British Army on the Rhine Comes Home With Knowledge that it Has Performed a Difficult Task Wisely and Well

The British Army of the Rhine will come home reluctantly, but with the knowledge that it has performed a difficult task wisely and well.

Whatever German propagandists may say to the contrary, it has gained the respect and confidence, and to a large extent the good will, of the civil population in occupied territory. It comes home leaving behind no trace of bitterness or enmity.

This self-contained organization has been superimposed on an alien population without affecting in any way the normal life o fthe latter; it has been a tangible thing, yet practially invisible; sharing the same towns and villages, even the same public resorts, aloof in every respect, while maintaining an entirely correct attitude in all dealings with the people and their officials.

The Rhine Army has grown into an institution. It has not only its own dress, language, business and family life, schools, hospitals, clergy, amusements and sports, but even its own newspaper and literature. It has created its own history and traditions, and even a kind of folklore based on the exploits and adventures of certain "personalities" associated with the early days of the occupation.

It has its heroes and its unpopular characters, and the stories about them have reached every British depot containing soldiers who have served in Germany. The gossip of the Rhine is current in the hill stations of India as well as in the barracks of Shanghai. The Army has even developed its own drama, with stars who are as firmly placed in popular opinion as any favorite of the London stage.

There have been many changes since the Army came into being in the first delirious days of peace. Generals, staff officers, and units have come, served, and gone again. Very few war ribbons are to be seen to-day. A new generation has succeeded to the British watch on the Rhine, but the spirit is the same as when every man in the Army of Ocupation arrived by way of the Western Front.

In its own quiet way the Army has been an able propagandist for Britain. The life of the civilian population has been carefully protected from undue interference. Orders to the troops have been framed in such a way as to avoid all unpleasant "incidents." Fraternization has been strictly avoided, and even sports competitions with the Germans have been forbidden, despite the often expressed desire of the latter to engage in friendly games with the soldiers.

Many of the old, bad illusions concerning the British troops, which survived after the war, have been effectually dispelled. British justice has been discovered by the natives to be a fine and fair thing.

A WARNING TO MOTHERS

Watch the Health of Your Little Ones at All Times

No mother can expect that her child will escape all the ills to which babyhood and childhood are subject, but she can do much to lessen the severity of these troubles. The mother should be constantly on her guard to prevent childhood ailments, or if they come on suddenly, as they usually do, to have the means at hand to relieve them. Thousands of mothers have found Baby's Own Tablets the ideal remedy for little ones—thousands of mothers always keep the Tablets in the house as a safeguard against the sudden illness of their little ones.

Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative. They regulate the bowels; sweeten the stomach and thus banish constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fever and make the cutting of teeth easy. The Tablets are absolutely guaranteed free from injurious drugs and may be given to the youngest child with perfect safety. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"Sprucing Up" The Farm House

Awards have been announced in a little contest held among some farmers around St. Johns, N.B., which might well be extended all through the country. Prizes were given for distribution among farmers whose properties fronted on two provincial highways to go to the men who made the greatest improvements in the appearance of their dwellings and their surroundings during the past summer season.

It is unfortunate but none the less true that very many country dwellers in Canada have never paid the attention they might to the appearance of their houses the creation of lawns, the planting of trees ,shrubs and flowers around them—above all, to the painting or even whitewashing of houses, barns or outbuildings. Far too often the Canadian farmhouse and its immediate surroundings constitute an eyesore rather than an attractive feature of the rural landscape.

Our American neighbors as a rule set us an example in this respect that we might well follow. To-day, at least in the older portions of their country, farm houses are neat, clean, attractive, with well-kept lawns, bright flowers, healthy and well-placed trees. The motorist who crosses the border can, too commonly, tell that he has done so if by nothing else than the change from the trim, progressive-looking country-homes south of the line to the down-at-heel, shabby and generally neglected appearance of large numbers of Canadian farm houses.

It would be a fine thing if the experiment that has just been concluded so successfully around St. Johns would attract wide attention and imitation. The cost and the labor involved would be very slight in comparison with the results to be obtained.

