fruit."

Every person whose misfortune it is to enter a witness box will have grateful feelings towards chief justice Meredith for the remarks delivered in his charge on the Devlin case. It is outrageous that men who are giving fair evidence should be assailed as perjurers, be turned into ridicule, or be harassed beyond endurance in a way that were it to occur out of the court room would submit a barrister to personal chastisement or prosecution.

Doctors Say It Is the Best.

Gentlemen,—I recommend Milburn's Cod Liver Oil Emulsion with pleasure. Last July I took congestion of the lungs and was in bed for four weeks. I was very weak and could not speak above a whisper. Dr. Lawson, of Hamlota, attended me and sent a bottle of Milburn's Emulsion. It is the very best made and soon restored my voice and brought me back to health again.—Truly yours, ALF. SMITH, Wheatlands, Man.

ACTIONS AT THE ASSIZES.

Several Cases Considered and Decided Without a Jury.

The case of J. Dougherty vs. C. E. Bartlett, an action to recover a shortage alleged to be due on cheese purchased, was tried without a jury.

Dougherty sued to recover from Bartlett the shortage on the amount of purchase money for plaintiff's cheese, which Bartlett had contracted to purchase.

Bartlett contended that there was no shortage and that the amount of alleged shortage was deducted from the sum paid for the cheese on account of light weight and under quality.

The defendant, Bartlett, was the first witness, and said that a certain proportion of the cheese purchased by him from Dougherty was of an inferior quality. He, therefore, rejected it at Kingston. Bell, a cheesemaker, was sent to Dougherty's factories to inspect the cheese manufactured there, and found it under weight and inferior to quality, poorly finished and slovenly in appearance.

J. Dougherty, the plaintiff, swore that the cheese manufactured by him was not of inferior quality. He admitted that Bartlett sent him letters regarding complaints made in Montreal about the cheese, but, he said, he paid no attention to them.

R. Cochrane, Dougherty's cheesemaker, saw Bartlett in Kingston on one occasion when cheese was being shipped and told him that he would not allow his cheese to go to Montreal unless everything was settled first.

In cross examination he said he saw Bartlett at the British-American hotel on the occasion mentioned. Bartlett told him that there would be a claim from Montreal on the cheese regarding the quality of which he complained. Bartlett had previously complained about the quality of cheese. Witness is not now in Dougherty's employ.

G. Gibson, Dougherty's partner in the Cataraqui factory, gave unimportant testimony. The defendant, Bartlett, was recalled and said he remembered conversing with Cochrane at the British-American. He said also that he told Dougherty that he had better not let any of his first lot of cheese go to Montreal without first seeing Cochrane.

This closed the case and his lordship gave judgment in favor of plaintiff for $447.16.

A Nuisance Case Settled.

The case brought by R. J. Cooper and wife against Thomas Nicholson, for damages sustained by reason of defendant keeping a slaughter house, pigs, etc., on his premises, did not come to trial, a settlement having been effected out of court, on the following terms: R. J. Cooper and wife, the plaintiffs, agreed to withdraw the suit on payment by defendant of the costs, and on defendant's promise to clean up his premises and to keep the same in good condition.

Last night the case of J. B. McIver vs. W. H. Reid, and another was taken without a jury, J. M. Machar appearing for the plaintiff and McIntyre & McIntyre for the defendants.

The action was brought to recover payment of a promissory note for $591.37 from a citizen, who made the note, and W. H. Reid, who endorsed it. It appeared that the note was endorsed by Reid for the purpose of accommodating maker, who had it discounted at the bank of British North America. When it matured at the bank, Reid paid the amount, and left the note to be collected from maker. Five years passed, however, and maker failed to pay the amount. Then McIver stepped in and purchased the note, and now seeks to compel Reid and maker to redeem it.

Mr. McIntyre asked that the case be postponed as maker was not present. He had been subpoenaed and paid but was unwilling to attend.

