Rural Health Units

Up until the present time, the knowledge which we possess concerning the prevention of disease as been applied in cities much more than it has been in small towns and rural areas. Practically all cities of any importance have organized health departments, with trained workers in charge of the various activities carried on by the department.

The small town and rural areas, as a result of the lack of health work, are, in general, not as healthy as are the cities. In other words, those who live in the cities are more free from preventable diseases, because the preventable diseases, cities have organized health departments which protect the citizens from preventable diseases. It has been the hope of those who have given thought to this problem of rural health, that some scheme might be devised whereby those living outside the cities would receive the same measure of protection from disease as those living in the cities.

The Country or Rural Health Unit seems to offer a practicable means for obtaining this most desirable end. The idea is to organize, in a country or some similiar area, a health department which would be staffed by full-time trained workers. That is, the country would be served in a health way by a health organization similiar to that which has done so much good in the cities. By compining the rural areas and the smaal towns, there is a sufficient population to support such a service. The health workers in such a unit must be trained and must devote their whole time to this health work.

The plan is weil started in some provinces. It is becoming practical for those living outside the cities to secure organized health protection. They must realize what it means, how ever and must be willing, as have been the city dwellers, to pay the costs. It costs money to keep well, but it costs far less to keep well than to be ill.

CAUGHT IN RAINSTORM MAN SLEEPS IN HEARSE

Overtaken by a storm on his way home late at night and dubious about the reception he might receive when he reached home. Alfred Chapman, an elderly citizen of Sudbury, crawled into an abandoned hearse by the side of the road and was deep in slumber when two policemen, attracted by his snoring, apprehended him for vagrancy.

Chapman, in court, told Magistrate McKessock that he thought it better to spend the night in the hearse than to disturb his wife and family by a belated entry into the house.

The old hearse, of theh orse-drawn type, had been discovered by the elderly gentleman evidently found it quite comfortable.

"I think you would have been wise to have gone straight home even at the risk of waking up your family." Magistrate McKessock remarked. "We all have to sleep in a hearse soon enough." The vagrancy charge was dismissed.—Midland Free Press.

A large timber wolf, which has been alarming the farmers in Puslinch Township for the safety of their flocks for some time, will do no more marauding. It was despatched by a shot fired by John Marshall of Aberfoyle, who hastened back to the house for his gun when he saw the animal lying in a field on the farm of James Custernor.

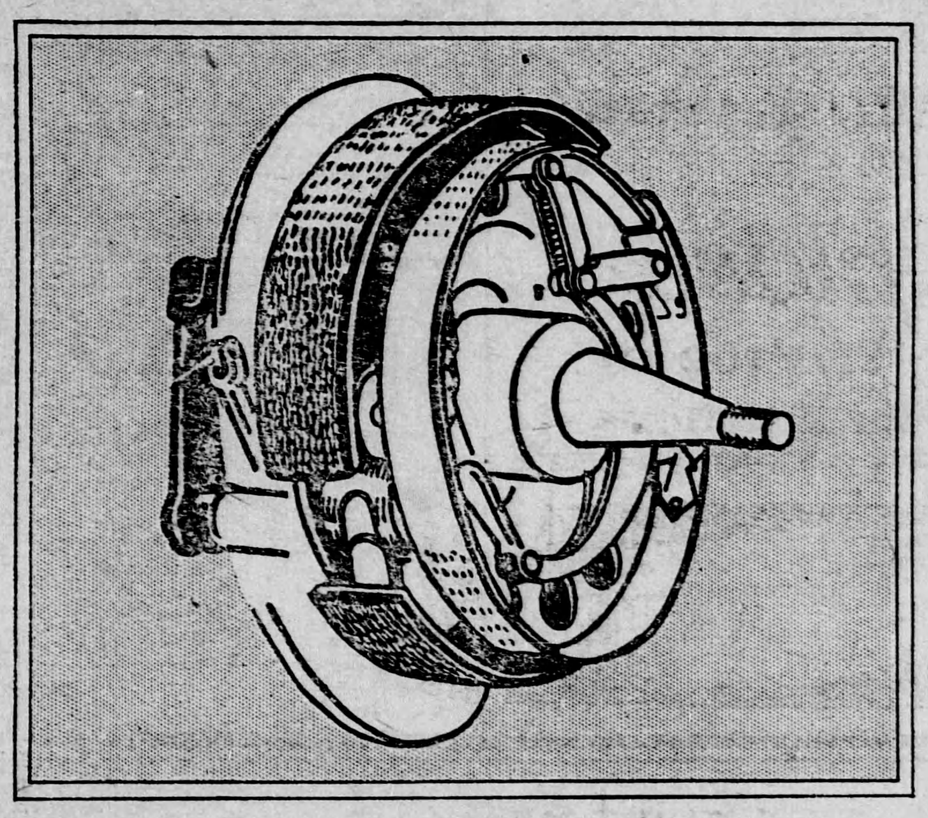
PROGRESS

THE FORD CAR SIX-BRAKE SYSTEM



Grips with Silent Power

THE greatest safety feature on any automobile—the braking system—has been developed on the Ford car to a degree that insures absolute driving confidence. Being fully enclosed, the internal expanding brakes on all four wheels are free from any danger of impaired performance from mud, sand, road dirt, grease or other foreign matter entering the mechanism or between the bands and drum.

The four wheel system is operated by a foot pedal, while the emergency or parking system of two brakes, one on each rear wheel, is distinct and separate, operated by a hand lever. This added security is made possible through the unique design of the Ford steel spoke wheels to which drums are fitted to accommodate two sets of internal brakes on the rear wheels.

The smooth, even braking of the Ford car yields more advantages than maximum safety at all times, since it makes tires last longer and adds immeasurably to riding ease and driving comfort.