Science and Industry

Johannesburg Sunday Times: It would be well for Johannesburg—which is inclined to place material prosperity to the forefront of worshipful images—to dwell with some humility on the debt which industry (including gold-mining), in common with many other fields of human endeavor, already owes to pure and applied science. Your genuine scientist is a real servant of the public, seeking, more often than not, no other reward for his vast and complicated labors, beyond a bare living, than a successful conclusion to his investigations. Were such men recompensed on a scale commensurate with their service and ability they would indeed be rich. But few of them have great possessions, and they are content to spend their lives, and sometimes to sacrifice them, in the cause of human progress and enlightenment.

HAVING THE LAST WORD

An epitaph has given many a henpecked husband the opportunity of having the last word, and some of them have made the most of it No conventional respect for the dead stopped the man who had this apitaph carved on his wife's tomb:—

"Here lies my wife, poor Molly; let her lie.
She finds repose at last, and so do I."

It was a Cornish husband who found it in his heart to inscribe upon a tombstone:

"My wife is dead, and here she lies,
No man laughs, and no man cries,
Where's gone, or how she fares,
Nobody knows, and nobody cares."

Here is another:

"Beneath this stone a lump of clay
Lies Arabella Young
Who on the twenty-fourth of May
Began to hold her tongue."

WASTE NOT TIME

An Italian philosopher expressed, in his motto, that time was his estate; an estate, indeed, that will produce nothing without cultivation, but will always abundantly repay the labors of industry, if no part of it be suffered to lie waste by negligence, to be overrun by noxious plants.—Dr. Johnson.

Minard's Liniment—Used for 50 years

Department of Health

When the school bells rang in Ontario on September 3rd thousands of small boys and girls started on the greatest adventure of childhood — Going to school.

Every Starter a Healthy Scholar

Upon the health of the child as he enters school depends, to a large extent, his success or failure as a scholar. Everything that is done from the time a child is born to develop in him a strong, sound body is a contribution to his school success. Malnourished, sickly children not only are likely to miss school often, but they can not do the best work when they are in school It takes a strong, vigorous child to get the most out of school life.

Parents who have children entering school for the first time this fall owe it to their children to have every possible handicap removed, every defect remedied which medical and dental science can correct. This common-sense idea of starting school without a handicap on the health score is fast becoming very popular in Ontario and hundreds of children are now entering school with health 100% perfect.

Protection Which Means Much

Diphtheria is disease which is particularly dangerous in childhood. There are very few deaths from this disease among grown-ups; it takes its greatest toll from among young children. In Ontario to-day there is no excuse for any child starting school without protection against diphtheria, for the reason that science has perfected a preventive which is supplied free of charge to physicians for the use of all children within the province. Toxoid is the name of this preventive; is given in three doses three weeks apart injected into the skin of the forearm.

Mothers and fathers would be willing to risk their lives to save a baby even if it meant pulling him from the railway track in face of an approaching train or dashing in front of a racing motor car. Yet the danger of diphtheria is an ever-present one for the unprotected child from one to ten years of age. Toxoid is a proven protection against this danger of childhood; it is insurance for the child and the parent—and is supplied free by the Department of Health of Ontario.

CIRCUMSTANCES

Man was meant to be not the slave, but the master, of circumstances; and in proportion as he recovers his humanity, in proportion as he gets back the spirit of manliness, which is self-sacrifice, affection, loyalty to an idea beyond himself a God above himself, so far will he rise above circumstances.—Kingsley.

TRIALS

Every man deems that he has precisely the temptations and trials which are the hardest of all for him to bear; but they are so because they are the very ones he needs.

MINARD'S "KING OF PAIN" LINIMENT

DADDY CAN NOW EAT ANYTHING

He dearly loved a rich tit-bit. The spirit was willing, but the flesh was weak. Whenever he ate anything rich, his boys used to say, "Poor dad, he will pay the penalty to-morrow." Read the sequel in his own words:—

"Since taking the regular dose of Kruschen Salts it is quite different, and my boys enjoy themselves seeing me eat what I dare not touch before. My eldest son was the same, but since he has taken Kruschen Salts he can eat and enjoy whatever is put in front of him."

Modern artificial conditions, errors of diet, overwork, lack of exercise, and so on, are bound to have injurious effects in the long run providing due precaution is not taken.

Kruschen Salts should be your safeguard. Besides cleansing the body of impurities gently, surely and painlessly, they possess a vital power of giving new life and vitality to the countless millions of cells of which every body is composed. That is why physicians never hesitate to recommend Kruschen Salts.