His lordship agreed to the postponement of the case until the next sittings of the court.

N. D. and G. Henderson vs. A. R. Williams was an action brought by the plaintiffs, residents of this city, to compel A. R. Williams, of Toronto, a builder of steam engines, to pay back to them the sum paid by them to him for an engine for their steamyacht. The plaintiffs claimed that the engine would not work properly, because of faulty constructions that cannot be remedied. They asked for damages for the loss of the use of their yacht last summer. Ten or twelve experts examined the engine and boat and the majority of them seemed to believe that the engine was imperfect. Defendant claimed, however, that an expenditure of about $50 would have made the engine suitable for the purpose of which it was required. He agreed to put in a new engine, and to pay certain costs and expenses incurred in connection with the suits, which did not, therefore, come up in court, but was settled on the terms mentioned.

A Marvellous Statement by a Prominent Canadian—A Rheumatic Remedy Which is Curing the World.

E. W. Sherman, proprietor of the Sherman House, Morrisburg, Ont., is known by thousands of Canadians, hence the following statement from Mr. Sherman will be read with great interest and pleasure: "I have been cured of rheumatism of ten years' standing in three days. One bottle of South American Rheumatic Cure performed this most remarkable cure. I had suffered from this disease, as I say, for ten years, and I did not ever expect to be entirely cured. The effects of the first dose of South American Rheumatic Cure were truly wonderful. I have only taken one bottle of the remedy, and now haven't any sign of rheumatism in my system. It did me more good than all the doctoring I ever did in my life." Sold by N. C. Polson & Co.

Limestone in the Lake Waters.

Mr. Adams, chairman of the board of steamboat inspection, Ottawa, has received a piece of limestone recently taken out of the boilers of a vessel in Montreal. Mr. Adams says that sometimes when the boilers are cleaned, a sediment of coating to the depth of two or three inches will be found inside. Vessels navigating Lake Superior suffer more from the quality of the water than any of the other great lakes, owing to limestone which is held in solution in water and becomes encrusted in the boilers. The waters of Lake Erie and Ontario are not extra good for steamers. Lake Huron water is credited with being the best of the great lakes. Of the big rivers of the east, the Ottawa is by long odds superior to any others for steamboating purposes, the water being remarkably pure.

WHAT JERRY HAS TO TELL US

THE EVENTS AT MARTIN'S OPERA HOUSE THIS WEEK.

Had to Make a Pretty Bridal Gift—What Will be the Fashions in Furs—The Garments For the Future Duchess of Marlborough.

Hurrah for Queen's! In spite of the bitter cold, the football grounds were crowded last Saturday afternoon by an enthusiastic crowd; the fair sex turned out in full force to encourage the favorites by their presence on the grand stand, all wearing Queen's colors and offering mild little bets in the way of sweets and gloves. From the very beginning Queen's supporters looked beaming. The home team won the toss and scored so rapidly in the first half that no fear was felt at any part of the game by their friends. Even the numerous free kicks awarded to Osgoode failed to rouse the crowd to indignation and only drew forth a few derisive remarks from the small boys who graced the fence. Of course we were all delighted at the result, but really, the game was too one-sided to be exciting. The Osgoode team was out-matched from the first. Queen's is in splendid shape this year. Long may their luck continue.

What a treat you Kingston people missed by not going to see Julia Stuart, and Charles Hagar, in "A Doll's House," a week ago. I came nearly being in the same box myself as I felt very doubtful after our experience of "Trilby." However at the last moment I decided to risk seventy-five cents once again, and I assure you I would not have missed it for a great deal. The whole troupe was excellent, but for finish, and power Julia Stuart and Charles Hagar surpassed anything we have seen in Kingston for many a day. Although the audience was slim it was most appreciative and Miss Stuart was called before the curtain after her magnificent work at the end of the second act. The whole thing was a masterpiece, so realistic that it haunted me for days. If Miss Stuart could be induced to visit Kingston again I am sure she would receive a warm welcome.

