Hancock's Inspirator

IS THE MOST ECONOMICAL APPLIANCE KNOWN for feeding boilers or pumping purposes on account of the great range of its duties and the small expenditure of steam required for working it. It is intended to take the place of Pumps and Injectors and may be used in place stead to great advantage. It differs materially both in its

Construction & Working Qualities

from the class of boiler feeders known as injectors—inasmuch as it has one set of tubes for lifting and another set of tubes for forcing water—a combination entirely new, reliable and efficient. They are simple to operate, always ready for use and altogether a very reliable feed for boilers.

PAMPHLETS OF INSTRUCTION furnished on application, also testimonials if required. We guarantee every Inspirator according to recommendation or no charge.

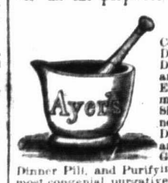
Ayer's Cathartic Pills.

For all the purposes of a Family Physic,

Curing



Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentry, Foul Stomach and Breath, Headache, Erysipelas, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Dropsy Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms Gout; Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and Purifying the Blood, are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effect abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organs into action; and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skilful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens, send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

Daily British Whig

GUITEAU'S SISTER.

Her Husband Files an Answer to Her Bill for Divorce—Charged With Insanity and Immorality.

A cross bill has been filed in the Circuit Court, Chicago, by George Scoville to the bill filed by his wife, asking for a divorce on the ground of cruelty. He denies that she always behaved toward him as a chaste, dutiful and affectionate wife. He claims that she has been guilty of frequent and repeated indiscretions, has treated him with most heartless ingratitude, has broken up his home, and has transferred her affections to other men. He says that she has been of unsound mind since July 1st, 1881, and is now partially insane, all owing to the Guiteau shooting and trial. In February, 1882, a month after her return to Washington, she became acquainted with a manager of an associated press organization in Chicago, and had frequent interviews with him, which interviews are still kept up. Mrs. Scoville fell desperately in love with Earlie and did not hesitate to tell him so. Earlie obtained complete influence over the woman. She consulted him as to her dress, adornment and appearance. She pursued him day and night until he was compelled to change his residence three times, repeatedly forbid her visiting him. The intimacy with Earlie soon bore fruit in her conduct toward her husband. She ceased writing to him and slandered him on every occasion. Scoville next goes on to say that on Sunday, March 5th, 1882, Earlie came to Mrs. Scoville's house in a carriage and took her

OUT RIDING FOR THREE HOURS.

This was while Scoville was in Washington. Next day she wrote Scoville that Earlie had urged her to prepare a lecture, and that she was doing so. Earlie was to bear all the expenses. Earlie also called at the house every afternoon for an hour. Scoville next complains that notes were frequently passing between his wife and this Earlie. On April 7th Earlie wrote Mrs. Scoville to meet him at 11 o'clock a.m. of the following day at Scoville's office. The two often met there, Scoville thinks, and always had the door locked. Also, whenever Earlie visited her at her house their interviews were held in her bed room, although there were large parlors below. The bed room door was also always locked. Soon after Mrs. Scoville became infatuated with Earlie she began to talk about a divorce. She acknowledged to her husband July 19th last that she desired a divorce for the purpose of marrying Earlie; that she had told him that she was as much divorced from Scoville as she could be by any court, and as much his (Earlie's) wife as if she had been married to him 100 years; also, that she was desperately in love with him, besides a lot of other similar stuff, which was perfectly absurd coming from a woman 47 years old, and who had been married thirty years. Mrs. Scoville, on the 19th of June last, left secretly for Cleveland. On the 21st of June Earlie, by previous appointment with her, telegraphed under a fictitious name to the person in whose family she expected to visit at Cleveland, with reference to her, as follows:

"Chicago, June 21.—The lady will arrive to-day. I will follow this afternoon. "CLAIR."

Mrs. Scoville, however, went to the Kennard House, where Earlie met her next day and furnished her money. From the time till the following Monday evening, although a number of reporters were trying to find her, she made herself scarce. She denied seeing Earlie after the Thursday, but Scoville believes that she was somewhere secreted with Earlie.

Scoville also claims that his wife had during the week of Guiteau's execution, at her boarding house, and that on one occasion she kissed him. On July 22, Mrs. Scoville told her husband that Earlie was not a licentious man; that she had tempted him; that she wanted to know from her own experience if there was a man honorable enough to withstand temptation, as she wished such a character in the novel she was writing.

She is under the influence of cranks, and left her home under the influence of George Francis Train, a confirmed lunatic. Mrs. Scoville also fell into the hands of Dr. Mary Walker. She next had an escapade with a divorced man, named C. N. Bolin, of Red Oak, Iowa, whom she met on the train in April last. For five days she met him and followed him up so closely that he had to refuse to see her. She next met in New York, between April 26 and May 8, a lover of her girlhood named Lewis Hanchett. Hanchett took her to the Hoffman House and procured a room for her without registering her name. Hanchett gave her money several times. On the 29th of May last she returned to Chicago and went to a strange hotel with a stranger named Clark and registered under an assumed name. Scoville, besides these instances of unwifely conduct, hints that he has still further developments in store. Scoville claims that if she is permitted to prosecute this suit as a person of sound mind he asks for a divorce and the custody of their infant child Bertha.

