The King's coronation is set for August 8. May he be so far recovered that he will thoroughly enjoy the ceremony from the sole of his feet to the crown of his head.

Rain has somewhat interfered with the usual crop of July drownings, sea serpents and big fish stories, but they are now coming to the fore and August gives evidence of producing a full supply.

It is pretty nearly time that the design on our postage stamps was changed? If Canada don't hurry up it may never have the opportunity of honoring our King in his way during his lifetime.

A bountiful harvest now seems to be assured. The weather, which all season has been abnormally wet and cool, was very favorable for growth, and acted as a deterrent upon the insect enemies of the farmer and gardener. This week the weather appears to have entered upon a settled and warm period which will permit of hay being saved in prime condition. There is an enormous yield of this commodity. Field grains also promise an unusually large yield, and with good weather for the harvest our country should enjoy a year almost of unprecedented prosperity Apples, small fruits and potatoes are plentiful, the insect pests having been kept down by elementary conditions, this having taken the place of spraying. Our farmers here as a rule have not taken up general and systematic spraying, and this is one of the seasons where this neglect will not work any costly consequences, as nature has done the work. The apple scab or rust may work some injury, however.

When Kitchener took command in South Africa, he was asked for an opinion as to when the war would be ended. "When we have whipped the Boers," was his answer. Some months later this was his answer to the same question: "When the Boers learn that they have been whipped." Towards the close of the long struggle he put it in this way: "When we have found a feasible way to reconcile the Boers to being whipped."

Constable Brundige, of Shelburne, has reason to believe that there are a few honest men in existence. Twenty seven years ago at the Woodbridge fall fair he loaned a man $5. He heard nothing more about it until Monday last when he received a leter from the party containing $6.—Free Press.

The latest bulletin issued by his physicians says that the king is making satisfactory progress. In London, however, it is persistently announced that the coronation will be again postponed.

The Chesley Enterprise says: He was a stalwart young German, as he walked into the barn he saluted its owner with, "Hey, mister, will you job me?" "Will I what?" returned the farmer. "Will you job me? Make me work yet?" "Oh I see, you want a job," returned the farmer. "Well, how much do you want a month?" "I tell you. If you eat me on der farm I come for fife dollars, but for twenty fife dollars I eat myself by Schmidt's."

Young men, you can't do it. You can't make your way through the world without work. Men have tried it before you. They have loafed around street corners, told windy stories and all that, but they have never succeeded. You are no smarter than other boys. Your wits will not bring you success in life. You had better learn a good trade than become a chronic loafer, producing nothing for yourself, nothing to help the world along. The world has little use for boys who are not willing to pull off their coats and win their way to fame and fortune. The good things of life are not handed out to idlers on silver platters.

There is plenty of business that will just happen to go to a certain store without any effort on the part of the man running that store to encourage the people to come there. There is a great deal of other business that could be induced to go to that store if the man only hustled to get the people interested. The trade that just drifts to a place is a very desirable part of the business and it is astonishing in the extreme how much more trade will drift to the man who is known to be a hustler for it. The man who is always active never loses a chance to tell people how much he wants it. The advantage a man has in doing business is that in addition to the drifting part of his business he has a chance to work up other business by going after it. The drifting business comes without effort, but is more likely to come to the man who makes an effort. The other business, which must be worked for, helps the drifting part to swell the whole business into excellent proportions. The business which comes easily is the feature which should be made the foundation for a large business, which requires more effort.