We were all charmed with the orchestra on Tuesday evening; its rendition of the overture to William Tell was magnificent, the shading was exquisite, and no praise is too great for its talented leader. The first overture received rapt attention and an enthusiastic encore, but during the interval when they were rendering the selection from Faust the audience chittered away like so many senseless sparrows. Our critics tell us that we women cannot keep our tongues quiet for more than one hour under any circumstances and certainly we must confess that it looked very much that way on Tuesday evening. I think almost everybody was slightly disappointed in the singers, the contralto and baritone were exceedingly fine. The contralto, particularly, had a most singularly sympathetic voice and received warm appreciation from the audience. The soprano's voice was thoroughly well trained and flexible, but that was all. She showed to better advantage in "Il Trovatore" although there her utter lack of dramatic ability was almost painful. In that masterpiece of Verdi's where Leonora suddenly hears her lover's voice singing his sad farewell, and where she is supposed to listen to every note of that dear voice in an entranced agony, Madame Roberti hopped and staggered about the stage at intervals of every five seconds as if she had been a doll worked by wires.

The tenor's voice was altogether too robust for that exquisite tender music; he bellowed forth that heartrending air in a way that was most provoking. But the orchestra's work in this act of "Il Trovatore" was a treat indeed. The wailing, sobbing music was rendered in a way that touched one's very soul. On the whole the performance was well worth hearing and Mr. Martin deserves much credit for the class of amusement he is offering us this season. Mantell, who is to appear on Friday and Saturday nights, we know is an artist of great power; he will probably draw crowded houses.

I read the other day of a pretty bridal gift, so unique that I am going to tell you about it; any clever girl can make it at small expense. First, procure at the stationer's two pieces of cardboard of heavy quality; the kind used for picture mats. Have them cut ten by sixteen inches each, punch two holes in the back edge of each, about four inches apart. Then procure a water-color pad, using as many leaves off the back as you wish your book to contain. If you cannot obtain a water-color pad use any good, heavy linen paper, which should be unruled, of course. Punch holes in the leaves to correspond with the outside. Upon the cover have a monogram sketched composed of the first letter of the bride's and groom's last name. Gild this monogram. Just inside the cover fasten one of the wedding invitations by pasting the face of the envelope to the book so that the invitation may be removed at pleasure. On one of the extra sheets of water color paper fasten the photographs of the bridal couple. This page may be prettily decorated, according to taste, in water colors; a garland of flowers, or true lovers knot, daintly done, will make it quite artistic. Next buy a blank marriage certificate and fasten it upon one of the last pages. Finish the back edges by pasting narrow, white, satin ribbon over them. Lastly, tie the leaves and cover together by passing white, satin ribbon through the holes and tying, loosely, in a pretty bow, upon the top, making long loops and ends. At the wedding this book is placed upon a desk and all the guests write their names in it; the officiating clergyman properly fills out the certificate. Later on the bride puts a list of her presents, a piece of her wedding gown, and the names of the places visited on her trip, in the book, and I assure you after all that the simple little present becomes very valuable in her eyes; a precious souvenir from which she would not easily part. Just try this experiment and see what a pretty gift you can make.

Now that the days are cold and sharp how one's eye turns with pleasure to the furriers' windows. All women look well in furs; no more becoming environment for feminine features has yet been found, and, as they appear this winter, in quaint and exquisitely dainty combinations it seems as though the very acme of richness in woman's garments had been obtained.

