HAS HAD A GAY CAREER.

SENT NEWS OF THE EVACUATION OF PRETORIA.

He Has Been Engaged to Take a Leading Part in a Coming Play—Lord Derby Told Him to Get Out in Loud Language.

The earl of Rosslyn, the British peer, among those shut up in the Boer capital, Pretoria, during its siege by lord Roberts and the British forces, and who sent the first news of the departure of Kruger to the London Daily Mail, will soon be seen in this country, as an actor. Lord Rosslyn has been engaged by Charles Frohman to play the leading part in "His Excellency the Governor" next season.

Lord Rosslyn was only twenty years old when he succeeded his father as fifth earl of Rosslyn. The same year he married Violet Anne, daughter of Robert Charles de Grey Vyner, of Grantby Hall. His prodigalities were the talk of London. For seven years he squandered $100,000 a year on luxuries. He owned a large and unprofitable racing stable, and his reckless play at Monte Carlo astounded even that paradise of gamesters. He became associated with Mrs. Langtry, bought her a stable of race horses, and presented her as a birthday gift the magnificent yacht Wanda Ladye, which has since passed into the possession of the Goelets, of New York. In seven years he had squandered all the unentailed estate of his patrimony.

The closing episode of this period of his gay career was a sensational occurrence at the ball given by lord and lady Derby to the prince and princess of Wales and other royal personages in London. Lord Rosslyn had appeared without an invitation, being then under the displeasure of both the prince and princess of Wales. Accordingly, when lord Derby saw the gay earl flitting boldly about his salons he, after a word of apology to the prince of Wales, walked up to the young man and loudly demanded his immediate departure from the house, forbidding him ever again to cross its threshold. It was the most public and sensational occurrence of its kind in English society, and the young earl departed crestfallen.

Brought face to face with necessity, lord Rosslyn began to look for work. He dropped his titles, and as James Erskine tried to find employment as a clerk, as a travelling salesman, but failed. He next tried the theatrical managers, and secured a $100 a week engagement in the Court theatre company, playing Arthur Gower in Pinero's comedy, "Trelawny of the Wells," in January, 1898. The earl's titles are: Earl of Rosslyn, county Midlothian; baron Loughborough of Loughborough, in the county of Surrey, baronet of Nova Scotia, and captain of the First Fifeshire volunteer guards. His family name is James Francis Harry St. Clair Erskine, and he is descended from Charles II. through his mother, who was a Fitzroy.

THERE IS ONLY ONE

Permanent Cure for Catarrh—That Is What a Well-Known Toronto Gentleman Says About Japanese Catarrh Cure.

John Sloan, 78 McGill street, Toronto, writes: "I have had catarrh in the most disagreeable form for years; have at times got remedies which would relieve me, but nothing to cure me completely, until I tried Japanese Catarrh Cure. From the very first it gave much relief, and every day's use showed a marked improvement. I used in all six boxes, and it has completely cured me. It certainly does all claimed for it, which I cannot say of scores of other remedies tried, and I feel it my duty to attest my appreciation of anything so worthy." All druggists, price 50c., or mailed by the Griffiths & Macpherson Co., limited, 121 Church street, Toronto.

The Canadians At Mafeking.

The Canadians with the column who assisted at the relief of Mafeking are represented by "C" battery of the Royal Canadian field artillery, commanded by Maj. Buchanan, with Capt. Panet and Lieuts. King and Leslie, says a despatch to a London paper.

Together with the Queenslanders the Canadians covered an immense stretch of country, in order to be in at the relief. Marandellas, in Mashonaland, was left on May 5th. The 300 miles by coach from that place to Bulawayo were completed by the 8th. A twenty-four hours' stay in Bulawayo was followed by a three days' railway journey to Ootsi, and there during the three following days the men were marched across country, through bush and sand, a distance of seventy miles, via Col. Plumer's camp to the Molopo. They met the southern relief column on the banks of that river. Then they had their second day's rest of twenty-four hours' duration. The next twenty-two hours, including four hours' fighting, were spent in marching twenty-five miles into Mafeking. The casualties among the Canadians were Bombardier Patton and Gr. McCallum, severely wounded, but both were in action again on the following day, and assisted in chasing the Boers away to the east from Mafeking.

British Flag Story.

Ottawa Journal.

Early in the South African war a story cropped up, a good deal about a British flag having been buried at Pretoria after Mr. Gladstone's come-down in 1881 in the hope of a glorious resurrection. The officer said to have buried the flag was a major Sampson, who was in the fights of Ingogo and Majuba Hill, and almost went beside himself with rage and humiliation at the close of that war. He waited for nineteen years for this war, and was wounded shortly after it began. No word has come yet about the anticipated resurrection, but not much word has come about anything since Roberts took possession of the Boer capital. It will be interesting to discover whether there really is anything in the story.

An Old German Printer.

