Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Family Physic.

Curing Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Headache, Erysipelas, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Bilious Fever, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and Purifying the Blood, are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effect abundantly shows how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organs into action; and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every day complaints of every body, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skilful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens, send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar coated, they are easy to take, and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

Hancock's Inspirator

IS THE MOST ECONOMICAL APPLIANCE KNOWN for feeding boilers or pumping purposes, on account of the great range of its duties, and the small expenditure of steam required for working it. It is intended to take the place of Pumps and Injectors and may be used in their stead to great advantage. It differs materially, both in its

Construction & Working Qualities

from the class of boiler feeders known as injectors, inasmuch as it has one set of tubes for lifting and another set of tubes for forcing water—a combination entirely new, reliable and efficient. They are simple to operate, always ready for use, and altogether a very reliable feed for boilers.

PAMPHLETS OF INSTRUCTION furnished on application, also testimonials if required. We guarantee every Inspirator according to representation or no charge.

A TRIBUTE.

Roses red and white and gold
Breathing balm from every fold.
Lily of the vale,
Jasmine fair and violet pale,
Cowslip with your regal hue,
Drooping faint and pale.

Mosses green and ivy vine,
Dahlia blooms and aglantine,
Heart's ease sighing low,
Royal tulips grand and gay,
Hyacinths that sportive play
In the sunbeam's glow.

Daisy buds that nestled cool
By the forest's chilly pool
When the May-flowers came,
Sweet arbutus pink and shy,
Passion blooms than the sky,
Crocus cups of flame.

Snowy lilies white and fair,
Bend above the golden hair
Bright as sunlit skies,
Where the willows softly wave
O'er the grass-grown, lowly grave
Where our loved one lies.

HARRIET MABEL SPALDING.

MURDERED HIS FATHER.

All for the Love of the Notorious Kate Bender—Details of a Horrifying Character—A Bad Mother.

(San Francisco Examiner.)

There are at the present time sixteen murderers incarcerated in the county jail, some of whom have not a few notches on their weapons to account for, and who will be launched into space ere many days have passed. One of the most diabolical crimes came to light not long since, and the participants are at the present time paying the penalties of their misdeeds in the jail. One of the guilty wretches paid his penalty by being hanged, Sheriff Whitehall presiding at the expiation. The cause of the crime was a woman now known as Mrs. Dwenger. About three years ago "Old Dwenger," who owned a large ranch about thirty miles from Silver City, came back from a trip in the neighboring states, bringing with him a German woman who answers to the description of Kate Bender, about whom there has been so much speculation. This woman was about thirty four or thirty-five years of age, well educated, and could speak three or four languages. Old Dwenger took the woman to his ranch, and they lived together for nearly a year before they were married. The people on the ranch consisted of two sons of Dwenger, one about twenty years of age and the other six or seven, and an old man called Parson Young, who was permitted to

HANG ABOUT THAT PLACE.

About a month after the marriage took place Dwenger disappeared, the woman and the others giving out that he had gone to Mexico, and as it was no unusual thing for him to make trips of a like character, nothing more was thought of the matter. The ranch being so far out of the way, and the nearest neighbor being over fifteen miles off, nobody knew ought of what was going on at the place. About two months afterward the man with whom it was said that Dwenger had departed, returned, and upon being questioned said that Dwenger had not gone with him. It then began to be rumored that something was wrong, that Dwenger had been murdered, and the guilty parties were his newly made wife and his son. Sheriff Whitehall immediately arrested all parties of the ranch, and kept them confined in separate apartments, the woman being allowed to stay at his house. Finally the young man confessed to having murdered his father, and told where the horrible deed had been committed, and the body afterwards buried. The sheriff proceeded to the spot, and there found the remains of old Dwenger in a perfectly nude state. It seems that both young Dwenger and Parson Young had fallen in love with the woman, and for some time previous had been unduly intimate with her. But the presence of the old man was a

and, after discussing the best means to get rid of him, they finally determined that the woman should marry him, so as to be his widow, and thus fall heir to his property, which amounted to several thousands of dollars—$8,000 being in the bank, and the rest in the ranch. Accordingly the woman prevailed on old Dwenger to marry her, and about a month after the plan was arranged by which the old man died at the hands of his son. Parson Young and young Dwenger represented to the murdered man that they had, while out prospecting shortly before, found a mine that would make all their fortunes. Accordingly, after breakfast, the three men started from the house, and after travelling six or seven miles, they came to a hole which had been dug as if for prospecting. Parson Young engaged the old man in conversation, while the son stepped back, prepared his rifle and shot his father through the back. They then buried the old man with his clothes on and went home. Upon their arrival they told the widowed woman what they had done. She coolly ordered them back after the old man's clothes, saying that "they would come handy some day." They returned to the scene of the assassination, dug up the body, stripped off the clothes and again buried it.