Last week I had the pleasure of spending two hours at Renfrew's, Que., and revelling in the beauties there displayed. I must confess that I came away with a very covetous soul and a little envy of the wealthy dames who might indulge in these beautiful luxuries. There were large and small wraps, superb creations for evening and carriage wear, and a host of fanciful designs in the more prosaic everyday coats and capes. The highest priced bit of luxury was a sealskin ulster reaching quite to the ground, a scalloped cape, bordered with sable, resting on the shoulders. The fronts were also edged with sable, while the huge collar was made of the same rich fur; the full sleeves were gathered into bands of it at the wrists. Seven hundred and fifty dollars was the price asked for this beauty, and although it sounds a great deal when one came to think it over it seemed rather reasonable for the wealth of valuable fur this garment contained. The muffs were huge affairs, and many of them trimmed with sable tails, set on like mercury wings. In the combination garments there were wraps worthy a queen's wearing. One, a beauty, was of the richest crimson, brocaded silk, lined throughout with ermine. Another was of white velvet brocade, lined with sable; the effect of the dark, rich fur with the white velvet was magnificent. For the more practical uses of life there were the new sealskin jackets. The ultra stylish shape having a perfectly plain full back, while wide revers and giant pearl buttons adorn the front. The use of pearl buttons on sealskins is a distinctive feature of this season's modes. Most of the Persian lamb coats had box fronts and ripple backs, with huge sleeves, of course. After viewing innumerable styles I came to the conclusion that for beauty and richness of effect, there is nothing like seal and sable or seal and fine bear; these sloggy furs set off the fine richness of the seal and give it the depth which it lacks in itself.

Talking of furs reminds me I heard the other day that Miss Vanderbilt is getting five chests of furs from Russia; let us devotedly hope that she may not suffer from cold in the coming English winters. I believe that the wedding gown is finished and is a dream of beauty. Satin, not what we generally call satin, but the real, old-fashioned, shimmering stuff, thick as a board, and gleaming like ivory, is the foundation, this is covered with billows of priceless lace and embroidered with pearls. The court train, I am told, is a triumph of art in itself; lined throughout with satin and edged with heavy pearl embroidery. Let us hope that this weight of satin and pearls will be the heaviest the young shoulders may be called upon to bear for many a day. The bridesmaid's costumes are to be most simple, but a chic effect will be given by the combination of colors. The frocks, Empire-fashioned of white satin perfectly plain skirts, in direct contrast to the bridal robe. The bodices are gathered at the throat and drawn down into pale blue sashes, which fasten in front towards the left side, full sleeves and plain collars finish these gowns. The hats are huge Gainsborough's made of hussar blue velvet, while the six large plumes, the only trimming, are of pale blue, the exact shade of the sashes. These hats are turned up directly in front and a little toward the back, while over the front falls three of the tips; two more are placed at the side, and the sixth one is brought around the crown to lie against the coils of the hair. This touch of a light blue with the deep shade and the white frocks trimmed with the pale blue is most artistic.

I believe there are several tailor made gowns for travelling. Amidst this wealth and glitter one is apt to lose sight of the fact that a woman's heart is beating beneath it all and that this grand marriage is to make or mar a young life. Let us wish for this girl, weighed down with so much of the world's wealth, that sunshine and happiness, which proverbially go hand-in-hand for the bride, Tennyson has really shown us the secret of a happy marriage when he says:

"Love took up the harp of life,
And smote on all the chords with might,
Smote the chord of self that passed,
In trembling music out of sight."

This is the charm; mutual self-sacrifice, and life is a beautiful poem. A poem, which we meet, alas! all too rarely.—JERRY.

A LADY'S DEATH.

She Lived Only a Year in Napanee—A Christian Endeavor Entertainment.

NAPANEE, Nov. 2.—On Friday, Minnie, beloved wife of W. A. Frizzell, passed away. She came to Napanee less than a year ago, a happy bride. The remains were taken to Scrula for interment, where her parents reside. The sorrowing husband and friends have the sympathy of the entire community. W. E. Doxen continues about the same; J. P. Anderson is also very ill with but slight hopes of his recovery.

Frank H. Perry has bought the interest of W. Rankin in the grocery business carried on by Rankin & Joy. Mr. Rankin opens out with a fresh stock of groceries in the Mills block next door to the Robinson Co. Lawyer English is moving into the terrace on East street, next door to H. Douglas. W. G. Wilson removed this week to the property he lately purchased.