MESMERISM.

Means by Which the Subject is Thrown Into a Trance—Experiments Worth Trying—An Illustration.

A recent writer on the mysteries of mesmerism, says:—I lay it down as a matter which can be verified by all who are curious enough to try it, that the mesmeric conditions can be produced without the use of the cabalistic passes of the mesmerist, without the boquet, the magnetic rod, or any of the mysterious means employed by the professionals to heighten the effect of what would be too simple and so unattractive if performed straightforwardly. The directions are these: Place the person to be operated on naturally in a chair. With your left hand suspend by a string about a foot from the eyes, some small object, a dark marble, or a bright steel ball, or a diamond, it matters not what though something bright is preferable. Direct the subject to fasten his eyes and concentre his attention on the object. Slowly raise your left hand until the object is as far above the eyes of the patient as is compatible with

HIS GAZING STEADILY AT IT.

Watch his eyes. At first you will see the pupils contract, but after a few seconds they will expand rapidly. When they are at the point of greatest expansion, move the first two fingers of your right hand from the object directly toward the eyes, the fingers being separated, forklike, to embrace both eyes. As the fingers approach the eyes will close, and the subject will be unable to open them. After a quarter of a minute the subject will be thoroughly under control, so that the operator may make him believe whatever he tells him. Left quiet, the subject will sink into a profound torpor, during which his ears may be pierced, his cheeks sewed to his nose, and even a finger cut off, without pain. To arouse him, and this is an important step, wind, either from a hand bellows or a fan, should be blown upon his eyes or they may be tickled with a feather. The rationale of the method is simple. The fixed stare of the subject fatigues his retinal nerves, and, when the operator's fingers approach the eyelids close, as eyelids always do when the eyes are threatened. But the fatigue of the nerves has produced muscular fatigue as well, transient

PARALYSIS IN THE EYELIDS

It is resulted, and they cannot be opened. The eyelids being then closed, the delicate frontal nerves exhausted, and the mind made vacant by monotonous attention to one subject, the patient is in a condition to fall asleep—and he does fall asleep. He is now ready to dream. The only thing remaining to do is to make him dream. But how is this to be effected? Dreaming, as has long been determined, is the result of external suggestion. Dr. Gregory, to illustrate, having been thinking of Vesuvius, went to bed with a jug of hot water at his feet, and dreamed that he was climbing the sides of the burning mountain. Dr. Reid read a book on the Indians, put a blister to his head on retiring, and thought in his sleep he was being scalped. Both the dreams, as all others are, were caused by suggestions offered externally. These suggestions, being received while the directing power, the common sense of the mind, was in abeyance owing to sleep, were interpreted very erroneously, yet according to plain laws of association. The hot water, in the one case, called up the previous subject of thought, Vesuvius; the stinging blister, in the other, the equally stinging scalping knife. It is now easy to see how the sleeping subject may be made to accept as truth whatever he is told.

Another Enoch Arden Case.

A case of wife desertion and her subsequent bigamous marriage, without criminal intent, culminated yesterday in the tragic death of the second man at Erie, Pa. Mrs. Meyers is a botanical doctress, and seven years ago her husband, disliking the attentions paid his wife by Frederick Grubb, a boarder, arose in the night and left his home forever, first firing the house and nearly cremating Mrs. Meyers and the boarder. Grubb had a wife and seven children, and his attentions to Mrs. Meyers had the effect of causing them to pack up and quit for Cleveland. Thus the grass widow and grass widower were left to solace each other. Grubb wanted to marry the doctress, but she declined, hoping her husband would return. Year after year passed, and Grubb continued to press his suit, urging that Meyers and his own wife must be dead. Wearied with Grubb's persistent wooing, and having given up all hopes of seeing her husband again, the doctress consented to become Mrs. Grubb four weeks ago. A few days after the wedding Meyers returned to claim his wife, now 64 years old. Grubb resented the intrusion, and the first husband was disposed of by being clapped into the alms house. This interruption of the honeymoon caused a rupture between the bride and bridegroom, and things became so lively for Grubb that he decided Tuesday morning to divorce himself with a revolver. He blew out his brains and died instantly.

Determined to Remain.

Mr. S. J. Minaker, of Picton, took an active part in the late election, in the interest of Dr. Platt, and is recognized as an influential Reformer. A few days ago he received the following letter:

"DEAR SIR,—You had better leave town by the first of October if you know what will be for your advantage, as you have been playing a little too conspicuous a part in the last election. You will have things made hot for you if you
