Stranger—"I want all the rotten eggs you have."

Grocer—"Stale eggs? May I ask if you are going to hear Senator Loudmouth speak to-night?"

Stranger — "Ssh-sh, I'm Senator Loudmouth."

The hardest cross word puzzle is why one should want to use cross words. Money slips away from the young folks as quickly as time does from the older folks. There will probably never be a low cost of high living. And, as you have probably suspected yourself, a good many of the chaps who long loudly for the good old days are actually longing inwardly for the bad old nights.

The Friend Who Just Stands By

When trouble comes your soul to try,
You love the friend who just stands by.
Perhaps theres nothing he can do,
The thing is strictly up to you;
For there are troubles all your own,
And paths the soul must tread alone;
Times when love can't smooth the road,
Nor friendship lift the heavy load.
But just to feel you have a friend
Who will stand by until the end.
Whose sympathy through all endures,
Whose warm handclasp is always yours,
It helps somehow to pull you through,
Although there's nothing he can do;
And so with fervent heart we cry
"God bless the friend who just stands by."

The two happiest moments of a woman's life are when a man asks her to marry him and when her doctor tells her she's got to have an operation. Trying to get even with people is what keeps up from getting ahead of them. There are insulting looks as well as insulting words. If you tackle the hard job first, the rest will be a cinch.

A service that others regards as a nuisance may be the basis of a profitable business if properly handled.

Mrs.—"Where have you been all evening?"

Mr.—"At the office."

Mrs.—"Then you must be made of asbestos for your office building burned down two hours ago."

Inquisitive Small Boy—"Daddy, if our doctor doesn't treat pigs, who cures the bacon?"

A young lady social worker was visiting a poor family in a New York tenement house and the mother was doing the washing and the baby was sitting on the floor chewing a very green banana.

Social Worker—"Oh, you shouldn't let that baby eat a green banana."

The Mother (looking up from the wash tub)—"Have you ever had a baby?"

Social Worker (blushing)—"Certainly not. I've never been married."

The Mother—"Well, then don't tell me how to raise babies, I've buried seven of them."

The modern girl has discarded tight clothes but the tight-husband problem is still unsolved.

A bright smile and an old gown are a good deal better than a bright new gown and a frown.

Hop To It

On the banks of a river a little frog sang,
"Hop-to-it, Hop-to-it, Hop-to-it."
Along came some campers and took up the strain,
"Hop-to-it, Hop-to-it, Hop-to-it."

So when you are asked, pray do not refuse,
But jump to your task, lest your courage you lose.
And say to yourself, "It is not as I choose,"
"Hop-to-it, Hop-to-it, Hop-to-it."

The Green Places

In fields and deep among the friendly trees
And on the solemn hills, man knows his heart;
He is accompanied by ancestries.
His sires loved green, in it they had their part.
But when he moves alone in city ways,
With mutabilities along the street,
He has no kinship with historic days
No acorns crack beneath his alien feet.
Eternity informs the lightest rain,
And truth follows the everlasting hills;
Be sure there is no end to any pain
Save in the womb that nurtures daffodils,
Loving the things your father looked upon,
You have the eyes of Jesus, Dante, Solomon.

GAS relieved

WHAT most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. Food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your dotor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention, it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate with no harmful after-effects.

Once you learn this perfect way you'll never deal in any other manner with the headaches, gas, bloating, nausea, dizziness, indigestion, biliousness, etc., due to an over-acid stomach and bowels.

Be sure to get genuine Phillips'. It is always a liquid; never made in tablet form. Look for the name Phillips on the bottle. All drug-stores sell it—50c.

Sunless Window Made Sunny

Every little while someone discovers a new and delightful way to curtain some north or poorly lighted window, so that the effect of light and sunniness is brought into the room. A very successful window curtain and drapery, which brought an appearance of sunshine and a suggestion of a flowery garden into a dim and cheerless north room, is here described.

The single window, which was about two feet fr the corner of the room, was covered with a glass curtain of cream net, reaching to the window sill. It hung moderately full, its width being once and a half the width of the window. On this curtain, at one side, were appliqued gay-colored flowers with leaves and long stems, all made of silk that permitted the light to shine through brightly, as through stained glass. On the opposite side, that nearest the corner of the room, a drapery of deep daffodil yellow was arranged in an unusual and strikingly decorative manner.