The christian endeavor of the Presbyterian church held an "At Home" in the basement of the church last evening. The evening was pleasantly passed. A nice programme of songs, recitations, readings, and addresses were given, after which lunch was served and a pleasant half-hour's chat indulged in.

A NEW CLUB.

Name Suggested for a New Social Organization in London.

LONDON (Special), Oct. 28.—It has been facetiously suggested that a new social club in progress of organization in this city should be entitled "The Dodd's Kidney Pill Club," as the present members are all enthusiastic advocates of that remedy and in common with many other citizens declare that in all cases of kidney trouble no other agent has been found so completely effective. Most Londoners have at their fingers' end the particulars of the many marvellous cures through the use of this specific. In every drug store in the city the city the medicine is kept in large quantities and warmly recommended.

Howe Island Happenings.

HOWE ISLAND, Nov. 1.—Hallowe'en passed off quietly, no great damage being done. Raffles are the order of the day. Quite a number of the farmers here put their grain on board the vessel anchored at Point Pleasant. Mrs. C. Fenning and Miss Hilda have returned to their home in Kingston. We are pleased to see Lizzie Gillespie again, after a prolonged visit in the limestone city. Another wedding will take place in the near future. James Turcotte is all smiles—it is a bouncing girl. Mrs. Chatam has gone to Cananoque after an extended visit with friends here. Our public school has an attendance of nineteen and the separate school twelve. Mrs. Jas. Driscoll has returned from visiting her daughter in the city. Mr. Hiscock, bailiff, Gananoque, paid us a visit recently. R. Thomson and R. Greer spent Sunday with friends in this vicinity. J. Gillespie is on the sick list. Mr. Beaubiau is shipping his grain to Gananoque.

When the Home Ties are Broken.

By Edith McGillivray, 309 Lisgar street, Ottawa, Ont.

When the family ties are broken,
When the last farewell is spoken,
When the wanderer leaves his home
To travel through the world alone.

Then, how sadly tears are falling,
Then fond hearts keep calling—calling
For that boy they scarce could spare,
How they miss him everywhere.

When the others round the table
Sit and chat, they're scarcely able
To stay those tears, that always flood;
For there,—and there,—is where he stood.

When the dark nights, cold and chilly,
When the winds blow wild and shrilly,
Then, oh then, the mother, sadly
Thinks of him, she'd welcome gladly.

But tell me reader, tell me true,
Does that boy with eyes of blue,
Does he ever lonely think on
Those who miss him while he's gone.

Yes,—careless very, he may seem,
Yet of "home" he'll sometimes dream,
Quiet days and happy pleasure,
Peace and joy, each without measure.

A Special Army Order.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Field Marshal Lord Wolseley, on assuming the commandership-in-chief of the British army in succession to the Duke of Cambridge, resigned, has issued a special army order, in which he makes a kindly reference to the Duke of Cambridge. He avows his intention to maintain the traditions of the army and to better the condition of the forces. He declares that he feels confident of success, relying as he does on the royal support of the army.

Punishment of the Guilty Viceroy Parcical.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—A despatch from Shanghai says that the punishment of viceroy Liu Pin Chang for the Szechuan outrages has been utterly farcical. Upon returning to his home he did not suffer the smallest inconvenience; on the contrary he was presented with glowing testimonials by the officials of the province. It is stated that placards have been posted in Chungking inciting the populace to murder foreigners. Only the English and Americans have yet returned there.

THE DEAD RAISED UP.

EXCITEMENT IN A CANADIAN TOWN RUNS HIGH.

A Former Resident Thought to Be Dying of Bright's Disease, Uses Dodd's Kidney Pills and Appears on the Street in Perfect Health.

Special to the Whig.