A Leipzig compositor named Krueger, who has just celebrated his fiftieth year of service, has been occupied with one book for nearly all that time. He has set with his own hand almost all of Grimm's great German dictionary that has appeared since Jakob Grimm turned in the first batch of manuscript in December, 1851. Though 32,000 pages of the Woerterbuch have been printed, the work is not all done yet, and Herr Krueger will have to live to be 100 years old to see it finished.

CANADIANS IN AFRICA.

An American Expression of Pride For Canadian Bravery.

Washington Post.

Regardless of how one's sympathies may be ranged as between Britain and Boer, Americans may properly feel a degree of pride in the way the Canadians are carrying themselves in the field in South Africa. The official despatches are full of praise of them. They show endurance on the march, steadiness under fire and signal bravery in assault. They have been in the thick of the fiercest of the fighting, and have more than once shown the way against the most terrible of the enemy's fire. In a word, they have taken a high place in an army composed largely of picked and trained soldiers engaged in a campaign which, for severe tests of men, has seldom been surpassed in the warfare of recent years.

And yet the majority of these Canadians were but a few months ago plain citizens, with experience only in civil affairs. They responded to the queen's call from various peaceful pursuits. Such as had enjoyed the benefits of military drill in home companies had yet never seen a battle nor smelled hostile powder. They went at the beginning of winter from northern homes to the other end of the world and arrived in the heat of that country's summer. They were sent at once to the front, and in the shortest space of time were moulded into army shape, and now, at the end of three months, they are famous.

We can well afford to note these things because these men are our next door neighbors, and are illustrating, as we have done before them, how great are the possibilities of citizen soldiery. Their training has been much like our own. They were not bred to arms. They were not scarred with camp service. Their lives have not been passed dreaming of conflict or in fear of attack. But because their pursuits have been peaceful and their tastes agricultural or commercial, they are none the less hardy and self-reliant, and none the less capable of meeting almost upon the instant the severest requirements of war. As we mustered before Santiago men of the first fighting spirit and of excellent fighting skill who but a short time before had been breaking up new ground for a corn crop, or striking a trial balance in a counting room or practising law or medicine, these Canadians, from employments as various and unmartial, have shown good mettle and capacity before Kimberley and Ladysmith. That is the sort of men we grow on this side of the Atlantic.

A GREAT REVIVAL.

Toronto District Methodists to be Deeply Stirred.

Toronto, June 12.—The Methodist conference to be held in Toronto this week will take up and complete arrangements for what is hoped will be one of the greatest forward movements in the church since the days of the Wesleys. Many Methodist laymen and ministers fear that unless a spiritual movement accompanies the twentieth century fund, too much pride and self-satisfaction may result.

Nothing short of a mighty revival will suffice.

The ministers who have originated the idea will call upon the Toronto conference to inform the people from every pulpit that on Sunday, October 14th, the last and greatest revival of the nineteenth century is to begin—

The reason for fixing the date of the commencement of the revival on October 14th is found in the fact that on this day one year ago the twentieth century fund idea was launched in England.

Windsor's Celebration.

Kruger burned in effigy, music by four brass bands, 15,000 people shouting, and fireworks to end a day of pandemonium over the fall of Pretoria, made up the portion of Windsor's celebration that will go down in history as the wildest demonstration the town ever saw. Not an accident occurred. The streets were alive all night long and everybody was hoarse. It was the Detroit contingent of Canadian Americans that set the night demonstration in motion. Headed by the Metropolitan band, the 1,000 Detroiters invaded Canada and met an hilarious welcome.

While this was going on in two parts of Detroit the British flag was being torn down. A mob of young men lead in one case. This "little" incident occurred in the heart of the city on a most conspicuous corner. The flag was torn down and stamped and spat upon, and this in the presence of a big assembly, who either applauded or by their silence assented and approved. Just three days before scores of United States flags were thrown to the breeze in Windsor. This year very few were seen in Kingston, not one tenth of the number shown last year. The eyes of the people have been opened.

The Queen At The Derby.

The queen has only been twice to the Derby during her reign. Her majesty and prince Albert visited Epsom races on the Derby day of 1840, and the welcome accorded them was specially enthusiastic, owing to the fact that this was practically a bridal visit. The race was won by an outsider, Little Wonder, the property of Mr. Robertson, and prince Albert was so impressed with Macdonald's riding that he sent his own riding whip to the weighing-room immediately after the race, as a present and souvenir to the lucky jockey.

The Papal Troops.

All the papal troops recently turned out for review at the vatican. The army consists of 390 men, made up of (1) the Guardia Nobile, commanded by prince Altieri, and comprising fifty young men of aristocratic clerical families; (2) the Swiss guard, 100 strong, supposed to be all Swiss, though some of them are Italian mountaineers; (3) the Guardia Palatina and (4) the papal gendarmes, each 100 strong, and finally (5) the forty men of the papal fire brigade. The little army has a weekly newspaper, La Fodelta Cattolica.

The detectives at Poughkeepsie, N.Y., on Tuesday, raided several saloons for keeping slot machines. Some $10,000 worth of machines were seized and destroyed.

