EDITORIAL NOTES.

A Bruce County man paid $50.10 as fine and costs for failing to take out a driving permit. The order came into effect three years ago. It is a stiff penalty to pay, and should be a lesson to many.

The merchants of Flesherton have, we believe, done a commendable thing in insuring the public the free use of of the United Church shed for the teams of those coming to town. As it is shed accommodation in Flesherton is all too little and an effort should be made to secure other sheds for that purpose also. It is during the winter season that the sheds are in use.

Beavers are so numerous in the Durham district that game wardens are killing the animals or capturing them to be sent to other points.

How long should ministers preach?" was a question raised by the Stratford Beacon-Herald. We have listened attentively for three-quarters of an hour to one preacher and hoped he would not stop, while others have had us fidgeting inside fifteen minutes. Time is a relative question.

The Durham Chronicle has been under fire lately by various newspapers with Liberal editors for receiving "inside informtion" as to the conduct of the Old Age Pension Act as being interpreted in Grey County. The Chronicle states that it has no inside track, but only secured information which any newspaper can secure if it wishes. The Advance had the same information last spring, but did not think it wise or necessary to subject the Board to public censure in order to get a knock at one individual. There were other and better ways of getting over the difficulty.

* * *

The change in the date of elections in this district from the new year to the present date has not, so far, been of any advantage, except that of having the election date taken away from the holiday season. Both last year and this the voting day was stormy and cold and only a small per centage of the voters came out to cast their ballot in Aretmesia Township. In Osprey about half the voters were out, no doubt on account of having a full slate running, while in Artemesia the Reeve was in by acclamation. It is hoped that next year the weather will be finer and that a keener interest will be taken in the elections.

* * *

There was one unlooked-for turnover at the municipal elections on Monday and that was the defeat in Osprey of Mr. W. L. Taylor, who has been Reeve of that township for so many years. Mr. Taylor has been a prominent member of the County Council, serving on many of the most important committees with very much credit to himself and to his township. Last year Mr. Taylor was runner-up in the choice of Warden for the county and it was confidently expected that he would be the choice at the 1931 session. It would have been a fitting tribute for Mr. Taylor's faithful service in his township's interests for so many years.

In crate-feeding poultry particular care should be taken to feed a ration which will produce the white fat and the milk-fed quality. The following ration has been tested and found suitable for crate-feeding: Equal parts of middlings, ground oats and ground barley; equal parts of middlings ground oats and ground new potatoes; equal parts of middlings, ground oats and mashed potatoes; equal parts of middlings, ground oats and cornmeal; equal parts of shorts, ground oats and ground barley; equal parts of low grade flour, ground barley and oats; equal parts of ground whole wheat, ground whole oats and ground whole barley; equal parts of ground barley, ground buckwheat and bran.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank my supporters for their efforts in my behalf at Monday's election. Wishing everybody a Merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

Yours sincerely,
—CECIL MELDRUM.

THE TODDLER DISCOVERED

It is generally known that the school child should receive regular health supervision in order that he may get the most out of his school years, and start out into adult life with a sound body. Throughout the civilized world, we find doctors, nurses and dentists working in the schools to safeguard the health of the school children.

It is generally understood also that the mother may be advised as to the care her baby requires, so that she may protect her infant from disease, keep him well and see to his proper development. Each year an increasing number of mothers take their well babies to the doctor for health supervision. They do this because they have learned that by following the advice they receive, their babies are kept well. In many places, well-baby conferences are held for the purpose of giving health instruction.

As a result of this preventative work which has been done for infants and school children, there has been among them a great reduction in disease, and a marked improvement in their health. The results have been so satisfactory that such work is extending, and in some places, the health supervision which is being given reaches practically every infant and school child.

Until a short time ago, the young child, between infancy and school age, was thought not to require any particular care. It is only recently that the toddler, or pre-school child, has been, as it were, discovered to require health supervision.

The child, from one to six, is passing through years where growth and development are rapid. He requires proper care if he is to have a properly developed, sound body when he enters school. His diet should include cereals, meats and vegetables; particularly does he require milk each day, fruit at least once a day, and green leafy vegetables regularly. He should not have tea, coffee, fried foods, pie, pickles, or rich cakes and puddings. He should not be given food or candy between meals as this spoils the appetite.

Well over half of all deaths from communicable diseases occur at this age. The child should be vaccinated against smallpox and immunized against diphtheria. He should never be exposed to such diseases, and if they do occur, he should be carefully treated.

The only time a horse gets scared nowadays is when it meets another horse.
