Campbell has received an invitation for all officers, non com. officers and men of the 31st, who are members of the craft, to join and take part in the ceremonies.

Child Injured.

A little daughter of Prof. Joseph Stafford of Montreal, 6 years of age, who has been visiting with her grandma on the 4th line for some time, met with a very painful and severe accident on Monday of this week by an attack from a vicious dog. The little thing attempted to brush some water off the dog's back when it sprang at her face and fastened its teeth in her cheek, tearing the muscles from the cheek bone and almost tearing the whole cheek away. The child was brought out to Dr. Carter, who dressed the wounds and put in thirteen stitches to close them. The wounds were very painful and it is feared the little girl will be marked for life.

R. R Gamey addressed a very large crowd in Owen Sound on Thursday last. Reporting the affair The Times says: No man should express his doubts concerning Mr. Gamey until he has listened to his address. He is one of the most finished speakers in public life. His diction is faultless, his pronunciation scarcely defective, the consecutive arrangement of his matter, his rounded periods, timely emphasias and ready wit make him a debater that every man on the Government benches fears to meet in conflict. Mr. Gamey's position in politics is unique, if indeed it has its parallel in history. His speech was a telling denunciation of the government's mining policy followed by the story of the great bribery case of which he was the central figure. He is not abusive. He did not hurt the feelings of a single Liberal, and only attacked those high men in public life who were debasing the Liberal party and its traditions. From a poor boy born in Grey county, the member of a large family which had a hard fight for existence, Mr. Gamey has risen to a conspicuous place in public life. That he should draw immense crowds at both meetings, and that hundreds should be turned away from the hall last night is a tribute to the esteem in which he is held as a public man. The scene at the hall last night was an inspiration, and the ovation which Mr. Gamey received as he accepted the bouquet from the little daughter of Lieu. Col. N. F. Patterson, K. C., which he received with a kiss was of a kind to make the blood run faster.