LISTOWEL, Nov. 2.—"The press despatch, first read here in a Toronto paper, but dated from Neepawa, Manitoba, has caused quite as much local furore as in the town of its origin. The subject, Mrs. T. H. McKee, formerly lived here and has a large circle of sympathizing friends who had for months past believed her to be dying or dead. A recovery from Bright's disease and reappearance so remarkable—so much past common belief—naturally resulted in many enquiries for confirmation of the facts."

Similar press despatches having been of such frequent occurrence during the past few months, coming from various parts of Canada, the management of this paper had decided not to permit their publication without verification. To this end every despatch hitherto published has been investigated with a most gratifying result. In every case where we have written we got prompt replies, very friendly in tone, and in many cases stating that their case has been under, instead of over, stated. It is found, also, they state, that from those remarkable cures the sales of Dodd's Kidney Pills in the surrounding country has doubled and quadrupled during the past year, and that these pills are being successfully used in as many cases as there are names of diseases in the catalogue. The proprietors of Dodd's Kidney Pills were equally prompt in placing all the data for the successful issue of our investigation and we have ourselves become convinced of the sterling merits of this wonderful medicine.

Dodd's Kidney Pills is the only medicine or treatment in the world that has ever cured Bright's disease.

SUPPORT OF SEPARATE SCHOOLS

Roman Catholics Discovered a Scheme to Circumvent the Law.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 31.—The Roman Catholic hierarchy has found a way of getting public funds for the support of church schools, despite the enactment of the Manitoba legislature forbidding collection of municipal taxes therefor. The plan adopted is to get the council of a municipality where Roman Catholics are in a sufficient majority to vote a stated sum for charitable purposes, to be disposed of by certain officers as exigencies arise. The separate school is put forth as the exigency, and the money paid over. Some taxpayers object to this kind of charity and are taking action in the courts to compel a refund of the money.

SEVERE KIDNEY TROUBLE COMPLETELY CURED.

Two Bottles Of South American Kidney Cure Did It.

The idea that disease of the kidneys cannot be cured is a mistake. True, many so-called kidney cures do not cure, but in that great discovery, South America Kidney Cure, there is found an unfailing remedy. This is what David Hogg, of Sunnymead, N.W.T., says: "I was greatly afflicted with severe kidney trouble, suffering the many annoyances and pain that follow this disease. There was hardly any remedy that I did not use, in hopes of securing relief, but it was not until I bought a bottle of South American Kidney Cure that relief came. The one bottle immediately relieved me, and two bottles produced a complete cure." Sold by N. C. Polson & Co.

Township of Kingston Council.

Oct. 26.—Special meeting held to consider the award of the arbitrators in the case of James H. Knapp against the township of Kingston. Moved by Mr. Gorrie, seconded by Mr. Wright, that this council pay Mr. Knapp $30 and expenses in regard to the arbitration, which was lost. Moved by Mr. George, seconded by Mr. Marsh, that this council pay James Knapp $30 and half the expenses in the arbitration case, the said $30 to free this council from all claims by the said James Knapp, and if not accepted by the 30th October, the reeve to take proceedings to have the arbitator's award set aside, which was carried.

Despondency And Depression

Too often result from causes, at the beginning easily remedied, but neglected most difficult to remove. The liver, allowed to become torpid and inactive, paves the way for a host of diseases, constipation giving way to indigestion, until at last the unfortunate victim has to undergo all the horrors of acute dyspepsia. No remedy so speedily and with such certainty corrects all diseases of the liver and stomach and bowels as Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. Vegetable in composition and always safe. Sold by dealers everywhere. One pill a dose. At Chown's drug store.

Metamorphosis of a Maid.

O, where is the girl that used to play
"The Maiden's Prayer" and oft crochet
In such a sweet, audacious way,
In colors striking?

Who loved to see the house well kept,
Who dusted some, betimes, and swept,
And pensively o'er "East Lynne" wept?
She's gone a-biking.

Where is the girl whose blushes glow
When, as the golden moon swings low,
You tell her that you love her so?
She's to our liking.

