Prosperous Newfoundland

Sir P. T. McGrath in the Queen's Quarterly: At the present time our country is too prosperous, our people are too contented, the outlook is too promising for us to consider any proposal for union on the part of the Dominion, even if the Dominion were disposed to make one.

Eighteen "Count 'em", in One Family

The Clan MacLeod arrived in Canada recently by the Canadian Pacific liner "Metagama"—at least if it wasn't the whole clan, it seemed like a large proportion. Donald, his brother Kenneth and his son Allan were leaders of the family groups under Donald's command. Including grandchildren the party, which is bound en bloc for Centreville, Ont., numbered twenty-four ranging in age from forty-five years to six months. They had twenty-one pieces of baggage weighing 3,000 pounds.

Hardware Dealer (to applicant): "I am inclined to give you the position if you understand double-entry keeping."

Applicant: "I do, indeed! At my last place I had to do a triple-double-entry—a set for the active partner, showing the real profits, a set for the sleeping partner, showing small profits and a set for the Income Tax officials, showing no profits."

In the memory contest at Apple Grove School yesterday, it was almost dark before little Lizzie Lark, who won the prize, got through namin' dental creams.—Abe Martin.

Possibly one reason why the girls smoke cigarettes is so that the boy who reaches for a cigarette can get a sweet along with it.

SIX VS. HALF DOZEN

There was once a woman named Bunny
Who never would play bridge for money;
But to pay for a prize she would always chip in,
And also the prize she would frequently win.
Now tell me the difference, (I'm not very wise)
Between taking money and what money buys.

With a woman the difference between plumpness and fatness is marriage and about ten years.

Sweet Young Thing—"Have a cigarette?"

Elderly Lady—"What! Smoke a cigarette? Why I'd rather kiss the first man that came along!"

Sweet Young Thing—"So would I. But have a cigarette while you're waiting."

HEALTH ITEMS

Getting hot under the collar may over-heat and bake your Adam's apple.

You don't have to make a better mouse-trap now. Just neglect to pay your installments on time and see that path get worn to your door.

If you want something done call on a man who is "just too busy" and do it.

"That young fellow upstairs must be tremendously popular, postman, you always have mail for him."

"Yes, I had an argument with him once, and ever since he sends himself a post-card every day, so I have to climb four flights of stairs to deliver it."

Of course the woman pays. If she didn't the installment man would pull the stuff.

Anantique is something that rich people buy and poor people throw away.

INTERCEPTED

She tripped along with fairy feet,
A vision that my heart beguiled.
Bewitching, fragile, rougish, sweet,
And as she came she smiled.

We met . . . Alas, the usual fall
O'ertook my pride, the dull and blind.
Her smile was not for me at all,
But some one else behind!

"Failure is always preceded by Confusion. Success is always marked by Orderliness. Uncertainty is the most expensive and most unnecessary thing in business.'

Chicago claims she will have 5,000,000 people by 1935 if she can keep them alive.

"Gosh, but that man over there is fat. He must drink patriotic beer."

"What kind is that?"

"The kind that goes to the front."

I Have No Time for Such

WILLA HOEY

I had a friend, a spirit blythe and gay.
I thought I knew her, but just yesterday
We met a dog. I stroked his friendly head,
And she went on, then turned and said,
"You love those horrid creatures far too much,
I have no time for such."
Since then my heart grows cooler toward that friend,
In fact I think our friendship had an end
The day she scorned his fond caress,
I feel quite sorry, but I must confess,
We seemed to lose our kindred touch
—"I have no time for such."

BY MISS Z. I. DAVIS

No machine can take the place of the horse, always, even in these days. Almost the whole city has been stirred over the splendid faithfulness and strength of draft horses, now being used to open up a street adjoining one of the main thoroughfares of Grand Rapids, Mich. So impressive is the horse sense, sagacity, obedience, cautiousness, adaptability and good nature of these great beasts that they were given honorable mention in the daily papers.

The special work of these animals in this particular case is to pull a great wagon skeleton across the axles of which is a steel girder weighing tons. Slowly the trusty creatures roll their burden up the slippery hill. Folks pause to thrill at the strength shown.

