THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC.

It is difficult to understand the determined position taken by Mr. Laurier in the matter of this proposed line. In face of the opposition exerted by his own party and press he still insists on pushing through the most gigantic steal that has ever been forced upon the Canadian people. If the people understood this matter as they should there would be open and determined rebellion against the powers which would force them into such an enormous expenditure. The rebellion, of course, may come later, but that will not prevent the mischief being done, nor strengthen the hand of Mr. Blair, who resigned his cabinet portfolio as a protest, and who continues to energetically and honestly oppose the scheme. As Mr. Blair points out, we are here a people of only six million, and the proposition is to saddle a debt upon us of at least one hundred and seventeen million dollars in order that we may build a second railway from ocean to ocean and give it away to a corporation. If it were a national undertaking and could rank as an asset of the Dominion it would not be so bad, but even then we doubt if the time is ripe for penetrating the seventeen hundred miles of muskeg and wilderness which it would be necessary to do on the proposed route in order to connect the settled districts. It is too big a proposition this, for the people, and strong protests have been entered from all quarters, but still the determination appears to be to go on and fasten an octopus about our necks from which we will not be able to loosen ourselves for the next hundred years. The only individuals who will benefit by this huge scheme will be the large lumber and mining companies and the government itself. The people who pay the cost of construction—an apalling sum—are not considered in this deal.

Mr. Will McFarland of Markdale was the participant in an unpleasant accident which happened near Smith's Falls recently. A party consisting of Dr. and Mrs. Robertson James, John and Miss Ethel McDowell, of Kingston, R. O. Whitby, Toronto, and Mr. McFarland were on the Rideau River, near Smith's Falls in a gasoline launch. The launch struck a stump, tearing a hole in the hull. They had no row boat in tow, and made for a cedar buoy which was, fortunately, close at hand. The water was about ten feet deep at this point, and when they climbed on the buoy it sank until they were almost up to their necks in the water. The wind was blowing a gale and their position was both unpleasant and unsafe. Dr. Robertson attempted to swim to the shore, half a mile distant, but was forced to turn back, then Mr. McFarland tried it and although one arm gave out, managed to reach land, and then ran nearly a mile to the nearest farm house for assistance. The party were rescued in rowboats. Dr. Robertson lost a coat containing $130.