Alas, it is vain to seek
Her who would hear a lover speak,
With dewy eye and mantling cheek—
She's gone a-biking.

Not Merely Relief But Cure.

It is said of many remedies that they relieve for a time but the disease afterwards returns. Burdock Blood Bitters, being a radical cure, not only relieves but permanently cures dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, sick headache, bad blood, etc. Hundreds of healthy witnesses tell gladly that B.B.B. cures to stay cured.

FREE!

We direct special attention to the following remarkable statements:

For twenty-five years I was almost totally deaf; could not understand a word; had to carry a slate so that people could "talk" to me. In one week after commencing Aerial Medication I surprised my friends by discarding the slate. I steadily improved, and now can hear the slightest noise and can understand conversation perfectly.

EDWARD E. WILLIAMS, Lead, S.D.

For thirty-five years I suffered most intensely from Catarrh in its worst and most complicated form, and words can not express my gratitude for the wonderful cure I obtained from the use of Dr. Moore's treatment.

J. C. CARRITHERS, Riverton, Ala.

For twenty years I had Catarrh, was very Deaf eighteen years. Dr. Moore cured me and fully restored my hearing in 1892.

MRS. J. BASTICK,
Selby, N.C.

I was cured of one of the very worst cases of Fetid Catarrh, by Dr. Moore in 1887, and have felt no trace of the disease since.

"I AM AS WELL AS I WISH TO BE."

Miss Blake, of Hamilton, Ont., after using Paine's Celery Compound, is a Picture of Womanly Vigor and Beauty.

A Story for All who Stand in Need of Perfect Health.

Miss Isabella Blake, of 303 Hughson street, Hamilton, Ont., is one of the fairest and best known young women in the ambitious city. To-day, she is a picture of womanly health, vigor and beauty, and joyfully declares, "I am now a new woman, can enjoy life, and am as well as I wish to be."

When Miss Blake makes the declaration that she is a "new woman" she does not wish it to be understood that she has entered the ranks, and adopted the fads of those light-brained women who would usurp the legitimate positions of men, and go through life clad in half masculine attire with the fixed idea of altering the plans of an all-wise Providence, and turning the world upside down. Ah! no; this is far from what Miss Blake wishes to imply when she makes the statement that she is a "new woman."

The "new woman" that the world values is not the modern creature that dons the open vest, exposed shirt front, four-in-hand tie, straight and high collar, stiff Derby hat, who walks out on our streets with cane in hand, giving evidence of empty brain and unsatisfied vanity. The true "new woman" is perfectly represented by Miss Blake, made healthy, vigorous, strong and active by the use of Paine's Celery Compound. This is the "woman" that sensible and rational beings honor and appreciate—the type of "woman" that blesses home, friends and the world at large.

Miss Blake, though a young woman, can relate a tale of sad experiences. In the past, lions have stood in her way threatening destruction; she knows what sore afflictions are, owing to the rough grasp of disease; and at times, the cold touch of the destroyer, death, has made her shiver, and caused her to think of the dark gloom of the silent tomb.

When Miss Blake's heart was faint, sick and void of hope; when all doctors and medicines failed to do good, and when threatened with that relentless foe, consumption, an angel of mercy suggested the use of a remedy that has brought new life to thousands of poor sufferers in the past. Yes, it is Paine's Celery Compound that is recommended; it is used and in a short time makes a "new woman" from the material that the grave had battled for.

These facts, dear reader, are not overdrawn or colored in the least. Miss Blake and her friends will gladly vouch for the truth of the statement that Paine's Celery Compound, and it alone, under God's blessing, was the agent that saved life at a critical juncture. The following letter from Miss Blake is surely sufficient weight to convince the most hardened unbeliever:—"For years I suffered greatly, and was under the care of doctors who finally told me I was going into consumption. I was becoming worse through the use of medicines, and I gave up my doctors. While in a very critical condition, not able to sleep or r
