Several Fleshertonians took in the Grey Old Boys' excursion to Owen Sound on Thursday last. The day was unpromising and as the visitors alighted from the train it was raining, which put a dampener on the demonstrator. Later on the weather cleared and pleasant afternoon and evening was the result. Owen Sound certainly went to a large expense to give the visitors a pleasing reception and their efforts were thoroughly appreciated. Four bands were on the scene. The main street was cleared of vehicles and performing acrobats and music kept the crowd in good temper. In the evening a very nice display of fireworks was given on top of the Kilbourn block by Prof Hand, Hamilton. Markdale and Dundalk were also well represented at the county town. "Joe" Parks of the Dundalk band took the town with his bagpipe coronet solos. A nice procession in the evening of bands, firemen, committee and calithumpian outfit was also one of the features.

Mr. Waechter of Greenock, refused to do his statute labor under the pathmaster appointed by the Greenock council, but did it in an adjoining road beat. His work was returned unperformed, and the council added the amount to his general taxes. Waechter refused to pay the amount claimed, and the tax collector seized certain of his goods. Waechter brought an action for damages for illegal seizure, and also to recover possession of his goods. The case was tried several weeks ago by Judge Barrett, but decision at the time was reserved. Judgement however, was handed out on Tuesday, and was in Waechter's favor. He was allowed nominal damages—twenty cents,—and costs. He also regains possession of the goods which had been seized. It was a hard fight from first to last, a number of fine legal points being involved in the issue.

Messrs. Kohler and Smith, of the Massey Harris Company, Shelburne, had a close call on Tuesday afternoon. They were over in Mono just as the storm came on and they went into Small Bros.' barn for shelter. The lightning struck the barn and Mr. Smith and the Small brothers were knocked down by the shock. Mr. Kohler, who was standing a short distance from them, escaped. Very little damage was done to the building. Mr. Smith did not recover for some time. —Free Press.

Seventy-three townships in Ontario have commuted and abolished the statute labor system, with a view to securing better roads by a skilled supervision. About half of these made the change within the last year, as shown by the annual report, just issued, of the Commissioner of Highways, Mr. A. W. Campbell. The report records a marked advance in public sentiment in favor of better roads and shows that the movement for improvement has obtained quite large proportions in Ontario.

Western Fair, London

This year Canada's favorite exhibition will be held from September 12th to 20th, a week later than last year, and following both the Ottawa and Toronto shows.

Every successive year the managers of the Western Fair make a move forward, and this year will be no exception in this regard. Preparations are being made which will keep the old "Western" well to the front as the most successful as well as the leading Live Stock and Agricultural show of the Dominion. New and interesting features are being introduced for the first time. Some important changes will be made in the arrangement of exhibits in the Main Building as well as in other Departments.

This year will see the introduction in the Art Gallery of many works of art of high merit, by the leading artists of the country. A large exhibit is assurred in consequence of an improvement in premiums in that department; artists of note have already signified their intention of exhibiting.

It is confidently expected that the Machinery and Agricultural Implement Departments will be well filled, some of the largest manufactures of the United States have made application for space, which has been allotted them, A number of Canadian manufactures are also anxious to exhibit. Doubtless the growing agricultural wealth of our country offers great inducements to the manufacturing concerns across the line.

Last year's unparralleled success in the Live Stock Departments will no doubt be repeated Exhibits in the various classes were so numerous, that buildings erected for other purposes had to be turned into stalls, as well as accommodation provided outside the grounds. The prospects of good crops throughout Ontario should tend to make the Western Fair of 1902 equal to any that has been, as regards the products of both farm and dairy.

It is somewhat early to refer to the special attractions, but we are assured that the management have already secured some thrilling and highly sensational acrobatic features, and the list is far from being complete yet, a full list will be advertised in this paper later on.

As is usual at this time each year, the office staff are busily engaged in mailing prize list and other advertising matter throughout the province. The secretary informs us that he will be pleased to mail lists to anyone making application. A copy of the newly revised map of Western Ontario will also be mailed to any address. It is a most complete map, having a full marginal index, with railways and stations specially marked so that places can be easily found. The map has been copyrighted. Each school throughout Western Ontario has been furnished with a sufficient number to supply each room.

Hints to Apple Growers.

Department of Agriculture,
Ottawa, June 24, 1902.

In the older parts of Ontario, such as Middlesex, Perth, Oxford and Brant, as well as a portion of Huron, where the best apples grew in times gone by, to-day there is a neglect of young tree planting, as well as pruning, and the natural result is a diminution in the quantity of apples grown and a decline in the quality of the fruit produced. Now in Grey, in the north eastern part of Durham, and in the county of Northumberland, the young orchards are just about equal to the older ones in number, showing that planting is there going on vigorously.

In the former cases there is no doubt the trees were planted from some twenty-five to forty years ago, when there was no exact knowledge of, and perhaps but little experience, in varieties—when early apples were in demand, when the soil was new, when insect pests and fungous diseases were rare, and when the only skill required was simply to take the fruit. Under these circumstances the business of appple growing was exceedingly profitable; but there soon came a glut of the earlier varieties. They were not suitable for the export trade, so that as soon as the home market was supplied there was no further call for them. The soil lost something of its virgin freshness; the trees would not grow so well; and with the increased number of trees there came a quadrupled increase in fungous diseases and insect pests. Not only was there a falling off in the demand for the particular variety they were growing, but there was an increased difficulty in growing any variety, hence farmers got the idea that there was no money to be had in apples, and they let their orchards run wild, they allowed noxious insects to multiply and fungous diseases to run their course, with the inevitable result that the orchards were almost ruined.
