"Where Quality is Higher Than Price"

Miss Macphail's Letter

certain legal aspects of divorce. Few people including some members, really know just what powers Parliament has in this vital matter. It is now generally known that Parliament is empowered only to sever the marriage tie; and to sever it on one ground only, that of adultery. It cannot do anything about the custody of children, nor about ailmony for a wife. These things have to be dealt with through separate civil action in the courts—if the party seeking relief can afford it. It is extreemly difficult to believe that members and others who have hitherto opposed a divorce court for Ontario—rather unthinkingly, it is to be feared—can remain unconvinced after noting what has been said in the House during recent days. Of course, the antagonism to divorce "on principle" explains much, but surely it is realized by now that the principle of divorce has nothing to do with the present movement to create a divorce court in this province. It is a matter of providing an adequate tribunal with all safeguards for seemliness and dignity, in place of the present machinery which it has been amply demonstrated, is far from being a credit to us. Such a court would not make divorce easier. It is conceivable indeed that it would make it harder.

Canada has been practically convinced that a divorce court for Ontario is desirable and that old patronage methods are out worn and any Minister of the Crown practising them is too heavy a weight for the Government to carry.

I have been watching for some time a Bill sponsored by W. J. Ward of Dauphin, Manitoba, asking that woman be given the right to establish a legal domicile in her own right. As it is she cannot establish a legal domicile apart from her husband. It is just part of the old business of thinkin- a woman as something less than a person. Rumors has it that Mr. Lapointe, Minister of Justice, was against the Bill. He said it was just opening the door! I suppose he fears it would let woman completely out of the enclosure which has surrounded her through the centuries. Mr. Ward, who is a Progressive Liberal, dropped the Bill. Next year if he is not willing to take it up, someone who is, must do it. Many of the legal profession are very anxious that this Bill should go through. They have the utmost difficulty serving their women clients because of this old stupidity.

The members of the Women's Internaional League, United States section, were a splendid group. I almost feared addressing them because for so long they have applied themselves to the subject of Internationalism. I needn't have felt that way they were so kind and tolerant. The President is Emily Green Balch who was for years Professor in Wellesley College; the chairman was Mrs. Maud Richard of Pennyslvania, who with her husband, owns coal mines and runs them for the benefit of the miners taking out of them only a living. She had much to say on the deplorable conditions among the miners in Pennsylvania. I had an opportunity of quite a long conversation with Kathleen Blake, a well-known New York educationalist who travelled last year in Russia with the John Dewey party. She was much impressed by the great strides education was making in Russia and the interesting educational experiments going on there.

One of the cleverest of the younger women was Dorothy Detzer who lobbies in Congress while the House is in session, supporting peace in every possible way. A very beautiful aged woman was Mrs. Grace Hoffman White of New York who in the old days worked with Mrs. Pankhurst for sufferage, leaving her luxurious home on this continent to endure the real privation of that campaign.

Oddly enough the W.I.L. of United States has drawn to itself many wealthy as well as many intellectual women. The W.I.L. are anxious that the United States shall become a member of the world court and the League of Nations. They favor international agreements and not merely for the reduction of disarmaments, but for the fundamental change of the whole type and purpose of armed forces, giving them a purely police character and abandoning manoeuvers, weapons, etc. directed to the making of war. They believe that the Department of State should be a peace department, doing everything possible at home and abroad to create good will. They desire an agreemnt with Great Britain in regard to sea law that will be acceptable to both. They are against the imperialistic tendancies of their country and are also against tariff and export of capital not in the best interests of international harmony.
