GIRLS MUST RETURN RING

A court has ruler that where a girl breaks her promise of marriage she is not entitled to keep the ring, but is required by law to return it. That seems just. The case at point was an $800 ring, but the principle holds whether it be $800 or $25. Loss of the girl is usually bad enough for the luckless swain, without the forfeit of cold cash besides. It may seem a mercenary attitude, but when love flies out of the window—well, business is business. — The Chesley Enterprise.