Walter K. Davis, a druggist, was arrested at Concord, N.H., for selling soda water on Sunday. He was discharged, the judge ruling that soda water was one of the necessities of life.

Thomas McBride, Guelph, who is now in his seventy-ninth year, walked from Guelph to Hespeler and Dundas, a distance of twenty two miles, on Monday. It is a common thing for him to walk twenty-two miles a day.

Queen Victoria has given orders that no horse in the royal stables shall have its tail docked. This has affected English styles, and shipments of carriage horses to England have lately been ordered without docked tails.

Because he feared inability to keep his wife in proper style, William H. Krueger committed suicide on his wedding morning at St. Louis. His bride was trying on her wedding finery when she learned of the tragical end of her hopes.

Mary Burse, a Cherokee maiden, advertised in a New York paper for a "city young man" to marry her and care for her $10,000 estate. Her Indian lover, Jonas Culberry, read the advertisement and shot and killed her and himself.

Henry Boetcher, a brick manufacturer at Appleton, Wis., brought home a fourteen-year-old girl he had adopted, dressed her in male apparel, and compelled her to work in his brick yard with men and boys. Her sex remained undiscovered nearly a year.

On the evening that witnessed her rejection of the man she loved, Mary J. Parker, of Middletown, Conn., wrote him a letter acknowledging her affection for him in spite of her refusal. She then went to Ninevah Rock, where a similar tragedy occurred two years ago, and deliberately put a bullet through her head.

Teamster Michael Donovan, a burly fellow, quailed at the sight of a small revolver in the hand of a pigmy at Chicago recently. Mr. and Mrs. William Darst were wheeling, when the lady fell in front of Donovan's truck. The burly teamster roundly cursed her. Quick as a flash Darst compelled the ruffian to kneel in the road and beg the lady's pardon.

TOBACCO IN GREAT BRITAIN.

Its Cultivation There at One Time Was Prohibited.

London Mail.

Whether tobacco-growing is still a felony in Great Britain seems to be a matter of doubt; but, if it is, the government connives at the crime and collects an import duty. As a matter of fact, what is known as "English tobacco" has been grown in these islands for centuries. Not that it is any good for snuff, or pipes, or cigarettes, as the virtue dies out very soon from home-seeded tobacco.

"English or green" tobacco grows from three to five feet, but the valuable kinds are from five feet to six feet high, and they all grow well in the southern parts of both England and Ireland.

The industry has never had a chance, for when tobacco was first grown as a crop in Ireland the tobacco planters in our colonies in Virginia and the Carolinas protested against Irish competition, and the British government, always trying to endear itself to the Irish, made the growing of home tobacco a penal crime.

The government was not alone in well doing. Two popes—Urban VIII and Innocent XI—fulminated against the use of tobacco. The Latin text freely translated reads that "He who smokes today shall smoke to-morrow." Sultan Amuret IV decreed that the pipe of the smoker be thrust through his nose, and in Russia the noses of smokers were cut off.

English-grown tobacco needs no expensive machinery, can be grown by yeoman or cottager, and brings a high price. The profits claimed for the recent big experiments in Ireland verge on the fabulous.

Who Won The Watch?

Ottawa Journal.

Amongst the members of the Uitlanders' reform committee who were arrested and condemned to death or to pay enormous fines after the Jameson raid was F. R. Lingham, a native of Belleville, Ont. Mr. Lingham lingered for a long time in the Pretoria jail before he succeeded in making terms with the Boer government. When the first Canadian contingent left for South Africa, Mrs. Lingham, who was then in Belleville, offered a gold watch to the first British flag on the jail where her husband had been confined. Now we all want to hear from the Belleville sprinter.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S
CHLORODYNE.
THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE

ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE

CHLORODYNE is admitted by the profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.

CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma.

CHLORODYNE effectually checks and arrests those too often fatal diseases: Diphtheria, Fever, Croup, Ague.

CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhœa and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.

CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation and Spasms.

CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, etc.

From W. Vesalius, Pettigrew, M.D., formerly Lecturer at St. George's Hospital, London—"I have no hesitation in stating that I have never met with any medicine so efficacious as an Anti-spasmodic and Sedative. I have used it in Consumption, Asthma, Diarrhœa, and other diseases; and am perfectly satisfied with the result."

"Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians that he received a despatch from Her Majesty's Council at Mantia to the effect that cholera has been raging fearfully, and that the only REMEDY of any service was CHLORODYNE.—See Lancet, 1st December, 1864.

CAUTION—BEWARE OF PIRACY AND IMITATIONS.

CAUTION—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was undoubtedly the Inventor of CHLORODYNE; that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, which he regretted to say had been sworn to.—See Times, July 13th, 1864.

Sold in bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each. None is genuine without the words "Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming Medical Testimony accompanies each bottle.

SOLE MANUFACTURER—J. T. DAVENPORT, 33 Great Russell st., Bloomsbury, London, Eng.