But the driver gives all his attention to the task in hand. He feels that on him depends the safety of the load. His team knows his signals on the reins, and his voice quietly encouraging. They dig in their spiked shoes and pull. Vapor streams from their nostrils. With ears cheerfully forward, they toss their magnificent heads up and down, as if saying "yes" to their kind owner and driver.

The wheels creak on the ice but never stop their rolling. The horses never falter. The driver knows they must not or the task is a task failed. Not tightly but firmly the driver holds the reins. He talks to the team low-spoken words, hardly heard by those upon the sidewalk who watch the struggle. Some say it can't be done. Others say it can and cheer and encourage both the driver and the horses. Great muscles flex and relax, hoofs chip iron spikes into the ice, inch by inch the team gains victory. The beam weighs more than seven tons. The driver couldn't move it alone. One horse would try in vain. But the team and driver have the strength to do the task and do it—to them it is just "day labor."—Humane Pleader.

"Do you think that singer is going to be a great diva?"

"I didn't know she could even swim."

Expedition to Brazil Collects Rare Fauna

American Debutantes

London Sunday Express (Ind.): Many Americans come to our courts, and it is a good thing not only for them but for us. We benefit financially, and they in turn like the pageantry and also the certain stamp which a presentation at Court involves. That is only human nature. There is nothing new in this. Ever since the days when Atlantic transport became at all possible Americans have always liked Courts. In the times of Louis Napoleon they flocked to the Tuileries; now they have to be content with restaurants, which are a comparatively poor setting for fine feathers. Every American girl who is presented at Buckingham Palace is a valuable asset, for she invariably becomes an English propagandist.

WHEN BABY IS WELL MOTHER IS HAPPY

The happy mother is the one whose baby is well—it is the laughing, gurgling baby who always brings joy to the home. When baby is ill everyone in the home suffers—not only through worry over the little one but through loss of sleep—no one can find rest with a sick baby in the home. Thousands of mothers are happy mothers because they have found the way to keep their little ones well—or if sickness does come on suddenly, as it usually does with little ones, they have found the way to speedily bring the baby back to health again. Mrs. George Kech, Lindberg, Alta., is one of these mothers and she writes as follows:—"I am the happy mother of a seventeen-month-old baby girl. Baby is healthy and strong and sleeps well at night. I give her no other medicine but Baby's Own Tablets and she just loves them. I am never without the Tablets in the house."

Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels; sweeten the stomach and thus drive out constipation and indigestion and make the cutting of teeth easy. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. William's Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The "Talkie" Revolution

London Daily News and Westminster: The triumph of an English film actor, Mr. Ronald Colman, seems to be the first result of the success of the "talkies," and others will clearly follow. If the "talkies" eventually displace their silent rivals in the popular favor—and it would seem almost certain that they must—the English-speaking (as distinct from the American-speaking) performer will come into his own in this country with a vengeance, further, it would seem that in each country the change must operate as a powerful measure of "protection" for the native industry. The sort of audience which flocks to the average English cinema is not going to "listen" to French and German and Swedish films, unless the actors talk "plain English," and French and German and Spanish audiences will presumably also insist on understanding what the "talkies" are saying.

The Looting of England

London Evening News (Ind. Cons.): (A recent rumor declares that the village of Bilbury, in the Cotswold Hills, has been bought by an American and will be transported in its entirely to the United States.) Such things may yet happen. It would require so short and simple a law to forbid the removal from this country of these ancient and beautiful architectural landmarks that one would expect to find each of the three political parties rushing forward with the promise that if it returns to power it will make such a law without delay. If they do not do so is because the public is apathetic. The remedy in this case is in the citizens' hands. And if the sacred law of property must to some extent be curtailed the curtailment is just as necessary in the interests of Anglo-American friendship as of the English people who must stand by and see their architectural birthright sold for a mess of dollars.

Query: Do Goldfish Tickle Swans' Feet?

Wheaton College Refers Problem to Biological Experts

Norton, Mass.—The new pond opened this spring on the campus of Wheaton has brought with it zoological complications.

Two groups of students interested in this new pond desire to make presentations to it. One group hopes to present goldfish, the other swans. So the difficult question airses: Do goldfish and swans get on together in the same pond? The crux of the difficulty lies, college authorities avow, in the question as to whether the goldfish would tickle the swan's feet.

The whole matter has been referred by the biology department of the college to the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, and an early solution is expected.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any drugstore.
