BENTINCK BARN BURNED.

About eleven o'clock last Saturday night the fine large barn of Mrs. Alf. Noble's, 2nd con., Bentinck, went up in flames. Mrs. Noble was in the barn, filling a tick with straw, when a young pig knocked the lantern over, and in an instant the straw was ablaze. In the barn were consumed a horse belonging to Mr. Leuck and some of Mrs. Noble's stock which could not be got out in time—a horse cow, two year-old heifers, two 50-lb. pigs. A load of hay and a number of implements also were destroyed—a mower, land roller, hoe drill, cultivator, wagon, set sleighs, and a fanning mill. We understand there was considerable insurance on barn and contents.—Durham Review.

THOSE POISONED PIGS.

The Herald mentioned last week the loss sustained by R. A. Gillespie in a pig being poisoned by paris green placed in the feeding trough. All his pen of ten pigs, which were a fine bunch ready for market, were more or less sick from the poison and another one died. The trough was taken out of the pen and before it was cleaned the sheep had access to the trough and one ewe died. The Provincial constable was up from Orangeville enquiring into Mr. Gillespie's misfortune but the mystery as to who placed the poison in the truogh is still unsolved.—Dundalk Herald.

THOS. CLAYTON
FLESHERTON

FEVERSHAM

The mercury took a drop on Saturday and the wind veered to the north again, and more of the beautiful came again on Sunday, reminding us that March is still with us yet and may go out lionlike enough yet.

The road to Flesherton was opened for motor traffic last week. The snow had nearly all disappeared and our mail carrier, Mr. Heitman, has been running his truck.

Mr. James and Master Herbie Eby motored over to Owen Sound and Allenford, returning home again on Monday.

While driving here to Sunday school on Sunday morning Mr. Ed. Pedlar's horse ran away on account of the harness giving way coming down a hill on the sideline. The horse broke clear away from the buggy and pulled Burton Pedlar, who was driving, out over the dashboard and trailed him a considerable distance, but no one was severely hurt and the horse was caught atfer running a short distance.

Mr. and Mrs. Forsyth have returned to their home in Owen Sound after a two weeks' visit with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eby, here.

Mr. Wm. Osborne spent a few days last week with his sister, Mrs. Wm. Bellamy, in Flesherton.

Mr. K. Osborne of the Batteau visited with his cousin, Harold, and other friends here.

"ONWARD" NEWS

Mr. John Parslow met with a painful accident last week. He was upset out of his cutter and had his shoulder disjointed.

The play, My Irish Rose, given in the O.D.R. school on Friday last, was well received and there was a good turnout, considering the condition of the roads. The play will be given in Flesherton High School on Friday, March 25, and will be worth hearing.

Combating the Wolves In Northern Canada

System Employed by Department of the Interior Effective and Economical

Wolf-killing campaigns are as old as organized society but the Department of the Interior has introduced a new element into them by endeavouring to make this ravenous beast pay for his own destruction. If wolves were easy to trap there would never be a wolf menace—the trappers would attend to that. But the wolves are notoriously the most difficult of all animals to kill or capture and for this reason the trapper naturally gives his attention to fur-bearers more easily taken.

Canada's northern country is steadily being opened up. Possibilities in hunting, ranching, mining and other lines are coming into sight but it is a truism that these can only be developed with the aid of the native popoulation of Indians and Eskimos. For generations the natives have depended for a great part of their food and clothing upon the caribou. The wolf preys on this animal and does further damage by destroying the fur-bearers caught in the traps of the hunters. To check these losses and to protect the subsistence of the Indians and Eskimos the Dominion Government in 1915 offered a bounty of $20 per head for each wolf killed in the Northwest Territories, the hunter being allowed after receiving the bounty to sell the pelt for what it would fetch. This brought down little if any increase in the number of wolves destroyed, and to get the situation into hand the Northwest Territories and Yukon Branch in the winter of 1922-23, and again in 1923-24, sent a wolf-hunting party into the caribou country east of Great Slave Lake, which resulted in the destruction in the two years of 320 wolves. The pelts thus obtained were sold at auction and the proceeds materially assisted in paying the cost of these expeditions.

In 1924, following up the success thus attained, the bounty was increased from $20 to $30 per wolf, upon condition that the pelt be surrendered to the Department. The pelts are received from the hunters at the various Royal Canadian Mounted Police posts, and shipped direct to the fur auctions in Eastern Canada, to be disposed of at the various sales. This has given a great impetus to the wolf-extermination campaign and at the same time has lessened the cost per wolf to the Department; for while some of the pelts taken under the bounty scheme are only of average value the majority are prime skins of the huge timber wolf of the north, skins which are sought by dealers from all over the world. At the sales held in 1926 and the one in January, 1927, pelts to the number of 964 were disposed of for $13,864. Thus, although the hunter was encouraged, by the increased bounty of $30, to get more wolves, the Government effected a considerable saving as compared with the former bounty of $20, and the expansion of the market caused by the knowledge that such pelts can be secured in quantity will tend to further reduce the cost of combating the wolf menace.