This drapery was not silk but it had a silky luster. It covered the entire width of the window, and two widths were used to get the right fullness, the seam being concealed between the folds. It was cut long enough to reach to the bottom of the window casing. The entire width of this drapery was drawn back to the casing at the side, half way between the top of the window and the middle, from which point it hung in graceful folds down over the casing, covered but a few inches of the glass, hence cutting off almost none of the light.

Flowers Like Stained Glass.

The flowers, leaves, and stems were cut out and finished before they were put on the net curtain. Three flowers, two wide leaves, and three long, slender leaves, were used, besides the stems. Thin plain silk was selected for all of them in order that the effect might be airy and dainty and so their color would show up perfectly. Very thin satin would be equally satisfactory. Heavier material should not be used, as the desired effect is not that of ordinary heavy-looking applique.

The colors for the flowers were pink, yellow, orange, and a light, rosy lavender. Another charming combination, with the yellow drapery, would be light blue, dark blue, yellow, and deep, reddish orange.

The top flower, which reached to just below the middle of the window, was made in this way: A circular piece of yellow silk was cut out, five inches in diameter, but very irregular in outline, suggesting the shape of a flower. The edge was turned under one-quarter of an inch and buttonholed with yellow silk thread. This is easier to do if the silk is first basted on a piece of newspaper, which afterward can be torn away. An irregular circle, 3½ inches in diameter, was cut out of the pink silk and basted over the middle of the yellow silk. The edge of the upper half of this pink inch, and was buttonholed onto the piece was turned under one-quarter yellow silk, using pink silk thread. A piece of the lavender silk, somewhat in the shape of an irregular half moon, was basted over all the lower half of the pink piece and all its edges turned under and buttonholed onto the pink above it and onto the yellow below it, using lavender thread. Then all the extra thickness of silk underneath were cut away so as to leave only one thickness of silk throughout the flower.

The next lower flower was made in a similar way, starting with a large, irregular circle of lavender, and using pink for its upper centre and orange below. The third flower started with pink and had yellow for its upper centre and lavender blow.

Stems and Leaves.

The stems, which were not cut in a straight line, but on a slight curve, to make them look more graceful, were of a light but rather vivid green. The material for them was cut one inch wide, and one quarter inch was turned under on each side, leaving the finished stem one-half inch wide. Both edges were buttonholed with silk thread of the same shade of green. The long thin leaves were a little wider throughout their middle portion than the stems, but tapered to points above, and were buttonholed in the same way. One of the two wide leaves was of green silk, the other of orange. They were two and one-half inches wide by three and one-half inches long, when finished and buttonholed. These were much curved, with a few interesting jags along their underside. Along the middle of each ran a "vein" made with silk thread of the color of the leaf, in a simple stitch.

When the flowers, leaves, and stems the lower left half of the net curtain were finished, the were pinned on at the window and adjusted until their position seemed right, then lightly basted in place. This makes it easy to remove them whenever the net requires laundering. The bottom of the stem and long leaves started from the very bottom of the curtain and extended almost to the sash.

This glass curtain and accompanying drapery were copied for a larger, wider window in another home. But there was added to the glass curtain, straight across the bottom of the net, a strip of yellow silk, four inches wide, the same width, a third of lavender, another just below of pink silk, of and a bottom one of green, the same thin, semi-transparent silk being used as was chosen for the flowers and leaves. The bottom strip reached just to the window sill This, of course, meant raising the net part so that the top flower came a few inches above flowers and leaves were made slightly the middle of the window. The smaller than in the original curtain to avoid any possibility of the curtain looking crowded. The effect was indescribably gay.

Toronto.—The importance of Toronto as a livestock show centre is further illustrated in the announcement made the other day of the signing of a three-party agreement between the Dominion, the Province and the City of Toronto for the erection of new stables at the exhibition grounds. The new stables are expected to cost in the neighborhood of $1,000,000 and are to be used for the livestock displays at the exhibition and the Royal Winter Fair.

She Couldn't Be Hoodwinked.

Miss E. Thomson, of Clapham, writes:—"I find that Carter's Little Liver Pills will do more to keep the complexion clear, and the skin free from blemishes, than all the face creams I have used. I found the real cause of face blemishes was usually due to liver and stomach troubles. My druggist recommended them as a specific for stimulating the liver and expelling the constipation poisons from the system."

Daughter Is Stronger Now

"My daughter Catherine is fifteen years old. She was very irregular, often sick at her stomach and had to stay in bed two or three days at a time. One of your booklets was sent to us by mail so I got her a bottle of Vegetable Compound. Catherine has been taking it regularly and she is gaining in weight and every way.
