One day recently the family of Mr. John McGruther, east back line, were disturbed by a slight noise upstairs. Investigation disclosed a fine fat partridge, which had evidently entered the door when no one saw it and found its way upstairs. Seton Thompson informs us that partridges go crazy every fall, and experience has taught us the correctness of his statement, but we have never heard of them doing anything quite so crazy as the one above referred to.

A son of Mr. Fred Birch of the 7th line, Euphrasia, while drawing in grain recently met with a rather exciting experience. The farm is situated on top of the mountain above the Kimberley valley, and at the brow of the mountain is a steep slope, and then comes a perpendicular drop of some fifteen or twenty feet. On the occasion referred to the horses and their load got on the above grade at this point and were unable to stop, horses, wagon and boy going over the rock together. Of course the wagon was smashed to pieces and one of the horses was injured so badly that it may not recover, but the young man escaped without any damage. It was necessary to get blocks and tackle to release the animals and outfit from their position.

A cow belonging to F. D. Armstrong of Douro Township, Peterboro county, met death in a very unusual manner last week. The cow was found dead with the hoof of one of its hind legs securely fastened to one of its horns. It is probable that the flies were troubling the animal and in trying to knock them off, the hoof became fastened in the above manner, and it was unable to unfasten it. The cow must have struggled hard to release itself from the dangerous position, as its neck was broken when found.

Senator Dr. Geo Landerkin died in his home at Hanover on Sunday at the age of 64 years. He graduated in 1862 and commenced practicing in Huston, Wellington county, removing the following year to Hanover. He had lived here all his life since, bringing as his bride in 1870 Mary, daughter of Joseph Kirkendall of Elora. The representative of the Durham Review was delighted with east Grey fall fair. He speaks as follows in his report: "There was a good display of grain, all of excellent quality. Roots and vegetables were also good, but perhaps there ought to have been a fuller exhibit. Dairy produce was well represented and did credit to the butter makers of East Grey. There was a splendid display of fruit and this is not to be wondered at, as the famous Cuckoo valley runs through that district, and apples, pears, plums, grapes and even peaches, were there in plenty and perfection and all exhibited excellent taste. The flowers too, although not great in numbers, would be difficult to beat in excellence and afforded abundant evidence that the people of Flesherton and vicinity have a high appreciation of the beautiful. And the ladies' work? It was there in abundance and variety; it was there in things known and things unknown, in things ornamental and things useful, and in things that no man could tell what they were or what they were for, and as to quality, the lady judges would certainly have a difficult task in making their awards. The whole inside exhibition was a very creditable one, and seems to be well managed by the genial secretary and directors"