The woman took the clothes, cut them into small pieces, used them instead of cotton batting for a quilt, and under this the three guilty parties slept without remorse. The case was taken to Santa Anna county for trial, and there Parson Young was sentenced to be hanged for the crime. Young Dwenger was sentenced to ninety-nine years in the penitentiary, and the woman to ten years' confinement.

Scene on an Arkansas Scaffold.

On Friday William Reeves was hanged for the murder of Drake. When the prisoner found the rope tied around his body and round his arms to the scaffold, he became desperate, burst the knot and a vigorous struggle began. Men were bumped around in wild disorder. The Sheriff dropped through the trap, and the criminal attempted to run from the scaffold, but was caught just in time to keep him from plunging upon the bayonets of the guards beneath. When secured, the noose was placed around his neck, the trigger touched, but the rope was too long. He was drawn up again through the trap, and the noose unloosed. He groped and reproached the executioners for their cruelty. The rope was again fixed, and the trigger again sprung with fatal results.

EXTRAORDINARY CRIMES

Long Career of Infanticide in Switzerland—Swindling in Belgium—Incidents of Interest.

Zyssset, have been sentenced in the Canton of Berne to penal servitude for life for having murdered all of their children, numbering either five or seven. They admit having put five to death, and, there is reason to believe that they killed two others whose births they concealed. Their motive was simply to save themselves the trouble and expense of bringing the children up, though they seem to have been far from poor, a considerable sum of money having been found in their house. The plan they adopted to get rid of the children was to deprive them of food, and when the process of starvation did not appear quick enough, or the little ones cried too much, it was accelerated by strangling them or knocking them on the head. The jury expressed regret that, under the present law of Berne, the Zyssets could not be sentenced to some severer punishment than perpetual imprisonment.

Four female criminals of a remarkable type have come to grief in Belgium. They carried on a flourishing business in sorcery, and the chief, a married woman named Liguan, aged 31, lived in great style in one of the most fashionable parts of Charleroi, giving grand parties and moving in "society." With the assistance of her confederates she laid traps for likely victims, wormed herself into their confidence, and then extorted from them a plentiful supply of money. One Madame Bodart was induced to hand over some thousands of francs by the threat that if she refused to do so her child, which was ill at the time, would die. From another of her victims Madame Liguan obtained upwards of twenty-six thousand francs by undertaking that she should inherit the estates of a dying relative. Among the witnesses examined were two sisters, one of whom had paid Madame Liguan 500 francs for obtaining the signature of the devil to a marriage contract; while the other had parted with 10,000 francs to compass the death of a woman to whose husband she was attached. The fraud's most successful form of knavery was that of persuading people that they were under the influence of satan, and that they could only free themselves through a pilgrimage by proxy to Jerusalem or some other sacred shrine. The dupes left the negotiation of the pilgrimage in her hands, being charged a heavy commission for her trouble in the matter. But in fact no such journeys were undertaken, and the "pieces of the true cross" and other sacred relics with which the credulous dupes were subsequently supplied as a safeguard against the evil one, were all home made. The madame has been sentenced to imprisonment for 7 years and the others to 18 months' confinement.

Terrible Massacre.

The Fiji Times of April, 30th reports that a horrible massacre was perpetrated at the Island of Tapihana. Natives were proselytized by a Kanaka missionary named Kubu, who induced them to give up their weapons. The people of the southern portion of the island became dissatisfied at the constant requisitions on them, and their apostle Kubu proceeded a crusade against the northern people. He armed his followers and led them in person. An indiscriminate slaughter ensued, over 1,000 women and children being massacred. The bodies were collected in a pile and burned. Kubu has been taken to Honolulu to answer for his crime.
